These days, too many ads look like too many other ads. No wonder so many advertisers are stuck with ads that never get noticed. When we create advertising, we start with the obvious and toss it out the window. If everyone's running a busy ad, we'll create a SIMPLE one. If the competition's headlines shout, ours will whisper. If everyone's got a rectangular business card, we'll design a round one. After all, how can you expect your message to stand out when it sounds like everyone else?

A Word About Challenging The Expected.

If your advertising could use a fresh perspective, we'd like to talk to you. We'll show you what can happen when you expect the unexpected.

Who to Call

If you have a question about a particular city service, call the appropriate department. (The basic functions of each city department are outlined below. For a brief index of services and phone numbers, see below.) Complaints about existing services are temporarily being handled by the city clerk's office (994–2725). You may also call this office if you feel you have been mistreated by a city employee or department. If you want to see changes made in any city law, rule, or procedure, call one of your council representatives (see p. 20). For general information, call 994–2700.

City Hall is located at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Huron Street.

Information on county and township governments is found at the end of this section.

Council and Administration

CITY COUNCIL. City Council information: 994–2885. Council message line: 994–3313. Democratic Council Office: 994–2702. Republican Council Office: 994–8320. Each of Ann Arbor's five wards for city elections is further divided into several precincts. The number of registered voters in a precinct may not exceed 2,999.

By law, ward boundaries are redrawn after each national census to reflect population shifts. New districts will likely be finalized in late 1991—previous redistrictings have been marked by extended partisan wrangling. (Observer research, though, has indicated that the 1981 Republican-drawn boundaries yielded that party few benefits.) Between these redistrictings, existing precincts are occasionally subdivided for administrative reasons. Ann Arbor ward and precinct maps can be purchased from the League of Women Voters (665–5808) and from the city clerk. They are also available in publications at the Ann Arbor Public Library.

Each ward elects two council members for two-year terms. In the annual election in April, one of the council seats from each ward is available in a partisan contest. Ann Arbor voters are involved and independent; the last three years have seen a shift in the council's composition from a 7–4 Republican majority (including the mayor) to the current 8–3 Democratic edge. For a ward map and a list of current council members, see p. 20.

City council adopts an annual budget and determines city laws and policies. In theory, this is a part-time job; council members receive just $8,000 per year for their work.

Regular city council meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. on the first and third Mondays of every month, in the council chambers on the second floor of City Hall. Additional special sessions usually take place on the second and fourth Mondays of the month. Meetings are broadcast live on cable television's Channel 10, and rebroadcast a couple of times each week. Both political caucuses usually meet the night before scheduled council meetings. The Republicans meet in the council workroom (second floor of City Hall), and the Democrats meet in the second-floor conference room above the main fire station. Caucus meetings are open to the public and afford a much better forum than council meetings for citizens to talk directly with council members.

The public is welcome to speak at council meetings, but only six five-minute slots are available at the beginning of each meeting. You can sign up for one of these slots by calling the city clerk (994–2725) beginning at 8 a.m. on the Friday morning before the next scheduled meeting. Speakers must announce the subject of their address when they sign up. Members of the public can also address council, without having to sign up in advance, at the end of council meetings, usually around midnight. Public hearings, at which anyone can speak without advance notice for up to five minutes, are held on many proposed council actions.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, third floor, City Hall. 994–2766. The mayor, elected in a partisan election every two years, presides over and is a voting member of city council. Democrat Liz Brater was elected to her first term in April 1991. She appoints council committees, has the power to veto most council actions, has certain police powers in the case of an emergency, and acts as ceremonial head of the city. This is a part-time position, paying $15,000 a year.

To become a member of any city board, committee, or commission, request an application from this office. The city clerk's office has a listing of all citizen groups that have openings.

In addition to other official duties, the mayor is available to preside at weddings Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. The city treasurer collects a fee of $25 for this service; a marriage license (obtainable at the county clerk's office at Main and Huron) and two witnesses are required.

ADMINISTRATOR, third floor, City Hall. 994–2653. Ann Arbor's administrator, Al Gatta, is responsible for seeing that the city bureaucracy carries out the policies established by council. He prepares an annual budget for adoption by council, and most city department heads answer to him, either directly or through another department head.

The administrator's office is responsible for the distribution of various permits, including noise permits for commercial areas (noise levels in residential areas must be kept below 61 decibels between 10 p.m. and 7 a.m.), solicitation permits, and permits for street closings (as for a block party).

ASSESSOR, fifth floor, City Hall. 994–2663. This office keeps tax and ownership histories for Ann Arbor houses, which the public can consult in person or over the phone. Home assessment. Property taxes are based on an "assessed value," which under state law is supposed to equal one-half of the current market value. The city assessor annually reviews the assessed value of all residential and commercial properties in the city.

If an assessment is contested, or if a home owner cannot afford to pay the full tax, the case can be appealed to the council-appointed Board of Review, which meets once a year for at least four days, starting on the third Monday in March. Appellants can address the board in person or mail their claims to the assessor's office. The board reduces about one-third of the tax assessments it considers. It also has the power to increase the amount of an assessment under appeal, and does so occasionally. State tax relief. Senior citizens and low-income families are eligible for a Homestead Tax credit when they file their state income tax returns. The assessor's office can assist in the process.

CITY ATTORNEY, third floor, City Hall. 994–2670. The attorney provides legal advice to city council and city department heads and employees, represents them in suits, and prosecutes violations of city ordinances. If you have a question about the legality of something you want to do—or about something your neighbor is doing—as it pertains to the city code, call the city attorney. (If you want to lodge a complaint against someone for what you think is a violation of city ordinances, call the police.)

CITY CLERK, second floor, City Hall. 994–2725. Licenses. The city clerk issues licenses for bicycles ($2.50), dogs ($10 for 2 years), peddlers ($10 per year), Ann Arbor handicapped parking (short-term, within city limits only, no charge), and going-out-of-business sales ($110 for 30 days, renewable twice). Applicants must submit serial numbers for bikes, license plate numbers and a doctor's statement certifying disability for handicapped parking, rabies certificates for dogs, and passport-type photos for peddlers. (No license is currently required for street performers.)

Record keeping. This office also maintains records of city council acts, including the council members' voting records, which can be inspected by the public. Copies can be made for $.20 a page. People who wish to speak at a city council meeting can reserve a time slot by calling the city clerk. The city code and charter are available for inspection and copying at this office.

Voter registration. Ann Arbor residents can register to vote at the city clerk's office, at any office of the Michigan Secretary of State, or at any branch of the Ann Arbor Public Library. If you are disabled or for any other reason unable to get to one of these locations, the city clerk will attempt to send a deputy registrar to your residence. You must be registered at your current address at least thirty days before an election in order to vote in that election.

CABLE COMMUNICATIONS, City Clerk's Office, second floor, City Hall. This office regulates Columbia Cable, the private company that provides cable television service to the Ann Arbor area. It primarily deals with consumer issues and complaints. Cable Commission meetings take place the third Tuesday of every month in the fire station's second-floor conference room.

COMMUNITY ACCESS TELEVISION, 107 N. Fifth Ave. 769–7422. Ann Arbor residents and local nonprofit groups can present their programming to Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, and the surrounding townships at no charge. Channel 8 is for educational institutions, Channel 9 is for the public, and Channel 10 is for local government. The public is welcome to use the department's facilities, for which free training is available. Training includes workshops in studio and camcorder use, editing, and production. Call Community Access for details on the training programs and use of the facilities. Reservations are needed for the training programs.

Bob Grady (D), Third Ward

CONTROLLER'S OFFICE, fifth floor, City Hall. 994–2730. The controller's office handles the city's money and provides citizens with information on bond issues and the city's general financial histories.

Court System

U.S. COURTS, 200 E. Liberty St., in the Federal Building. 668–2380 (clerk of court). The U.S. District Court hears all civil and criminal cases under federal law, and civil cases between citizens of different states in which the suit is more than $50,000. (Suits of lesser value are handled by the circuit and local district courts.) Most of the appointed federal district judges for southeastern Michigan serve in Detroit, but two hold court in Ann Arbor's Federal Building: George La Plata and Charles Joiner. The Federal Building also houses the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, which hears appeals of District Court cases. Judge Ralph B. Guy presides.

CIRCUIT COURT, 200 E. Huron St. 994–2550. The five-judge Circuit Court is the county's highest court. As the state's only trial court of general jurisdiction, it has a broad range of authority on criminal, civil, and domestic relations cases. It handles major civil and criminal cases that come under state law. All criminal cases filed in Washtenaw County are initiated in the district courts. All felony cases, unless reduced to misdemeanors or dismissed, are bound over to Circuit Court.

PROBATE COURT, Estate and Mental Health Division, 101 E. Huron St. 994–2474. Juvenile Court, 2270 Platt. 971–2240. The probate courts operate on the county level and, in general, hear cases concerning those who cannot care for themselves—the mentally ill, the estates of those who have died, orphaned and dependent children, and juvenile delinquents. The Estate and Mental Health Division has jurisdiction over the settlement of the estates of those who have died, the determining of inheritance tax, appointment of guardians for minors and legally incapacitated persons, and the involuntary hospitalization of mentally ill persons. The Juvenile Division hears cases with children under the age of 17. The court investigates cases to determine the measures necessary to protect and treat children in their own homes, in group homes, foster homes, or restraint facilities. It also authorizes adoptions (971–2639) and hears juvenile traffic cases. The operation of the Juvenile Detention Home and detention alternatives is under the authority of the county Board of Commissioners.

DISTRICT COURTS, sixth floor, City Hall, 100 N. Fifth Ave. 994–2740. District Court

No. 15, handling cases within the city of Ann Arbor, includes the Civil Division (994–2749); the Criminal Division (994–2747), which also covers drunk driving cases; the Probation Department (994–2751); and Traffic Violations (994–2745). Call 994–8247 for questions about jury duty between 8 a.m. and 12 noon Mon.–Fri.

The Civil Division has three sections: small-claims court, landlord-tenant conflicts, and general civil claims. Small-claims court is restricted to claims under $1,500, with a limit of $400 for car accident claims. Suits can be handled without a lawyer by filling out a claim form ($.25 each), reading the provided pamphlet, paying a fee ($12 for claims under $600 and $22 for larger claims, plus a certified mail fee of $5/individual or $2.50/business), and appearing at the scheduled court date. A wait of about one month for a court date is common. Landlord-tenant disputes over evictions can sometimes be tried without lawyers, depending on the details of the case. There is a $22 to $54 fee, and disputes filed by Wednesday are generally heard the following Tuesday.

District Court cases outside the Ann Arbor city limits are handled elsewhere. Pittsfield and Ann Arbor townships fall under the jurisdiction of District Court No. 14-A-1 (4133 Washtenaw Ave., 971–6050), Scio Township under that of District Court 14-A-3 (122 S. Main St., Chelsea, 475–8606).

Treasurer's Office

The Treasurer's Office is located on the first floor of City Hall. 994–2833. City and county tax bills can be paid here, though the city encourages mail-in payments. There is a drive-up window on the north side of City Hall for payment of taxes, utility bills, and parking tickets during business hours. A drop-off box is located on the first floor of City Hall for after-hours payment. Bills for summer property taxes not paid by the July 31 deadline increase by 1 percent if paid during August. The penalty climbs to 5 percent if the bill is paid at any time in September. Winter bills are due December 31: they go up 1 percent if paid in January and 2 percent if paid in February. The city treasurer is available to discuss any outstanding invoices, taxes, or bills. The county assumes responsibility for collecting property taxes on real estate that are not paid by March 1. Businesses that are opening or closing should contact the city assessor about personal property taxes. (Despite the name, the personal property tax is levied only against business.)

Parking tickets can also be paid in this office. Tickets for expired meters cost $3 if paid within one hour of issuance. (Tickets received after 4 p.m. and paid by 9 a.m. the following day are also $3; there is a 24-hour payment box in the City Hall lobby.) The cost is $5 if paid within 14 days. After that, the late-payment penalties are added. Tickets can be appealed to the parking violations referee, in person or by mail, by claiming unusual circumstances and providing an explanation. The referee will investigate the claim, often by going to the site of the ticketing. About one fifth of all the tickets appealed to the referee are dismissed. Devoted challengers can appeal decisions in district court.

Water and sewer bills are also payable at this office. There is a 10 percent discount if bills are paid on or before the due date. Persons sharing one water bill (i.e., students or tenants) are encouraged to write one check for the total amount. Utility bills may also be paid at NBD Bank branch offices.

General City Services

CITY ENGINEER, fourth floor, City Hall. 994–2744. Residents of an area of the city that lacks an adequate sewer or a paved street can request improvements from this office.

All work must be approved by city council. Do not call this office to report potholes (call 99-HOLES) or streets and sidewalks needing repair (call the Transportation Department, 994-2818).

COMMUNITY EDUCATION AND RECREATION, 2765 Boardwalk Dr. 994-2300. Although this sounds like a division of the Parks and Recreation Department, it's actually a completely separate body, funded jointly by the city and the school system and governed by a jointly appointed board. It organizes classes, arts programs (including concerts and plays), team sports, therapeutic recreation, and senior citizen recreation. Recreation brochures are available in March (for spring programs), mid-May (for summer), late August (for fall), and November (for winter) at the Rec and Ed office, schools, libraries, banks, and city offices; the brochures are also inserted in the Ann Arbor News. For descriptions of city recreational programs and facilities, see Recreation, p. 111.

FIRE DEPARTMENT, 111 N. Fifth Ave. 994-2774 (emergencies, dial 911). The Ann Arbor Fire Department operates within Ann Arbor city limits. It takes care of fires and any related services, including first aid assistance and help for disabled people. Fire prevention programs. In cooperation with the public schools, fire prevention programs are conducted for children in grades three through six. Talks are given year-round, and there are special programs in September and October. Fire station tours are available by appointment year-round. Fire inspections. The department also conducts routine commercial fire inspections and inspections of new buildings, ensures that fire lanes are maintained during special events (like the notoriously crowded art fairs), and investigates all fires of a suspicious nature.

Cats stuck in trees are on their own. But, advises one fireman, they'll eventually come down of their own accord anyhow, if whatever caused their flight is removed. "I've never found a cat skeleton in a tree," he says.

PARKS AND RECREATION DEPARTMENT, fifth floor, City Hall. 994-2780. This department runs the city parks, recreational areas, golf courses, ice rinks, the skateboard ramp at Veterans Park, several community centers, and assorted other facilities. Brochures published in early spring and early fall are available at recreation facilities, libraries, and sporting goods stores. For detailed descriptions of city parks and recreational facilities and programs, see Recreation, p. 111.

Individuals and groups can reserve park shelters for $15 plus a $25 refundable deposit by filling out the appropriate form. Occasionally, Mack Pool is also available. To reserve a softball diamond or for questions about recreation programs sponsored by the public school system, call Community Education and Recreation at 994-2300.

Scholarships, available to people with low incomes, provide free or reduced-price passes to ice skating rinks, swimming pools, and day camps. Applications are available at the Parks and Recreation office.

FORESTRY DIVISION, 415 W. Washington St. 994-2769. The forestry division of the Parks and Recreation Department plants trees on lawn extensions and cares for them at no charge. Home owners who want larger trees than those normally supplied can choose a tree and have it added to an extension, but they must pay the cost of moving the tree. Trees are planted in the fall and the spring, usually within one year of the request, so don't expect instant service. The forestry division also inspects public and private trees for disease, cares for the public ones, and provides advice for the owners of private ones, at a $20 charge for private inspection. Advice on shrubbery is also available. Tree clinics (no charge, call for location) are held once a month in May, June, and July in city parks. Foresters examine leaves, bark, or twigs brought to the clinics and provide information and advice.

POLICE DEPARTMENT, first floor, City Hall. Emergency: dial 911 anywhere in Washtenaw County. The 911 phone number has multiple lines, so don't be reluctant to use it. For incidents that are not in progress, call 994-2911. The complaint desk number is 994-2875; this is also the number to call to check on the status of towed vehicles.

The Ann Arbor Police Department functions 24 hours a day, seven days a week. In addition to law enforcement, it serves as a catch-all for services that the city's other departments do not provide. Lost and found is on the first floor of City Hall (994–2874). The department holds a police auction twice a year, or whenever the volume of found or confiscated goods becomes large. To find out how to take part in the Neighborhood Watch Crime Prevention program, call 994–2837. The Office of Disaster Preparedness (24-hour line, 761–2425) supplements police in the event of a disaster and notifies the public. For animal control, call 911.

Safety Town (994–2242), which takes place at Bryant School, is a program for four- and five-year-old children, offered every year in late June and early July. Safety Town minimizes children's anxiety about their first contact with schools in a program presented by police officers, fire fighters, and teachers. By the end of 1990, over 7,600 children had completed the program, and none of these children had ever been involved in a fatal bicycle or pedestrian accident.

The juvenile officer (994–2710) will address youth groups or talk to concerned parents.

The crime prevention officer (994–2979) will survey your home and point out possible security weaknesses free of charge. This office also provides services to business. Employees can be trained in anti-crime techniques and safe opening and closing procedures, and managers are offered instruction in internal theft detection. The crime prevention office also runs the department's sexual assault awareness program.

TRANSPORTATION DEPARTMENT, lower level, City Center Bldg., 220 E. Huron St. 994–2818. This department offers a variety of services. It oversees city parking operations; leaf pickup is scheduled twice for each neighborhood in the fall; snow removal is done regularly in the winter (for most streets); and Christmas tree removal is performed once for each neighborhood in January. (The city now composts leaves, and Christmas trees are processed into wood chips for use on city park paths. That's why walkers often find tinsel mixed in with the wood chips.) The dates of tree and leaf removal are listed in the Ann Arbor News. To request additional street cleaning, call 994–1617.

Street and sidewalk maintenance. For pothole repair, call 99-HOLES. For fallen signs and sidewalk repair, call 994–2818.

Streetlights and traffic signals. For inoperative lights or signals, call 994–2818. The installation of additional streetlights and traffic signals can be requested. A neighborhood petition is required. Approximately 70 percent of requests are accepted. On-street parking modifications can be requested with the same procedure.

PETER YATES

Kirk Dodge (R), Second Ward

UTILITIES DEPARTMENT, fifth floor, City Hall. 994–2666. For after hours emergencies, call 994–2840. This department provides water, sewer, and storm water service to Ann Arbor and parts of the surrounding townships. It also offers emergency services (for a broken water pipe, for instance) 24 hours a day. For all Ann Arbor buildings, water costs $1.08 per 100 cubic feet (about 750 gallons). Sanitary sewer service costs $1.92 per 100 cubic feet. Storm water service costs $6.09 per quarter for single family and duplex residences. The average three-month bill (including water, storm, and regular sewers) for one residence is about $35. That rate is discounted 10 percent for bills paid by the due date.

Planning and Building

BUILDING DEPARTMENT, fourth floor, City Hall. 994–2674. This department enforces city building codes, inspects rental housing, and enforces city ordinances regarding yard care (or neglect).

New construction. Building permits are required for work estimated to be in excess of $600, work that affects the structure of a building, outdoor decks or fences, and most other major jobs. They can be obtained by submitting an application form (available at this office) and two drawings of the proposed work to the Building Department. Applications are reviewed for compliance with code and safety requirements. Fees are based on the cost of the work. ►

CITY OF ANN ARBOR TREASURER'S OFFICE

Information for: Ann Arbor residents
From: Richard J. Garay, City Treasurer

The City Treasurer's office collects funds owed the city—parking violations, water bills, property taxes, and service fees. For your convenience, there is a drive-up window on the Ann Street side of City Hall, open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday (except legal holidays).

WATER BILLS can also be paid at branches of NBD-Ann Arbor, or by mail. If you pay by mail, please include your account number along with your address. Those of you who have roommates and are sharing the payment of these utility bills, please attempt to pay these bills with only one check. Multiple checks for one account can cause problems.

PARKING VIOLATIONS: Check the violation code on your ticket to be sure you submit the right amount: fines increase if not paid promptly. And by state regulation, six or more outstanding tickets can cause your driver's license renewal to be withheld.

A NOTE TO NEW HOMEOWNERS: Property tax bills go out twice a year, in July and December. Since there is often a lag in recording property in a new owner's name, your bill could be delayed. To avoid charge for late payment, call the Treasurer's Office if you don't receive your tax bill by the 10th of July or the 10th of December.

If you have questions about your water or city tax bills, call 994–2833. For questions about parking violations, call 994–2775.

Rental properties. The department's housing bureau will inspect a house or apartment upon request and require building improvements if the residence is not up to code. Rental properties are also inspected routinely once every two and a half years. Code requirements can sometimes be waived with an appeal to one of four boards: housing, zoning, sign, and building. File a claim listing the arguments in your favor with the Building Department. The board will accept or reject the request after discussing it at a monthly public meeting.

Permits. In addition to building permits, this office handles permits for many special events, and street-related permits such as those for sidewalk use, curb cuts, barricades, and temporary right-of-way.

HISTORIC DISTRICT COMMISSION, 312 S. Division. 996–3008. The commission administers twelve historic districts, including the Old West Side, the Old Fourth Ward, Washtenaw/Hill, Main Street, and a Landmark Historic District. It has jurisdiction over buildings that are declared historic sites and can prevent or control certain changes to the exteriors of those buildings. If you have concerns about a historic building, contact the commission.

Commission personnel also have a vast knowledge of the histories of city buildings, and promptly handle inquiries about them. The commission meets in city council chambers (second floor of City Hall) at 7 p.m. on the second Thursday of every month. The public is welcome, and the meetings are broadcast on cable channel 10.

City Hall. 994–2800. The mayor and council appoint the Planning Commission, a nine-member citizen body which makes recommendations to council on proposed site plans, zoning changes, and modifications of the city's master plan. All commission actions include one or more public hearings. The Planning Department acts as the commission's administrative staff.

Council usually follows Planning Commission recommendations, but sometimes overrules it on controversial issues. The Planning Commission has final say on minor modifications of already approved site plans and on special-exception uses (such as sorority houses in residential areas) as defined by city zoning ordinances. When a new development is planned, the department notifies all residents who live within 300 feet of the proposed site, so that they can attend the public hearing. The department makes demographic information available to the public and sells the city's basic planning documents for a small fee ($2–$10). In addition, planning staff is sometimes available to make presentations to local groups.

Individuals concerned about a development proposal are encouraged to call, stop by, or write to the Planning Department.

PETER YATES

Larry Hunter (D), First Ward

You can also state your concerns or objections when the Planning Commission holds its public hearing on the issue. Strong debate is common at these hearings. Planning Commission public hearing and action meetings are held the second and fourth Tuesdays of every month at 7 p.m. in council chambers (second floor). These meetings are televised on cable channel 10, and agendas are published in the Ann Arbor News and broadcast over channel 10 beginning the Thursday before the meeting. Working sessions are held the first and third Tuesdays of every month at 7 p.m. in City Hall's fourth-floor conference room.

Human Services

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT, lower level, City Center Bldg., 220 E. Huron St. 994–2912. Areas of service include:

Federally funded housing rehabilitation through loans to low-income individuals and to landlords. Applications can be made to the department. An investigator checks housing conditions, and builders bid for the work.

The department would like to increase public awareness of this program. The waiting list is minimal, and the program has helped many low-income residents hard-pressed by Ann Arbor's spiraling property taxes. But most of the program's beneficiaries so far have discovered it through word of mouth.

The funding of public services, including legal aid, dental services, job training agencies, scholarships, services for seniors, and community centers in low-income areas. Contact the office for a list of currently funded programs. This office provides about half of the funding for such services, with the other half coming from the city's general fund.

HOUSING COMMISSION, 727 Miller Ave. 994–2828. Housing is provided for low-income Ann Arbor residents in buildings owned by this commission. Expect a short wait for senior citizen housing and disabled/handicapped housing, and a two-year wait for family housing. The commission accepts applications at times announced in the classified section of the Ann Arbor News. Rent is set at 30 percent of a tenant's income. Miller Manor, at 727 Miller Ave. has apartments for about 105 senior citizens and for the disabled/handicapped, and Baker Commons, at 106 Packard St., has apartments for about 64. Family and disabled housing is spread across the city, often in duplexes and townhouses with room for two to four families. In all, about 350 people live in commission housing. This office also handles the Section 8 federal subsidy program in which tenants pay 30 percent of their income for rent of privately

What About Credentials?

Don't be uncomfortable asking a lawyer for credentials. A good lawyer should be pleased to discuss such matters as training, experience and continuing legal education. Keeping up with developments in the law through professional affiliations and continuing education is essential to effective practice. Look for someone who is respected by fellow attorneys.

Terrence O'Hagan has over twenty years jury trial experience. He is a member of the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, and the Washtenaw Trial Lawyers Association, and he regularly attends courses at the National College of Advocacy. He served two terms as President of the Washtenaw Trial Lawyers Association, and three on the Executive Board of the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association. Terry offers a traditional legal practice, one that is based on strong client relationships and careful trial preparation. Call Terry at 475-0424 for a free preliminary consultation (and a copy of his credentials.)

Advice on equal opportunity employment for adults and youths can be obtained from this department. Discrimination. The Human Rights section handles complaints about discrimination in employment and housing and other violations of the city human rights ordinance. Appointed by the mayor and city council, the seven-member Human Rights Commission monitors problems with discrimination in Ann Arbor and makes recommendations to council and other parties (such as the school board or the U-M) on ways to eliminate it.

City Taxes

Property taxes are assessed twice a year—in July and December. The July 1991 tax rate is $38.70 per $1,000 assessed valuation of property—$.17 less than last year's. Of that, $16.69 goes to the city, $3.19 to Washtenaw Community College, $1.76 to the Washtenaw Intermediate School District, and $17.06 to the public schools. December's rate is limited to funding for the schools and for Washtenaw County. The exact rate is still undetermined, but is expected to be less than $30 per $1,000 assessed valuation. (The December 1990 rate was $24.52.)

The city's share of tax revenues is divided among general government operations ($6.54), debt service ($1.03), refuse collection ($2.63), employee benefits ($1.75), Ann Arbor Transportation Authority ($2.00), parks development and parkland acquisition ($.93), and major street repairs ($1.81).

City Elections

City elections take place on the first Monday in April, from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. National, state, and county elections, except for special elections, are held every two years on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

The city clerk's office, the public library, the Secretary of State, and voluntary deputy registrars register voters. To be eligible to vote, individuals must have lived in Ann Arbor for at least thirty days prior to an election. After registering, a voter receives information by mail about where and how to vote.

Cars, bikes, skateboards, and pedestrians. It is legal to turn left on a red light onto a one-way street, after yielding to pedestrians and oncoming cars.

It is illegal to drive past stopped school buses that are displaying two alternating flashing red lights. It is legal for pedestrians to cross the street on a red light or a "don't walk" signal as long as there is no danger or obstruction of traffic. It is illegal to drive "in such a manner as to splash snow, rain, water, mud, dirt, or debris" onto pedestrians.

Roller skates, sleds, coasting wagons, toy vehicles, or "similar devices," are not allowed in streets, except for crossing. Bikes on the roads more than half an hour after sunset or before sunrise must have headlights and rear reflectors, and "every bicycle shall be equipped with at least one effective brake." City Council also has banned skateboarding in city parking structures, in Liberty Plaza, and on certain downtown sidewalks. The U-M Diagonal is off-limits to skateboarders as well.

Pets. Dog owners must have their dogs under "reasonable control" (that is, leashed or confined) at all times. They are also required to clean up after their dogs on both public and private property.

Owners of all pets must provide proper food, drink, and shelter from the weather for their animals, as well as medical attention necessary to prevent the animals from suffering. Animals may not be left confined without adequate ventilation. This includes leaving your pet inside a car.

Domestic violence. Ann Arbor's domestic violence law requires police to arrest people suspected of spouse abuse if there is reasonable cause to believe the abuse took place, without requiring that the other spouse press charges and without waiting for a complaint. Both of the people involved are offered counseling.

Landscaping. Home owners are prohibited from growing vegetation (such as hedges) higher than thirty-six inches if that vegetation is within twenty-five feet of an intersection. Trees within that distance must be trimmed to provide clear vision of the intersection. No weeds, grass, or "other vegetation" higher than sixteen inches is allowed to cover a lawn, or the city will mow your lawn for you —and give you the bill. "Fences charged or connected with an electrical current" are prohibited.

Boom boxes. In city parks, it is illegal to "use any device transmitting electronically amplified sound, including, but not limited to, radios [and] tape recorders. . . ."

Liquor. The city code states that "[no] person shall consume liquor on the public streets" or on any business premises except those licensed for on-premise liquor consumption. Certain events with outdoor liquor sales are exempt.

Marijuana. Under the provisions of a charter amendment passed by voters in April 1990, possession of small amounts (one ounce is a rule-of-thumb limit in general use by the city government and police) of marijuana is a civil infraction carrying a penalty of $25 for the first offense, $50 for the second offense, and not less than $100 for the third offense. State law makes possession or sale of any amount of the drug a criminal offense. The city of Ann Arbor can choose to follow either the city law or the state law, according to its judgment in any individual case, so the above fines don't always apply.

Landlords and tenants. The city produces a booklet entitled "Rights and Duties of Tenants." City law requires that landlords distribute it to their tenants; failure to do so is punishable by fines of up to $500. The booklet outlines city tenancy laws, and reflects in its composition the succession of Democratic and Republican administrations that have governed Ann Arbor in recent years—one section was written by "tenant advocates," and a rebuttal from "landlord advocates" was added later. ►

One of the Midwest's biggest banks, but only when you want us to be.

Here's an interesting concept.

A big bank that can still be what you want it to be.

Impossible, you say.

Not necessarily, we say, because we've grown into a major Midwest bank by catering to communities like yours.

It's how we run our business.

In each of our community banks throughout Michigan, Illinois and Indiana, the local bankers make local decisions.

Not just on traditional banking services like checking, savings and trust services.

But on matters like lending.

So, when you apply for a loan at a local First of America Bank, that's where the decision to approve it is made.

And when you deposit money with one of our local banks it stays at that bank, funding our local lending.

All the service and attention a good local bank would give you from a major Midwest bank with assets of $13.8 billion.

Of course, just saying all this doesn't make it so.

But if we sound like the kind of bank you want, stop in and see us.

Chances are, we're just down the street.

County Government

The general information line for Washtenaw County is 994–2400. Many county offices are concentrated in two buildings in downtown Ann Arbor: the county courthouse at 101 E. Huron St. and the county administration building at 220 N. Main St.

Washtenaw County, one of the first counties in Michigan, was established in 1822 and fully organized by 1827. An agent of the state government, the county government carries out responsibilities of the state. But it also has independent executive and legislative powers.

The county has overlapping jurisdiction with the governments of the cities and townships within it. For instance, Ann Arbor has its own city charter and its own police force. Although the county sheriff's department provides law enforcement for the entire county, it usually does not do so in areas that have separate police forces. That means the county's presence is more visible outside the cities, in townships and other incorporated areas. The county does, however, prosecute all crimes, such as murder or arson, that fall under state law. County government also carries out state law by issuing marriage licenses, recording births and deaths, and conducting the circuit courts, which operate under state laws. The county funds departments that provide services to all citizens, such as the Human Services Department and the Department of Social Services.

Voting. Candidates for some state offices are nominated in August at party conventions. A statewide primary election is held in August for county, township, state, and judicial offices. In the primary, voters may vote for the candidates in one party only. The statewide election is held in November. Potential candidates for precinct delegates to the political conventions can file a petition with the county clerk. For more information call the county Democratic party headquarters (971–7999), or the county Republican headquarters (971–4622).

BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS. The chief policy-making body of county government. Members are elected to two-year terms. Their duties include the adoption of countywide ordinances; maintenance of county property and facilities; adoption of the annual budget for county government, including all county departments; apportionment of taxes for the operation of county government; and establishment of and appointments to county boards, committees, and commissions. For a list of county commissioners from Ann Arbor districts, see p. 22.

COUNTY ADMINISTRATOR, 220 N. Main St. 994–6451. Appointed by the Board of Commissioners, the county administrator, Larry J. Brown, is responsible for the overall management of all county departments, agencies, and offices. The county controller's office recently merged its operations with those of the general county administration. The county administrator assists the board with policy-making and acts as a liaison with other units of government.

COUNTY CLERK/REGISTER OF DEEDS, 101 E. Huron St. 994–1638. This combined office maintains official county records (births, deaths, marriages, divorces, military discharges), provides administrative services in the issuance of passports and naturalization papers, provides administrative assistance to the county, monitors conduct of elections, and maintains all county property records.

Marriage licenses are issued at this office. The cost is $20 ($30 for out-of-state residents), and a health certificate, available from local physicians and clinics, is required.

COUNTY TREASURER, 101 E. Huron St. 994–2520. The custodian of county funds, the treasurer receives all revenues (taxes and fees), invests county revenue funds, collects delinquent property taxes, collects inheritance taxes, and sells real estate on which taxes are unpaid.

DRAIN COMMISSIONER, 101 E. Huron St. 994–2525. The drain commissioner, Janis Bobrin, handles ecological problems such as pollution and storm water management and develops water and land use strategies for flood control and erosion control. The drain commissioner has jurisdiction over most outlying storm drains within the county and is responsible for preventing or abating storm drain pollution.

EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT. 971–1152 (business), 911 (emergency). This office coordinates the dissemination of vital information during emergencies, including severe weather, fires, floods, and spills of hazardous materials. Emergency Management serves as an advisory source to the Emergency Broadcast System, the county apex of which is WAAM Radio at 1600 AM. County residents should tune to this station for emergency information.

PLANNING COMMISSION, 101 E. Huron St. 994–2435. The planning director, appointed by a board of eleven commissioners, is Thomas J. Fegan. This office develops master plans for county land use and undertakes surveys of the economic, social, en-

Recycling and Trash Collection

PETER YATES

Recycle Ann Arbor does weekly pickups at all single-family homes.

Ann Arborites may have been startled recently to read that Mayor Liz Brater has declared a city "solid waste emergency." Ads in local media exhort residents and businesses to recycle their trash and threaten the imposition of a per-bag fee for refuse collection if they do not. The per-bag fee was avoided this year only when city council passed an across-the-board 6 percent cut in general fund allocations to city departments.

The "emergency" grew, over many years, out of a set of problems of the sort now faced by many American communities. The two existing sections of the Ann Arbor Sanitary Landfill are almost completely full. The first section, built without the protective linings now required in landfills, leaked toxic contaminants, and parts of the second were overfilled by the city in violation of a 1988 state consent decree. As a result, state approval for the final section of the landfill, "Phase III," has been stalled for several years. A decision should finally come this fall. Meanwhile, over the past year, the city has had to truck most of its trash to Browning-Ferris Industries' commercial landfill in Salem Township. Largely due to transportation and landfill expenses, the city's solid waste costs have doubled over the past three years.

Recycling is clearly the only way out. In May 1991, the city instituted weekly pickup of recyclables, on the same day as regular trash collection. Residents of single-family homes are now legally required to separate recyclables from other trash and set them out in the two totes the city provides. The police aren't poking through your trash—yet. City Solid Waste Director John Newman says that, for now, the city wants to encourage compliance "with a carrot instead of a stick."

Participation has been "very, very good" so far, says Ed Boucher of Recycle Ann Arbor, the city's recycling contractor—about 70 percent by one estimate. (Many neighborhoods approach 100 percent compliance, but student-populated areas lag far behind.) The city, one of the few nationally to do so, also provides apartment complexes with large central bins for recyclable collection. Collection for multi-family dwellings is being phased in over the next nine months, and a commercial recycling pilot program is underway, too.

Newspapers go in one tote. The glossy inserts that come with the paper are OK to include, but not other glossy material such as catalogs or junk mail. Telephone books and wet or yellowed newsprint are also unacceptable. Brown paper bags and small corrugated cardboard stuffed into brown paper bags also go in the newspaper tote. Pizza boxes are OK; cereal boxes are not (nor is any other gray or waxed cardboard).

Containers—glass, metal, and plastic—go together in the other tote. Rinse all containers; remove and dispose of all plastic lids. Labels can stay on glass, but must be removed from cans, which also must be flattened and shorn of their ends if possible. The only plastic containers currently accepted are milk, water, and detergent containers marked HDPE #2. No margarine tubs, yogurt containers, or motor oil bottles can be accepted.

Loose items that can be placed beside the totes include used motor oil (drained into a plastic jug) and car batteries. Household batteries (in small plastic bags) and large pieces of brown cardboard are accepted only at single-family homes, not at apartment complexes.

Violate any of the prohibitions listed above and you'll find your uncollected recyclables with a "quality control sheet" explaining what you did wrong. Simply fix the problem and put the items out again the following week. For more recycling information, call Recycle Ann Arbor at 971-7400.

Recycle Ann Arbor also operates a drop-off station at 2050 South Industrial Highway, open Wednesdays through Fridays from noon to 7 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The station accepts all curbside recycling items, plus office paper, aluminum foil containers, and scrap metal. (Check with the station manager before leaving scrap metal.)

The Ann Arbor Solid Waste Department (lower level, City Center Bldg., 220 E. Huron St., 994-2807) provides weekly trash pickup. Trash must be in bags or cans (thirty-gallon maximum capacity), with no more than fifty pounds of waste in each container. Quantity is currently unlimited, but this could change. Trash must be brought to the curb for pickup. (Persons with a physical handicap can arrange to have garbage containers carried to the street at no charge.)

Yard waste is collected between April 1 and November 30. To the confusion of some residents, it is collected by the city, along with household trash, and not by the recycling trucks. Grass and leaves can go in clear plastic bags or in trash cans marked with a green "compostable" sticker available from the Solid Waste Department (see address below). The city suggests leaving grass clippings on your lawn (where they reduce the need for fertilizer), using them for garden mulch, or starting a home compost pile. Brush and tree limbs up to six inches in diameter must be cut into three-to-four-foot lengths and tied into bundles no more than eighteen inches in diameter or fifty pounds in bulk.

Large items, including furniture and appliances, are collected once a week for a prepaid fee of $15 for four cubic yards. Payment can be sent to P. O. Box 8647, AA 48107, or taken to the solid waste office; call to arrange pickup.

Due to limited space, the city landfill at 4120 Platt Road now accepts waste from Ann Arbor residents only. Proof of residency (water bill or rent receipt) is required. Up to two cubic yards of residential mixed waste may be dumped at a designated area at no charge. Such landfill use is limited to once a month. Refrigerators and other large appliances may be dumped for a fee of $15 per piece. Tires, tree stumps, and most loads of building materials are prohibited.

Parking & Transportation

Parking

Surveys of potential downtown shoppers routinely reveal a perception that parking is tight in central Ann Arbor. In fact, two of the structures in the Main Street area, the Ann-Ashley and Fourth-William structures, are almost never full. They offer convenient access to Main Street and Kerrytown shopping.

Near the U-M campus the situation is more difficult. Public structures are often filled with students' cars, and few automotive experiences are more disagreeable than being trapped in a line of cars oozing through the Liberty Square structure on East Washington Street, which offers no way to tell whether it's full other than driving all the way to the top. Visitors' best bets may be the city structure on Maynard Street between Liberty and William, and the U-M structure on Fletcher Street next to the Power Center, both of which are attended.

Municipal Facilities. 994–2818. City parking lots and structures are designated by white signs with a large green P inside a green circle. There are 1,475 metered curbside spaces in the downtown/campus area and 3,810 off-street spaces in city lots and parking structures. About 2,300 of these are generally occupied all day by monthly parking permit holders (see below), and the number of available spaces will be further reduced this fall by renovation work on the Forest, Maynard, and Washington St.-Fourth Ave. structures. In the fall of 1991, the city plans to take bids on the expansion of the surface lot on Ashley Street behind Kline's Department Store from 77 to approximately 240 spaces. The Downtown Development Authority and city council Republicans had intended a new parking structure for this site, but Mayor Liz Brater and the council's new Democratic majority deep-sided that plan last spring. Spring 1992 will bring continued renovation work on the deteriorating Maynard Street and Forest Street structures. All spaces in the municipal parking system are regulated by the Transportation Department.

Parking meters cost $.40 an hour in structures, $.50 an hour on the street. Generally, meters need to be fed between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday. If you're used to parking free after 6 p.m., note that in August 1991, City Council extended meter hours late into the evening. Hours of operation are posted at each facility.

The fine for an expired meter is $3 if paid within two hours, $5 if paid within two weeks. After that, the cost jumps to $8 and can go as high as $18 if the ticket is ignored. Other penalties, including additional fines and auto impoundment, are invoked if a driver has six or more unpaid tickets. Fines for most other parking violations are $10 if paid within two weeks. For parking in a handicapped parking zone the fine is $75.

The Parking Violations Bureau, located on the first floor of City Hall, is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. There is a drive-through window on the north side of City Hall for ticket payment. Also, people who want to pay meter-expiration fines within the two-hour time limit during nonbusiness hours can go to the first floor of City Hall (open 24 hours), where there is a time stamp and a drop box.

There are a few quirks of the local parking system that users should be aware of. Backing cars into parking spaces is not allowed. It is illegal to park at a meter for longer than the number of hours the meter is set to measure. In the central business district, parking is not allowed between 3 a.m. and 6 a.m., to allow for street cleaning. Straddling two parking spaces can earn a ticket for "double parking." Parking more than 12 inches from the curb can also result in a ticket. The fine for all these offenses is $10 if paid within 14 days and $15 afterwards.

Metered spaces can be reserved for occasions such as weddings. Call 994–2707. The charge is $6 per bag per day for the first seven days. A deposit is also required: $100 for the first four bags, $10 for each bag over four bags; for commercial entities the deposit is $200 for one to eight bags, plus $25 for each bag over eight bags. Also, it is sometimes possible to obtain permission to park in illegal spaces.

Handicapped Parking. Restricted parking spaces in public and private lots are set aside for use only by vehicles with city or state handicapped permits or handicapped license plates. These spaces are commonly marked with blue signs showing a white symbol of a person in a wheelchair. Vehicles with handicapped permits or plates can also park in curbside loading zones and are exempt from having to feed meters. They are not subject to posted time limits or the maximum amount of meter time allowed at on-street parking spaces.

The Secretary of State (offices are at 2121 W. Stadium Blvd. and 2730 Carpenter Rd.) issues handicapped permits and license plates for the permanently disabled. An application, indicating the type of permit to be issued, must be completed by the applicant's physician. Pick up the application at either Secretary of State's office; it may be returned in person or by mail.

The city issues a temporary handicapped sticker of its own. It's available at the city clerk's office on the second floor of City Hall, and requires a physician's statement certifying disability. The sticker is valid only within the city limits, and isn't recognized by the U-M Hospitals complex—city personnel advise acquiring the state permit instead.

Parking Permits. 994–2707. There are 2,283 parking permits available that allow all-day parking in specific lots and structures in the city system, although they do not guarantee the availability of parking spaces. Permits cost $60 a month ($65 for nonresidents) and are sold on a monthly or semiannual basis. Permit parkers in some lots and structures need a key-card, for which there is a refundable $15 deposit. Reserved spaces (the purchaser can even pick the space) are available for $100 a month. Permits are issued on a first-come, first-served basis, and there is a waiting list for most facilities. (In June 1991, the waiting list totaled 800 for all facilities.) To get on a waiting list, simply call the number above. Application and initial purchase must be made at the Parking Operations Headquarters at 415 W. Washington (second floor). Permits can be purchased during the first and last weeks of the month (Mon.–Fri. 8 a.m.–3:45 p.m.), and on Fridays only during other weeks (11 a.m.–2:45 p.m.). Anyone can park in permit spaces after the posted hours of operation, except in reserved spaces. Some of the permit lots have no signs, but it's generally safe to park in them after 5 p.m.

University of Michigan Parking Operations, 508 Thompson St. 764–8292. University parking facilities are marked by blue and white signs that note restrictions and hours of operation. Most facilities allow parking only by permit, and permits are available only to Reality.

Myth.

It doesn't take longer to take the bus.

"Sure, buses can get you from one place to another. In about twice the time!" That's what most people think, until they actually time their travel.

For a typical commuter, the bus is almost as quick as a car.

By car: 1. Stop for gas. 2. Drive downtown through traffic and traffic lights. 3. Search for a spot in a parking lot or structure. 4. Trudge to work.

By bus: 1. Walk to the nearby bus stop and meet the on-time AATA bus. 2. Ride downtown without worrying about the traffic. 3. Get off within a block or two of work.

Total elapsed time for each trip: usually the same, within about five minutes.

Ask AATA where the nearest bus stop is and when the bus arrives. Then take a test ride and compare our performance. We're a lot faster than you think.

AATA Route and Schedule Information: 996-0400.

full-time permanent faculty and staff. Eligibility for permits, which cost $254 a year, is dependent on numerous criteria. Visitors to the university can purchase a daily permit for $4.50 (go to 508 Thompson St.), but it allows them very limited access to the parking facilities.

The U-M also has about 1,200 metered spaces on campus. There are two kinds of U-M meters. Most require permits for use. (Read the signs in a given lot to find out if it is a permit-only lot or not.) Permits are not needed to park at blue U-M meters. In some lots, the individual meters are being replaced with computerized dynameters. Meter rates are generally $.30 for 50 minutes. The U-M is in the process of forming its own parking enforcement division. University officers patrol the parking system, but still issue city tickets payable to the city.

There are three student parking lots, one at Hill and Division and two on North Campus: on Hayward and on Murfin. Permits for the 500 or so spaces are dispensed by lottery. Apply any time at Parking Operations, but note that the demand for spaces far exceeds the supply. Some spaces become available during the school year, and plenty are available during the spring and summer. Student permits cost $244 a year, but can be purchased as available throughout the year for proportionately less.

Transportation

Airports and Airport Transportation

Ann Arbor Airport, State and Ellsworth roads. 994-2841. The eighth-busiest airport in Michigan, with over 120,000 takeoffs and landings annually. Operating 24 hours, this municipal facility accommodates business, corporate, and private flights and provides air ambulance service, charter flights, and flight instruction. Repairs, service, fuel, and hangar rentals are available. The terminal building lobby has a 24-hour direct-line phone to 22 area hotels, cab companies, and aviation services. The airport is located south of the city, near the Briarwood business district. Access to downtown Ann Arbor is available by bus, taxi, limousine, or on-site car rental.

Detroit Metropolitan Airport. (313) 942-3550. "Metro" is a major national airport (almost 23 million passengers in 1990) offering regional, national, and international flights. It's a major hub for Northwest Airlines, and also houses thirteen other scheduled airlines and a number of charters and air taxis. Metro is located off I-94 at the Merriman Road exit approximately 25 miles east of Ann Arbor. For specific flight information, call the individual airlines or a travel agent.

The Merriman Road-Metro Airport exit off I-94 lets out onto Rogell Drive, which circles Metro's facilities. The International Terminal is the first one off to the right. Just past that turnoff, Rogell Drive splits into upper and lower levels. The upper roadway goes to departure/drop-off areas and the lower goes to the arrival/pick-up areas. The next building is the tall, concrete Davey Terminal (north terminal), which is solely occupied by Northwest. Just beyond that is the Marriott Hotel, and at the south end of the Rogell loop is the old turquoise L. C. Smith Terminal (south terminal), which houses many different airlines.

During the holiday seasons of Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's, and Easter, it's advisable to call Metro's Parking Hotline, (313) 942-3838, for traffic and parking conditions well in advance of your departure.

Parking facilities at Metro are not always well marked, so be sure you are driving into the type of parking lot (short- or long-term)

Jerry Perrine, Parking Enforcer

J. ADRIAN WYLIE

Jerry Perrine plays a mean Auto-CITE hand-held parking enforcement computer. A tall, slim man who wears the two-tone blue uniform of an Ann Arbor parking enforcement officer (they're not just meter maids anymore), Perrine's a whiz at electronic ticket writing. His fingers fly over the buttons, punching in the license number, the block he's on, and the violation, with all the skill of a concert pianist.

In fact, Perrine, twenty-eight, is a pianist. He used to play fairly regularly at the Heidelberg; now he works mostly at bars in and around Detroit, playing jazz and blues, mostly solo. He is also a published poet. His book, People Poems, "used to be for sale in Borders bookstore," he says proudly.

And when it comes to handing out tickets, which Perrine has been doing since March 1988, the poet has heard every excuse in the book from parking scofflaws. "It's always either two minutes or two seconds," Perrine says when asked what people say when they see him writing them a ticket. "They were just in there for two seconds. Or else they'll see you there writing a ticket and say, 'Oh, I was just going in there to get change.' We want to believe them, so we'll ask to see the change. If they've got it, that's fine."

Expired meters, say Perrine and parking enforcement boss Jim Stein, are not what really ticks off the department. "Tow-away zones and handicapped spaces," Stein says, are the parking offenses that get his goat. "I get real funny about people parking in handicapped spaces. That's like the eleventh commandment with me."

Perrine, a thoughtful man with a slight rural twang, agrees. "I'll see people all the time park on Main Street in a handicapped space to run in and get a cup of coffee. Then they come out and you want to ask them, 'How much did that cup of coffee cost you?' " The answer, if Perrine catches you, is $75—plus the price of the coffee.

And then there are people who try to park in tow-away zones. "I remember giving a ticket to a woman who had parked in a tow-away zone," says Perrine, "right underneath the sign with the P with the line through it and the picture of the wrecker. So I asked her if she knew she was parked in a tow-away zone. She said she thought the sign meant this was where the wreckers bring the cars that they've towed away!"

Stein's own favorite story of parking chutzpah happened about five art fairs ago, on Willard Street. "We had three or four wreckers down there towing away all the cars on that narrow street," Stein remembers. "Just clearing the whole thing out. I was standing there watching all this and—I'll never forget—I watched the wrecker pick up this one car and take it away, and there was a guy in his car waiting for them to move it so he could get the space. As soon as the wrecker was gone, he parked there!

"He said he'd seen what happened but he thought they must have had car trouble!"

But back to Jerry Perrine, the piano-playing meter man. As he walks along Ashley, he spots a silver Chevette parked at an expired meter in front of the Vale Float Center. He plays his hand-held computer and it spits out a ticket, which he tucks under the windshield wiper.

Just then, a slight man with curly red-brown hair comes springing out of the storefront nearest the offending Chevette. "I was just in there getting change," he says quickly, pleadingly. Perrine cocks his head toward the man, who holds out his open hand, the bright noonday sun glinting off the coins. He beats the rap.

you want. Short-term parking is $1.50 per half-hour with a maximum charge of $24 a day.

There are numerous long-term parking facilities, including the International Terminal Lot and adjacent West Lot ($2 first hour, $7 maximum per day, $42 maximum per week), the large parking deck in the middle of the circular Rogell Drive ($2.75 first hour, $6 maximum per day, $36 maximum per week), and the Long-Term Lots off Rogell Drive ($4.50 flat daily rate for remote lots, $27 weekly rate available). Valet parking for $9 a day is available off inbound Rogell Drive just past the traffic light (phone (313) 942–4865). There are four private lots (Airport Parking, (313) 729–3999; Park-N-Go, (313) 729–3999; U.S. Park, (313) 946–9360; and Airlines Parking, (313) 728–6066) with over 12,000 parking spaces on Middlebelt and Wickham roads with 24-hour shuttle service to Metro terminals. Cost is about $4–$4.50 per day. Renovations of the parking deck and main lot are slated for completion in August 1991. A total of 3,447,993 cars parked at Metro in 1990.

Commuter Transportation Company. (800) 351-LIMO or 763-8587 (U-M Michigan Union Ticket Office). Dark blue vans with airplane insignia on the sides (during busy periods they are large white buses with blue insignia) provide service seven days a week between Metro Airport and area hotels and motels (the Campus Inn, the Hilton, the Holiday Inns, the Marriott, the Sheraton, Weber's Inn, and others). Reservations are required for pickups. At least one van leaves from the U-M Michigan Union every hour on the quarter-hour from 5:15 a.m. to 11:15 p.m. (in summer after 8 p.m. the Union stop is made only by prior reservation). From Metro, vans leave both the north and south terminals every hour on the hour from 7 a.m. to midnight. The one-way trip takes about an hour. Tickets can be purchased at the Michigan Union Ticket Office (basement level) for $13 one way or $24 round-trip. At Metro, and at the Sheraton, the Hilton, Weber's Inn, or from the driver, tickets are $13.50 one way and $25 round-trip.

Bicycle Transportation

Ann Arborites do a lot of two-wheeled traveling. City surveys have found that well over half the city's residents own a bicycle, and that about half the owners report riding at least once a week. Even among the 60-and-over age group, a startling 20 percent classed themselves as bicycle riders in one survey.

It's possible to reach almost any part of the city on the marked network of street, sidewalk, and park bike lanes and bike paths. (See the map on p. 117.) The city has an official bicycle program and coordinator (call 994–2786), and makes periodic efforts to encourage bike commuting. Registration of bikes at the city clerk's office ($2.50 for a lifetime registration) is required.

The Ann Arbor Bus Depot (Buses)

Ave. (662-6986) rents bikes for any time period from an hour to a semester.

The city's new Bicycle Master Plan calls for "educating university students so that bicycle crashes involving [them] are reduced by 25 percent." Any driver who has braved the campus area during the school year will applaud the establishment of this probably utopian goal.

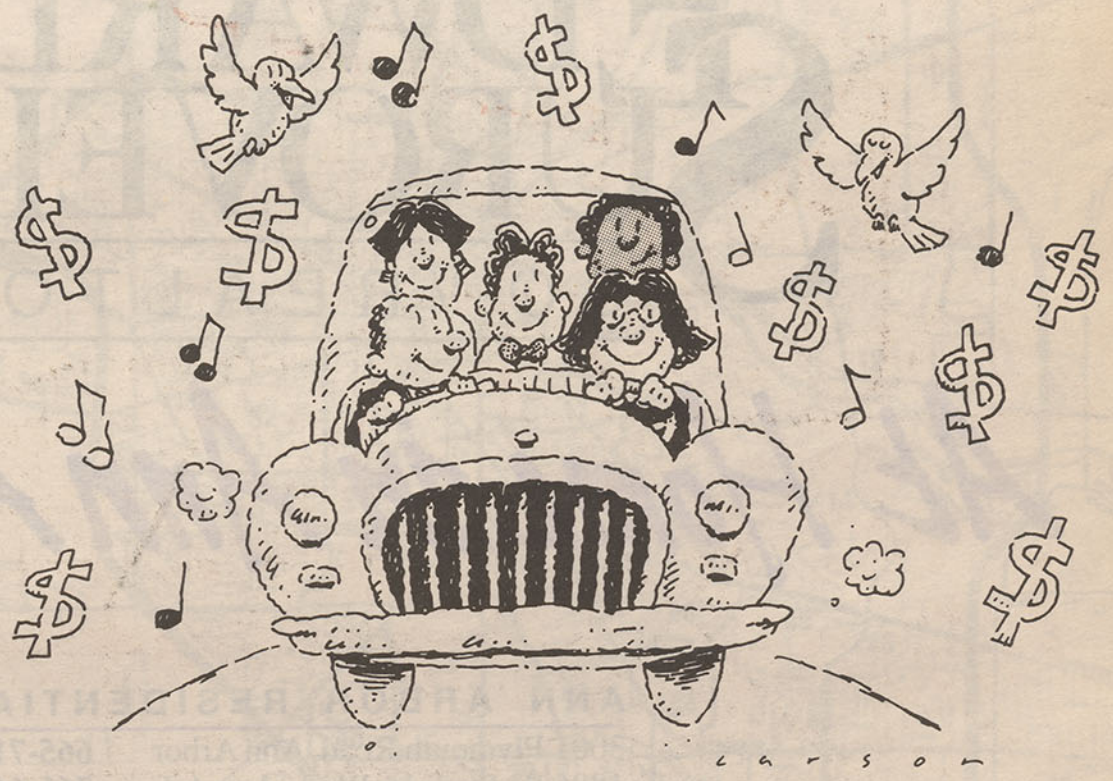
SAVE THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS A YEAR!



Driving alone is by far the most expensive way to get to work. Just take a typical example.

Imagine that you live 20 miles from work, a 40-mile round-trip commute.That's not very far. By joining a three-person carpool, you save $2217 per year. If you join a 15-person vanpool, you save even more: $2684. And if you drive the van, you commute for free. You can keep the $3326 it costs you to drive alone in your pocket, where it belongs.

Which raises a very interesting question. What could you do with an extra two or three thousand dollars a year?

Housing

The Ann Arbor Planning Department divides the city into fifty-two separate neighborhoods. Some are quite homogeneous, like the Allmendinger neighborhood between Main and Seventh north of Stadium, which consists almost entirely of postwar bungalows and ranches. More often they are diverse replicas of the city's own complexity, like the Northwood V/Vintage Valley neighborhood that combines U-M married student housing, research facilities, wide open spaces, and the expensive Vintage Valley subdivision with a nearby low-income public housing project. But for many people Ann Arbor is defined by its small-town core, with its neat turn-of-the-century houses, closely packed together but all different. Chance and intention have kept the wealthy and the poor largely secluded on the city's fringes, mostly invisible from day to day. The central city's housing stock plays a part in creating Ann Arbor's democratic, civic-minded flavor.

Neighborhood numbers are keyed to the map on this page. Home price information (current as of July 1991) was provided by Helen Corey of the Charles Reinhart Company and Dawn Foerg of the Edward Surovell Company.

For neighborhoods outside the city limits but within the boundaries of the Ann Arbor school district, see "The Suburbs," p. 47. For a detailed street map of both the city and nearby residential areas, see p. 86. For listings and maps of major apartment and condominium complexes, see p. 49 (apartments) and p. 57 (condominiums).

Demographic data are listed in symbols at the end of each neighborhood section. The information comes from the city's 1990 Household Survey; samples from some areas were small, so it is only an approximate guide. The key to the symbols is as follows:

Median Household Income

$10,000–$24,999	$
$25,000–$39,999	$$
$40,000–$59,999	$$$
$60,000+	$$$$

Percentage of Households with Children

0%–15%	C
16%–30%	CC
31%–45%	CCC
46%+	CCCC

Percentage of Renters

0%–24%	R
25%–49%	RR
50%–74%	RRR
75%+	RRRR

The City

1 & 2: Northbury/Chapel Hill & Orchard Hills/Maplewood

Before sewers were extended out Plymouth Road during construction of the U-M's North Campus in the 1950's, much of this area northeast of the Plymouth and Nixon intersection was the Bolgos family's farm and dairy. Today it's a well-manicured mixture of subdivisions, condominiums, and apartment complexes. Plymouth itself is lined with newly built offices, shopping centers, and research facilities.

The Northbury Condominiums lie east of Nixon Road just before the M-14 overpass. Because of Northbury's proximity to Clague Middle School and Logan Elementary, there are many children (the parents are often business professionals and U-M faculty and staff), as well as retired people. To the north lies the huge Windemere Park luxury apartment complex.

The Chapel Hill area east of Green Road is a diverse town house condominium and single-family community. With its neat lawns and recent renovation work, Chapel Hill prides itself on its upkeep. The turnover rate for residents is fairly high, reflecting a large percentage of U-M students, staff, and foreign visitors. A significant segment (about half) of Chapel Hill consists of senior citizens. The playground and open areas of adjacent Sugarbush Park are popular with Chapel Hill families, typically professional working couples.

The Orchard Hills, Maplewood, and Bromley single-family subdivisions make up the Orchard Hills/Maplewood neighborhood. Bromley's houses are slightly smaller, Maplewood's somewhat newer.

Orchard Hills/Maplewood is fairly stable, with many younger families with children. The family orientation makes for a very social atmosphere, with numerous block parties, cookouts, and even parades. The Orchard Hills Athletic Club on Yorktown has a pool that is a social hub for area members.

Prices for houses in the three subdivisions range from $110,000 to $210,000 and up. Median household income in 1990 was well above the citywide median. Located in Ann Arbor's Second Ward, the two neighborhoods have almost always voted Republican in local elections. Northbury children attend Logan Elementary; all others go to Thurston. Clague is the middle school and the high school is Huron.

near Nixon; and Traver Ridge off Traver Road. The terrain is hilly; many of the complexes abut a stream now mostly funneled into underground sewers. The Traver Lakes development includes single-family homes and some condos. Traver Vistas, north of Placid Way, is made up of single-family homes. After many years in the works, the 359 homes of the new Foxfire development north of Dhu Varren Road are now under construction.

The neighborhood has many open areas and ponds throughout; residents frequently walk or jog through what is still a peaceful area, despite recent development projects like the new Traverwood shopping center on Plymouth Road. Residents of Traver Ridge, Traver Lakes, and Traver Vistas all belong to an association that shares the clubhouse, pool, and tennis courts at the Traver Lakes condos.

Single-family colonials in Traver Lakes and Traver Vistas cost from $125,000 to $180,000, with a few new homes in the $200,000 range. Foxfire homes will sell for $170,000 to $230,000. Traver/Willowtree is the only Republican precinct in the solidly Democratic First Ward. Schools are Logan and Northside elementaries, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

$$, CC, RRRR.

4: Leslie Park/Arrowwood

The Leslie Park/Arrowwood neighborhood lies between Pontiac Trail to the west and Leslie Park and the Leslie Park Golf Course to the east. The hilly terrain is pocked with gravel pits left by a receding glacier 13,000 years ago.

The northern part of this neighborhood, along Dhu Varren Road, is not yet hooked up to the city's water and sewer lines and so remains largely undeveloped. The area's chief housing source is the 350-unit Arrowwood Hills Cooperative, a low-income town house complex built in the late 1960's.

With a wide racial and ethnic mix, Arrowwood has a diverse but cohesive atmosphere; members participate in many shared programs and have cooperative garden plots. Cash-poor U-M graduate students often join the co-op's long waiting list. A recently completed $2.9 million renovation project helped upgrade the co-op with new siding, insulation, and energy-efficient utilities in each unit. Children from Arrowwood are bused to King, Logan, or Thurston elementary schools; all others attend Northside Elementary. Clague is the middle school, and the high school is Huron. This neighborhood is solidly Democratic.

$, CCCC, RRR.

5: Huron Highlands

Huron Highlands is located on a high ridge overlooking the Huron River valley and the downtown skyline between US-23/M-14 and Pontiac Trail. The ridge is the northern portion of the Fort Wayne moraine, the foundation of the high bluffs that rise from the Huron north and west of Ann Arbor.

Single-family ranches built in the late 1960's are priced at $75,000 and up; despite their nearly identical appearance, they are in great demand among first-time home buyers. There are also a few quite substantial contemporary homes dotted throughout this neighborhood, which sell for as much as $220,000. There are few renters in the neighborhood, and families predominate.

Despite its proximity to the downtown area, Huron Highlands is a quiet, stable neighborhood. Residents tend to be either professional younger families or retired people who greatly value their seclusion. The neighborhood successfully banded together to prevent plans to fully pave Longshore Drive and fought against the development of a convention center on North Main across the river.

Children attend Northside Elementary, Clague Middle School, and Huron High. Huron Highlands, like Leslie Park/Arrowwood on the other side of Pontiac Trail, is located in the city's First Ward and consistently favors Democrats in local elections.

$$$, CC, R.

6: Northside

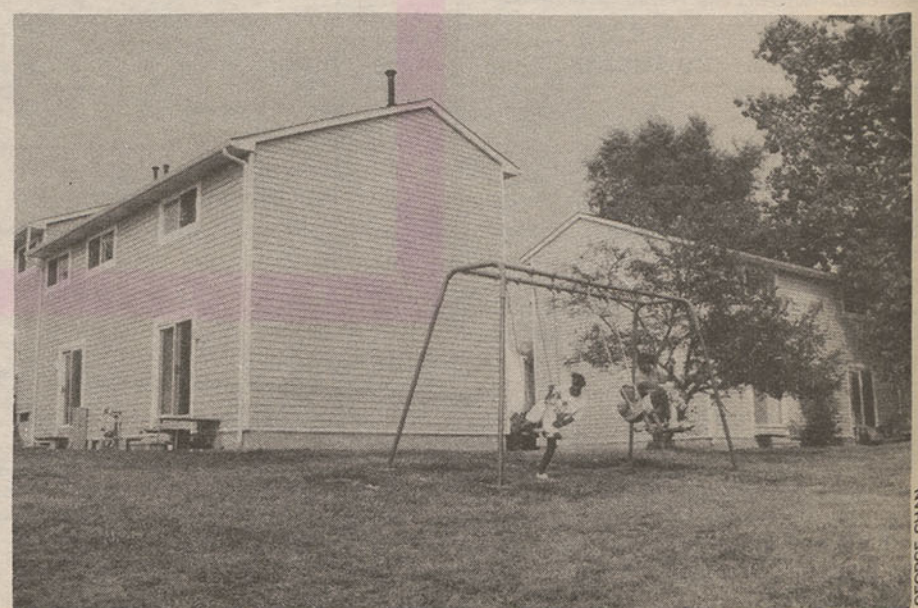
This area immediately north of the Huron River flourished in the 1830's but soon became a quiet backwater as the growth of the U-M focused development south of the river. Today, apartments and small, moderately priced ($80,000 and up) ranches share the neighborhood with some of the city's oldest surviving houses.

Many of the older houses are now rented, and there are also newer apartments, including the Shoreview complex on Kellogg and the Argo Park Townhouses on Longshore Drive. There is a moderate student presence in this pleasantly diverse area. One of the few stably integrated neighborhoods in Ann Arbor, this is politically a Democratic stronghold. Schools are Northside Elementary, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

$$, CC, RRR.

7: Broadway/Riverside

This neighborhood just north of the Huron River adjacent to Northside includes the spot where several Indian trails once met at a ford on the Huron River. That same clustering effect is visible today as Broadway, Plymouth Road, Maiden Lane, Wall Street,



GEORGE CHAN

Arrowwood Hills Co-op in Leslie Park/Arrowwood (4)

GEORGE CHAN

Salisbury St. in the Newport neighborhood (27)

Moore Street, Swift Street, and Pontiac Trail all converge near the Broadway bridge. Known as Lower Town in Ann Arbor's early days, the neighborhood contains the city's oldest commercial structure, the 1832 Anson Brown Building at Swift and Broadway (now the St. Vincent de Paul store).

Cedar Bend Drive, located near the crest of the Broadway hill, offers a spectacular view of the Huron River valley below and of the U-M Medical Center across Fuller Road. It follows one of the high river terraces left behind by the meandering Huron, which flows past Wall Street and Maiden Lane along Fuller Road. Extended river terraces just west of Fuller Pool, toward the U-M's North Campus farther to the east, border a pre-glacial lake bed.

Broadway hill distinctly separates the Broadway and Riverside areas. Located north of the crest, the Broadway area combines rental housing with older single-family houses on large, well-kept lots on and near Cedar Bend. There has been a recent increase in the rehabilitation of older homes, and more families with young children have moved into the area. Single-family homes vary from small ranches that start at about $80,000 to large, stately homes in the Cedar Bend area that are priced in the $250,000 range.

Apartments predominate in the valley to the south. Young professionals and U-M graduate and medical students, plus a small concentration of retirees, predominate in the Riverside complexes, which include the Island Drive and Medical Center Court apartments off Maiden Lane. Riverside, with its transient population, has much less civic activism than the Broadway area.

The high-rise Riverside Park Place condominiums are located at 1050 Wall Street along Riverside Park—the 1875 site of the Alber & Co. Blacksmith and Wagon Shop. The Riverhouse apartments facing Island Park were converted to condos about nine years ago. Broadway/Riverside votes solidly Democratic. Schools are Northside Elementary, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

$$, C, RRRR.

8: North Campus

The area south of Plymouth Road and west of Huron Parkway is dominated by the U-M's North Campus, a mixture of classroom and research buildings, dormitories, and apartments and town houses for married students. The hilly glacial land is quite manicured, but retains many woodsy patches.

The Huron River Plaza apartments and high-rise Huron Towers on Fuller Road augment the U-M's Baits and Bursley dorms and U-M married housing on Cram Circle and McIntyre to create a densely settled neighborhood dominated by students. Almost all of the residents in the North Campus neighborhood are renters. But the family housing gives this a very different demographic profile from the older student areas near campus. Here, 75 percent are family households and 43 percent of survey respondents have children.

Most of the few houses in the North Campus neighborhood were custom-built in the 1950's along Fuller Road and Glazier Way. They sell for anywhere from $150,000 to $400,000 or even more. The Orin White House, at 2940 Fuller Road across from Huron High, built in 1836, has a distinctive herringbone-patterned stone facade and is on the National Register of Historic Places.

Most North Campus children are bused to Angell, Logan, and Northside elementaries. Like other campus neighborhoods, North Campus is solidly Democratic, but turnouts tend to be low.

$, CCC, RRRR.

9: Northwood V/ Vintage Valley

Northwood V is a large complex of town houses for married U-M students. It has an international flavor and is full of young families. Vintage Valley is a subdivision made up of expensive custom-built homes where prices start at $250,000. The recently built Woodlands subdivision, located near Vintage Valley in the hilly, wooded area just north of Glazier Way, is even more expensive: custom-built houses are selling for $350,000 and up. The Oak Ridge Condominiums are located on Glazier Way.

Despite the vast economic differences, these adjoining areas share an overwhelming emphasis on family; in the spring 1990 survey of thirty-six households in the neighborhood, the Northwood V/Vintage Valley neighborhood recorded the highest percentage of households with children—75 percent—in the entire city. Children living in Northwood V are bused to Northside Elementary; other neighborhood children attend King. Clague is the middle school, and Huron is the high school.

Northwood residents considerably outnumber those in Vintage Valley (renters predominate heavily in the neighborhood as a whole), which probably explains why this precinct often votes Democratic—and why its median income is low.

REAL ESTATE MATTERS

How to Choose a REALTOR®

When buying or selling a home, you need a skilled person to help. How can you find the best one for you? Someone to trust, whose integrity and ethics are beyond question. A person you can really communicate with, in the initial stages and later when in serious negotiations. Someone with expertise in the task.

I suggest that you evaluate Realtors® for yourself — no one else can look out for your interests. Interview several agents before choosing one to work with exclusively. Some questions to ask:

How long have you been in the business? Do you work full-time, year-round in real estate? Are you a member of the Ann Arbor Area Board of Realtors®? (This group provides the only access to the Multiple Listing Service.)

What is your specialty? What geographic area? Are there any kinds of transactions you prefer not to deal with? Do you make referrals to other Realtors® who specialize in such matters?

Is there teamwork in the company? Will other agents help in an emergency — when you are away for a few hours or days? Do you inform each buyer of all appropriate homes, so that both buyer and seller have the best chance of connecting? Or are buyers pressured to select only from your company's listings (which makes more profit for the company, but doesn't serve the seller or the buyer)?

Is there real communication with the agent? Does he/she really listen to you, or just give speeches? Is there empathy with your needs, wants, and lifestyle?

Other considerations may be important to you. We can discuss them and decide whether to work with each other, or perhaps I can refer you to a trusted colleague. Please do not hesitate to call on me today.

sandy and silty loam soils in the area, which are part of the Defiance moraine, support large stands of oak, hickory, and other hardwoods.

Moderately winding streets are bordered by the manicured lawns of fifteen- to twenty-year-old single-family colonials that sell for $190,000 to $280,000. The Earhart Knolls homes, recently constructed off Glazier just west of Earhart, can cost $300,000 or more.

Farther north, off Green Road, is the 500-unit Greenbrier apartment complex and the Greenbrier subdivision. Colonial, Cape Cod, and tri-level houses line the wooded streets. Greenbrier houses cost from $145,000 to $175,000.

The large number of renters in the Greenbrier and the newer Woods of Earhart apartments depress somewhat the median income level of this upscale area, which is heavily Republican politically. Children attend King Elementary, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

$$$, CCC, RRR.

11 & 12: Earhart/ Concordia & Geddes Lake

Along Glazier Way on Ann Arbor's far eastern side are the heavily wooded Earhart, Earhart West, and Watershed subdivisions and the Geddes Lake co-op town houses. Built on hilly glacial terraces, these neighborhoods range from contemporary custom-built homes on big lots in natural settings to neatly landscaped town houses and condominiums. The heavy ground cover shelters a surprising amount of wildlife.

Most homes in the area are priced from $225,000 to $525,000 and range in age from new to twenty years old. The Geddes Lake units, across Huron Parkway from Huron High and due west of Waldenwood, sell for $70,000 to $99,000.

East of Earhart Road, in a wooded, hilly natural setting, are the Earhart Village Condominiums. They were built about twenty years ago in varying floor plans. A clubhouse and pool provide a focal point for residents, many of whom are prominent figures in the city and the U-M. The area is also home to two new luxury condominium complexes—the Heritage Ridge single-unit condos and Ridgemaar Square, just off Earhart Road.

The Watershed subdivision, south of Glazier just west of Watershed Road, features recently built single-family houses and condos. Adjacent Earhart West houses are about eight years old and slightly larger, costing $300,000 and up.

Not surprisingly, given the presence of the Glacier Hills retirement center, 29 percent of Earhart/Concordia's residents are over age sixty. This is solidly Republican territory. Schools are King Elementary, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

Earhart/Concordia: $$$$, CC, R.

Geddes Lake: $$$$, CCC, R.

13: Geddes/Arboretum

Once known for its oak and hickory forests, the Geddes/Arboretum area south of the Huron River is made up of large and stately older homes built in the 1920's and 1930's, along with some modern custom-built homes toward the river, a few fraternity and sorority houses, and some apartment buildings near the university that drive down the neighborhood's median income level. The majority of the neighbors are longtime residents, with some young families moving in recently. Geddes/Arboretum is home to many prominent U-M professors.

Houses are priced anywhere from $200,000 to $500,000 or more for the recently built contemporary homes on Riverview. This is one of the half-dozen most affluent neighborhoods in the city. Geddes is a swing precinct in the solidly Republican Second Ward. Schools are Angell Elementary, Tappan Middle School, and Huron High.

14: Ann Arbor Hills Area

This neighborhood includes the whole area west of US-23 and north of Washtenaw up to Geddes Avenue and Huron River Drive. Winding, heavily wooded streets characterize the western portion, located just north and east of Washtenaw Avenue west of its split with Stadium Boulevard. Here are situated the Ann Arbor Hills, Tuomy Hills, and Woodhaven Hills subdivisions. (Tuomy Hills is named for Cornelius Tuomy, a wealthy farmer whose children turned the family farm into a subdivision.) Homes range in price from $200,000 to $500,000. The architecture is varied, and many of the houses sit in isolated splendor on one-third to full acre lots.

Residents describe the neighborhood as friendly and quiet; neighbors are often seen walking along the shaded, winding roads. The mazelike streets are easy to get lost on. The Ann Arbor Hills area is home to a large number of U-M faculty and staff. Although it has a substantial segment of senior citizens, it has seen an increase in younger families over the last decade. New single-family houses currently under construction will expand Woodhaven Hills farther east on Overridge toward Huron Parkway. Huron Chase ia a new 50-unit condominium development on the parkway itself.

The area east of Huron Parkway includes large older single-family homes along Chalmers and Woodland Road, and the small Thornoaks subdivision, consisting of smaller, custom-built homes constructed in the 1950's and 1960's. Houses in Thornoaks are priced from $150,000 to $250,000.

Ann Arbor Hills is one of the city's wealthiest neighborhoods—a little richer than the older Geddes/Arboretum area to the northeast, and not quite as rich as the Ives Woods area to the west. Politically, it's one of the city's strongest Republican precincts. Schools are Angell, Burns Park, and King elementaries, Tappan and Clague middle schools, and Huron High.

$$$$, CCC, R.

15 & 16: Ives Woods & Burns Park

An older, established neighborhood, Ives Woods is edged out only by the Newport area on the northwest side for the distinction of reporting the highest median income in Ann Arbor. Older homes nestled within this neighborhood's tree-lined streets sell for $250,000 to as much as $500,000. Many families (37 percent) have children at home. Schools are Burns Park Elementary, Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High.

Just west of Ives Woods, slightly more modest homes mark the boundary of the Burns Park neighborhood. Moderately expensive single-family homes favored by academics are found in the eastern half, with student rental property dominating the area west of Packard. The North Burns Park area, north of Wells to Hill Street, also has a high student presence, although the majority of the houses remain family-owned. (On either side of Packard, though, the proportion of student housing drops off sharply as you leave the campus area.) Larger fraternity, sorority, and cooperative houses and apartment buildings blend surprisingly well with older houses occupied by longtime residents and families.

Fifty-nine percent of the residents in Burns Park are renters—which probably explains why what many in town think of as a posh faculty ghetto reports a below-average median household income relative to the city as a whole.

Houses in the Burns Park area sell for $125,000 and up—depending on who you talk to, perhaps as high as $350,000. While Ives Woods comprises one of the Third Ward's key swing precincts, Burns Park is solidly Democratic (and home to Democratic Mayor Liz Brater). Schools are Burns Park Elementary, Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High.

Ives Woods: $$$$, CCC, R.

Burns Park: $$, CC, RRR.

17 & 18: South University & Central Campus/ Medical Campus

A wide range of housing can be found in these student-dominated neighborhoods bordering the U-M's central and medical campuses. Generally, these are older neighborhoods, dating back to the late 1800's and early 1900's. In the 1960's, apartment buildings replaced some older homes before zoning restrictions effectively ended new construction near campus.

Sixty-nine percent of all households in South University are comprised of unrelated adults—the highest percentage in the city. The median household income here and in the neighboring Central Campus/Medical Campus neighborhoods is barely half the citywide average. (Central Campus/Medical Campus is also a popular student area; the 1990 survey turned up no home owners at all.) The city's survey of seventy-seven households in the two neighborhoods found a median annual household income of just $19,000—the second lowest in the city. The area votes Democratic, but turnouts are minuscule. The central and medical campus households surveyed didn't include a single person over the age of sixty.

$, C, RRRR.

19 & 20: Old Fourth Ward & North Central

The Old Fourth Ward and North Central areas sit side-by-side on the southern slopes of the Huron River valley—the Old Fourth Ward to the east, between Glen and Division streets, and North Central running from there to the Ann Arbor Railroad tracks just west of Main.

North Central doesn't appear often in city histories, reflecting its lowly status as a poor, working-class area suffering pollution from businesses that congregated along the Ann Arbor and Michigan Central railroads. Up until the passage of Ann Arbor's open housing law in the 1960's, North Central was also the heart of Ann Arbor's black residential area. These days, it houses a very diverse mixture of people, including city workers and retirees, U-M faculty and staff, professionals, and an increasing number of young families. Sixty-one percent of the households in the last city survey were renters.

Homes in the Old Fourth Ward vary greatly. There are nineteenth-century historic structures along North Division and many superb Victorian houses in the Kingsley area. These are interspersed with the squat brick apartment buildings that replaced many older houses in the 1960's. Today, over 86 percent of the households in the Old Fourth Ward are occupied by renters, mostly U-M students. The Old Fourth Ward has the lowest median income in the city—$15,000 in the 1990 household survey. Like Central Campus, this is a Democratic, low-turnout area.

Old Fourth Ward: $, C, RRRR.

North Central: $$, C, RRR.

21 & 22: Downtown & South-Central

Most of the Downtown area lies on a plain between the Defiance and Fort Wayne moraines. When the Huron-Erie lobe of the Wisconsinan glacier was in place 13,000 years ago, the Huron River was diverted to the west and flowed through the center of town toward Saline, leaving a flat lowland area in its path.

The first house in Ann Arbor, built in 1824 by one of the city's founders, Elisha Rumsey, was at the corner of Huron and First streets. As the downtown grew, it—and almost all other housing in the present downtown area—was demolished for commercial construction. It's only in the last decade that rehabbers have begun to rescue a few of the long vacant upstairs apartments in many downtown commercial buildings. More recently, they have been joined by a significant growth in owner-occupied housing, with construction of the Sloan Plaza condos on Huron and conversion of the Tower Plaza apartments to condos. There is also a handful of condos on top of One North Main. Downtown is home to quite a few U-M students living in old houses within a few blocks of the State Street edge of campus.

Overall, 52 percent of the area's households contain just one person—the second highest percentage found among Ann Arbor neighborhoods—and not a single survey respondent in 1990 had children at home.

In the South Central area, toward Hill Street, a bluff descends from the downtown area to Allen's Creek, a tributary (now hidden in a storm sewer) of the Huron River.

South Central is largely student housing: 86 percent of all households rent; 55 percent are shared by unrelated adults; and just 9 percent of the neighborhood residents are over age sixty. Median household income is low in both Downtown and South Central. Politically the area is divided between the First, Fourth, and Fifth wards and favors Democrats heavily.

23: Allmendinger

This neighborhood is bounded on the east and west by Main and Seventh streets, and on the north and south by Pauline and Stadium. Although a few houses date to the 1920's and 1930's, most were built after World War II. Single-family bungalows, small ranches, and a few story-and-a-halfs in the area range from $100,000 to $150,000. Home ownership is the norm here, and families are fairly common. The area is solidly Republican. Schools are Bach and Mack elementaries, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$$, CC, RR.

24: Old West Side

The Old West Side, much written about in city histories, has the distinction of being placed on the National Register of Historic Places, not just for its architecture, but for its overall historic character. A few of its houses are over 125 years old and can be seen in photographs taken in the mid-1800's. Most, though, are small Victorians with one or two finely crafted details. Many residents have painstakingly restored their homes, and there is an annual homes tour. With its modest yet beautifully individual homes and tree-lined streets, the Old West Side offers a much-sought-after small-town quality.

Part of the charm and character of the Old West Side is the mix of people—students, professionals, families, faculty, and senior citizens—who live comfortably here in the German-built Victorians, as well as in some newer two-story colonial and custom-built houses and scattered apartment buildings. Prices run anywhere from $90,000 to $200,000.

Overall, the Old West Side (like many Ann Arbor neighborhoods) is seeing an increase in the number of more affluent young professional families. The small student presence is concentrated around First Street in small apartment buildings. Owner and rental households are evenly split (the 207-unit Nob Hill apartment complex is unobtrusively integrated into this neighborhood).

Development in this neighborhood is always a hot issue; Old West Siders tend to fear that their quiet neighborhood might be overwhelmed by intensive building downtown. Plans have abounded for the property at the northeast corner of First and William, but none has been able to withstand the intense scrutiny of neighborhood residents and the Planning Department. (A parking lot expansion will eventually cover both this corner and the northwest corner of William and Main.) The Main-William-Packard area has also seen its share of proposals, but all that has appeared there are two holes in the ground, subsequently filled in.

Political precincts in the Old West Side consistently vote Democratic in local elections. Schools are Eberwhite, Bach and Mack elementaries, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

citizens' apartment building that towers over the northern edge of West Park, and Lurie Terrace, a subsidized senior citizens' building on its south side, 44 percent of the residents are over age sixty.

Until the city passed a fair housing ordinance in the 1960's, most of Ann Arbor's black population was concentrated in the Miller area and in the adjoining North Central neighborhood across the Ann Arbor Railroad tracks. Always racially heterogeneous, in recent years the Miller area has become more economically varied, as low-key young professionals and families found they liked the neighborhood's American small-town look and neighborly sociability.

This heavily Democratic neighborhood includes precincts in wards One and Five. Schools are Mack Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

26: Mack School/Sunset

Houses come in all sizes and shapes in this immensely varied neighborhood: big nineteenth- and early twentieth-century houses on Miller, modest ranches, and even prefab steel Lustron homes can be found in the area south of Sunset and east of Newport; prices start at $90,000. Secluded, custom-built contemporary houses north of Sunset cost $150,000 to $200,000 and up.

The neighborhood is marked by impressive hills on the Fort Wayne moraine. Hunt Park at Spring Street and Sunset offers a splendid view of the downtown area. Another notable landmark is the city's water treatment plant, high up on a hill on the south side of Sunset near Newport Road, which pumps water from the Huron River at Barton Pond to Ann Arbor residents. This is the city's highest point.

Mack School/Sunset is mostly comprised of owner-occupied households. The area votes solidly Democratic. Schools are Bach, Mack, and Wines elementaries, Forsythe and Slauson middle schools, and Pioneer High.

27: Newport

On the city's far northwest side, the spacious Newport area offers custom-built single-family colonials, ranches, and condominiums in an almost rural setting bounded by the Huron River on the north and east. Developed on former farmlands, these affluent subdivisions are dominated by family-minded professionals and business executives. Median income for this neighborhood is the highest in the city.

The Newport West Condominiums are off Newport just north of M-14 and adjacent to Bird Hills Park. Farther down Newport Road, near the Huron River, is the posh River Ridge subdivision. One-of-a-kind homes, set back off winding streets, sell for $230,000 to over $300,000. Large custom-built homes along Blueberry Lane and west of Newport are comparably priced.

Renters are rare to nonexistent in Newport, and it is located in one of the many swing precincts of the Fifth Ward. Schools are Wines Elementary, Forsythe Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$$$, CCCC, R.

28 & 29: Garden Homes/ Crescent & Haisley/ Veterans Park

These neighborhoods in the Miller, Jackson, and Stadium/Maple area are dominated by moderately priced ranches, Cape Cods, and small colonials. Some are less than ten years old; others have been around for half a century.

Garden Homes' bi-level and ranch houses are in the $90,000 to $140,000 price range. The Martin Acres subdivision, within the Hatcher-Saunders Crescent loop, has ranches and tri-levels for $90,000 to $125,000.

Home owners constitute 93 percent of this neighborhood's households. Schools are Wines Elementary, Forsythe Middle School, and Pioneer High.

The Haisley area ranches, like those in Garden Homes, run between $95,000 and $120,000. In the nearby Wildwood area between Dexter and Miller roads, two-story traditional houses sell for $110,000 to $160,000. Median income here is just above the city's average of $36,800.

Haisley is a politically diverse area that includes a solidly Democratic precinct east of Revena, two swing precincts, and part of a third swing precinct. Garden Homes/Crescent is the city's quintessential swing precinct. It has supported every council and mayoral winner since the 1982 redistricting—voting in the process for nine Democrats and six Republicans. Schools are Haisley, Bach, and Mack elementaries, Slauson and Forsythe middle schools, and Pioneer High.

side's gradual expansion away from the downtown core. Virginia Park is the eastern and older section, running from Crest to Glendale; Winewood/Thaler continues west from there to Stadium, where its western edge is lined with small commercial buildings.

The Virginia Park area has a lot of two-family duplexes, particularly on Bemidji Street. Most were built in the 1960's and sell for about $120,000 to $150,000. The newly constructed duplexes at the south end of Glendale start at $180,000. There are also older single-family homes and Cape Cods in this area that are priced from $90,000 to $185,000. Eighty-four percent of Virginia Park's households own their own homes.

In the city's latest survey, 59 percent of Winewood/Thaler's households were renters. Starter homes, ranches, and Cape Cods, along with a small number of duplexes, sell for $80,000 to $110,000.

32: Eberwhite Woods

Named for Eber White, an early farmer who helped fugitive slaves escape to Canada, Eberwhite Woods is one of the loveliest neighborhoods on the west side of town. It's made up of several small subdivisions, along with rental property in the Pauline-Arbordale-Northwood area.

Most of the houses in this area were built between 1915 and 1935. Rolling tree-lined streets are showcases for a variety of two-story traditionals. The smaller houses, which are rarely available, are priced around $110,000; larger ones sell for up to $190,000.

Dover Parkside, a subdivision along Dartmoor Street, was built in the 1960's by George Airey, who also developed subdivisions in the Dicken neighborhood. Houses are priced approximately in the $130,000 to $180,000 range.

Ninety-seven percent of the Eberwhite Woods households are home owners; 31 percent are seniors; and 30 percent have children. Most of this neighborhood is in a solidly Republican precinct, though its northeast corner is solidly Democratic. Schools are Eberwhite Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

33 & 34: Pauline/Stadium & Dicken

This flat area was farmed up into the early part of this century. Today, it is dotted with heavily landscaped subdivisions and a sprinkling of wooded areas near Pioneer High School and Greenview Park.

Most of the houses in the Pauline/Stadium neighborhood were built in the 1950's and 1960's. Ranches sell for $110,000 to $150,000 and colonials in the Meadowbrook Avenue area cost $150,000 to $175,000. There are two good-sized apartment complexes in this neighborhood—Stadium Apartments and Van Dusen Manor.

Families constitute 57 percent of the Pauline/Stadium households. Median income is close to the city's average. Schools for the Pauline/Stadium neighborhood are Eberwhite Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

Across Stadium to the southwest, in the family-oriented Dicken/Vernon Downs area, 97 percent of the residents own their homes. Houses vary from twenty-five-year-old ranches like those on Norfolk and Suffolk to the spacious ranches and two-story colonials in the Barnard Heights subdivision near Dicken School. The smaller ranches, many constructed by area builder George Airey, start at $95,000; prices in the area range up to $185,000. Median income is considerably higher than in nearby Pauline/Stadium, partly owing to Dicken's lack of apartment buildings. Both are solidly Republican areas divided between the Fourth and Fifth wards. Schools are Dicken and Lawton elementaries, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

35: South Maple

Located on the city's far west side, just east of I-94, this area is dominated by condominiums and apartment complexes concentrated in a dense cluster around the intersection of Pauline and Maple. Walden Hills, a recent condominium conversion, is just north of Pauline west of Maple. Across the road, a newer complex of contemporary condominiums on Pauline Court is set back behind a berm that makes the units barely visible from the road. Also off Pauline are the Park Place and adjacent Hillcrest apartments. Across South Maple, from the east, are the new 167-unit Surrey Park apartments, the Pine Lake Village Co-op, and the South Maple public housing project.

This area is in the Fifth Ward, with South Maple Road serving as the dividing line between a heavily Republican precinct to the east and a heavily Democratic precinct to the west. Elementary schoolchildren in Pine Lake Village are bused to Lawton School. Otherwise, schools are Dicken Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$, CC, RRR.

36: Lakewood

The city of Ann Arbor's westernmost subdivision is bounded by I-94, Liberty Road, and Wagner Road. Near the Fort Wayne moraine, overlooking the kettle-hole lakes of Dolph Park, the Lakewood neighborhood has a rare blend of residents—both professionals and blue-collar workers.

Older colonials and newer custom-built tri-levels and ranches (some built in the 1920's), border the wooded areas near First and Second Sister lakes; they sell in the $115,000 to $190,000 range. Smaller ranches that went up in the 1940's, 1950's, and 1960's start at $100,000. The recently constructed 360-unit Liberty Pointe condominiums are just west of I-94 on Liberty. Newly built homes in the Liberty Glen subdivision range from $160,000 to $200,000.

Lakewood is home to a number of U-M faculty and staff as well as retired people. The neighborhood almost always goes Republican at election time. Families are common in this neighborhood: 69 percent of the households surveyed in 1990 were families, and 31 percent had children at home. Schools are Dicken Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$$$, CCC, R.

37: Lansdowne

The Lansdowne subdivision surrounds South Seventh Street south of Scio Church Road. Its meticulously kept lawns and large, modern homes make it Ann Arbor's model of a classic suburb. Some newer streets still have the characteristic openness of a new suburb, but others are already lined with mature trees.

Lansdowne's families tend to be older than their neighbors in the newer Churchill Downs and Meadowbrook subdivisions. Houses are generally about twenty-five years old, although some date back to the mid-1960's and a few are newer. They vary from ranches, colonials, and tri-levels to traditionals, with prices ranging from $160,000 to $250,000 or more.

The Churchill Downs subdivision is west of Lansdowne and is made up of slightly newer and less expensive single-family ranch, colonial, and tri-level houses in the $140,000 to $180,000 price range. Like Lansdowne, it is popular with families.

The Meadowbrook Village apartments and Meadowbrook subdivision, built in the mid-1980's, are located on the west side of Ann Arbor-Saline Road just north of I-94. The houses are single-family bi-levels and ranches priced from $110,000 to $150,000. Occupants range from retirees to young families; there are few young children in the apartment complex. The Meadowbrook apartments feature unusual floor plans designed for unrelated people who live together: in two-bedroom units, both bedrooms have adjoining baths, and they sit at opposite ends of the apartment with common living areas in between.

Home owners dominate the neighborhood's demographics. Although Ann Arbor is disproportionately single and childless, Lansdowne is heavily dominated by families with children. Schools are Lawton Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High. Republicans refer to these Fourth Ward neighborhoods as their "'home run" precincts; they regularly show the biggest voter turnouts in the city.

38 & 39: Hidden Valley & Boardwalk

These neighborhoods, just north and east of Briarwood, have only a smattering of houses off Main Street, on Valhalla near Scio Church and on Golfview past Ann Arbor-Saline Road. Housing here is dominated by the 324-unit Hidden Valley apartment complex on South State and, off South Main, the 108-unit Burlington Woods townhouses.

In the city's last household survey, 100 percent of the households were renters, 70 percent were single-person households, and only one household surveyed had children. Median income was slightly below the city average.

$$, C, RRRR.

40 & 51: Cranbrook & Briarwood

These neighboring areas were once dense woods and open fields. Since Briarwood's completion in 1974, they have been transformed into a profusion of commercial, office, and residential development.

As recently as the city's 1986 household survey, the Cranbrook senior citizens' tower was the only housing in this area. But the construction in 1987 of the roughly 200 apartments and town houses in Woodland Meadows, located at the corner of Main Street and Ann Arbor-Saline Road, marked the beginning of an apartment boom in the neighborhood. Four more large residential projects followed, most recently the 139-unit Brookhaven Manor luxury senior development. In all, the area has added well over 1,000 apartments in just four years.

All the area residents questioned in the city's 1990 household survey were renters, most of whom lived alone. The area's previous concentration of Democratic voters appears to have been diluted by the infusion of new luxury apartment dwellers. Schools are Pattengill and Bryant elementaries, Slauson and Tappan middle schools, and Pioneer High.

Cranbrook: $$, CC, RRRR.
Briarwood: $$$$, CC, RRRR.

41: Woodbury Gardens/ Rosewood/Jewett

Moderately priced houses built in the 1940's and 1950's are mixed here with modern apartments. The Woodbury Gardens complex features a clubhouse and one-, two-, and three-bedroom apartments and town houses. The complex takes its name from the U-M Botanical Gardens, which were located in the Stadium/Iroquois area from 1915 until their move to Dixboro Road in 1959.

This area's western border along South Industrial is home to numerous small commercial and industrial businesses that spill over onto the western portions of Rosewood and Jewett streets. Along the eastern ends of the tree-lined streets there are single-family ranches and small Cape Cods that sell for $75,000 to $105,000.

Sixty-eight percent of households are renters, and 32 percent have children at home. The neighborhood falls within a swing precinct in the Republican Fourth Ward. Schools are Bryant/Pattengill and Burns Park elementaries (Burns Park for Iroquois Place residents only), Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$, CCC, RRR.

42: Georgetown/Pine Valley

These two subdivisions are southwest of Packard Road and stretch across Eisenhower Parkway all the way to I-94. Single-family houses in these areas are a mix of tri-levels, ranches, colonials, and Cape Cods.

The ranch houses that dominate the Pine Valley neighborhood north of the Georgetown shopping center are priced from $120,000 to $170,000. Georgetown's homes, to the southwest, are somewhat larger and sell for $120,000 to $190,000. The 164-unit Pine Valley apartments and town houses and the 168-unit Spruce Knob apartments are also located in this neighborhood.

Sixty-three percent of these households are owner-occupied, 61 percent are families, and 32 percent have children at home. Schools are Pattengill and Bryant elementaries, Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High. Twenty-three percent of the residents are over age sixty. Median household income is high, despite the presence of the large apartment complexes.

Both Georgetown and Pine Valley subdivisions have winding, tree-lined streets. Georgetown has the advantage of a public golf course, a private pool, and a tennis court. Functioning as Georgetown's social hub, the country club heightens the neighborhood's strong sense of cohesiveness; many residents feel that Georgetown is one of the most social neighborhoods in Ann Arbor. Politically, it ranks close to Lansdowne as a Republican stronghold.

$$$, CCC, RR.

43 & 44: Pattengill/St. Francis & Kimberly Hills

Southeast of the Packard-Stadium area, on what was once prime farmland, are a number of neighborhoods built shortly after World War II and on into the 1950's and 1960's.

The Pattengill/St. Francis neighborhood is fairly evenly divided between renters and home owners in the Arbor Hills apartments and the Ann Arbor Woods apartments and subdivision. The older and smaller bi-level and ranch houses in this area start at $110,000, with newly constructed houses selling for as much as $250,000. The Nature Cove condominiums are located at the end of St. Francis Street. In the most recent household survey, median household income was very close to the citywide average.

In Kimberly Hills, 82 percent of the households own their residences. Fully 82 percent of the households are families, and 50 percent have children at home. Retirees represent 14 percent of the residents. New and old houses of varying architecture occupy tree-lined streets. Older homes are in the $150,000 to $225,000 price range. Some newly built houses along Gladstone run about $200,000 to $250,000. Nearby, a 134-unit upscale apartment complex, the Ponds of Georgetown, was recently constructed across Packard Road from the Georgetown Mall.

These are Republican areas in the politically split Third Ward. Schools are Bryant/Pattengill elementaries, Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High, except that children living on Manchester and Colony attend Allen Elementary and Huron High.

Pattengill/St. Francis: $$, CC, RR
Kimberly Hills: $$$$, CCCC, R.

45: Allen School/Buhr Park

This neighborhood is bounded by Packard on the south, Platt Road and Huron Parkway on the east, Washtenaw to the north, and Manchester to the west. It is the home of Buhr Park, with its much used swimming pool, and Cobblestone Farm.

Houses, which are generally on gently rolling terrain, range from tiny brick-trimmed frame ranches built after World War II ($90,000 to $120,000) to large colonials and tri-levels built in the 1960's that can sell for as much as $165,000.

The Allen School/Buhr Park neighborhood lies in the Third Ward and includes the seventh and part of the sixth precinct, both of which usually vote Republican. Families are numerous. Schools are Allen Elementary, Tappan Middle School, and Huron High.

$$$, CCC, R.

46: Forestbrooke/ Pittsfield Village

This heavily settled neighborhood is bordered by Huron Parkway, Platt, Packard and Washtenaw roads, and US-23. The northern Washtenaw Avenue border is packed with commercial businesses.

The two-, three-, and four-bedroom town houses along and off of Pittsfield Boulevard were built in 1943 as a self-contained new rural village. McKinley Properties took over the 422-unit complex three years ago, fixed up the aging units, and changed its name from Pittsfield Village to the Village Townhomes. McKinley is now selling off units to individual owners as "market rate co-ops."

West of Pittsfield on the streets between Platt and Parkwood is the Darlington subdivision. Small starter homes (Cape Cods, ranches, colonials), some of them fifty years old, sell in the $65,000 to $90,000 range. Forestbrooke, the twenty-seven-year-old area east of Pittsfield, has a mixture of ranches, colonials, Cape Cods, and tri-levels going for $90,000 to $135,000. The many children in the area enjoy a neighborhood pool.

Recent city surveys have shown a strong shift toward home ownership here as the Village Townhomes sell off. Fully 80 percent of residents are now home owners. This neighborhood lies in swing precincts of the politically mixed Third Ward. Schools are Pittsfield Elementary, Scarlett Middle School, and Huron High.

$$$, CCC, R.

47 & 48: Brown Park & Scarlett/Mitchell

Young families find this area on the far southeast side of town appealing; the prices are right, and shopping and schools are nearby. Small three-bedroom ranches in both areas, built in the 1950's and 1960's, range in price from $65,000 to $100,000. A few two-story colonials in the Scarlett/Mitchell area, built in the 1960's, cost between $85,000 and $155,000.

The Brown Park area has a higher percentage of renters (65 percent) than the Scarlett/Mitchell area (37 percent). The difference is due to the 281-unit Mill Creek Townhouses on Birch Hollow east of Stone School Road, and the 112-unit Homestead Commons apartments off Eisenhower near Packard Road.

In the Scarlett/Mitchell area, the Colonial Square Cooperative, on Wolverine and Williamsburg off Platt Road, offers rental town house units that are shared by both professionals and blue-collar workers. Colonial Square has a higher initial member buy-in fee than most other co-ops in town, but it also has the lowest rents. With one-bedroom units renting for under $200, it's no surprise that the close-knit co-op traditionally has a long waiting list.

Both neighborhoods sport large numbers of families and a moderate contingent of seniors as well. Median household income is below the citywide average in both neighborhoods.

Scarlett/Mitchell is a predominantly Democratic area that occasionally supports Republicans, while Brown Park is a former Democratic stronghold that shows signs of becoming a marginally Republican precinct. Schools are Mitchell Elementary, Scarlett Middle School, and Huron and Pioneer high schools.

Brown Park: $$, CCC, RRR.
Scarlett/Mitchell: $$, CCCC, RR.

49: Bryant

The Bryant neighborhood, just off Ellsworth and Stone School roads, is built on open and slightly rolling terrain, with young trees taking hold on many of the streets. The neighborhood is almost entirely made up of the Arbor Oaks subdivision (formerly known as Stonybrook) along Champagne off Stone School Road and the Forest Hills and University Townhouses co-ops that sit north of Ellsworth Road between Stone School and Platt roads. All three developments were built in the late 1960's and early 1970's as federally supported low-cost housing. Arbor Oaks houses are small two- and three-bedroom ranches, most without basements, that sell for $40,000 to $65,000, making them the least expensive single-family homes in the city. Median household income is low for Ann Arbor, $26,000 in 1990.

The city's third-highest concentration of children is found here: 59 percent of the surveyed households have children at home. Schools for this heavily Democratic area are Bryant/Pattengill elementaries (Braeburn Circle children are bused to Allen Elementary), Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$, CCCC, RRR.

50: Research Park/ Pheasant Run

The Research Park/Pheasant Run neighborhood lies across Stone School Road from the Bryant neighborhood. It is an intensely research- and commercial-oriented area, with a single residential complex. The 472-unit Pheasant Run apartments, just south of I-94, house 100 percent of the neighborhood's residents. Median income is average.

51: Cranbrook & Briarwood (see 40)

52: Abbot School

This neighborhood lies on the far west side of town in the V-shaped area formed where M-14 and I-94 converge; Maple Road is its eastern edge. It includes the north end of the Stadium/Maple commercial strip, older homes south of Dexter Road, and the Hollywood Park subdivision to the north.

In Hollywood Park, off Maple along Hollywood and Sequoia Parkway, most of the houses are single-family two-story colonials, Cape Cods, ranches, and tri-levels, costing between $100,000 and $150,000. Farther west, out Dexter Road, houses come in a variety of ages and styles and sell for $70,000 to $125,000. South of Dexter Road just east of I-94 is the recently completed 320-unit Arbor Landings apartment complex. The new Kelly Green condominiums (no pun was intended) are on Miller Road just east of M-14.

The Abbot School neighborhood is largely families—75 percent in the most recent survey. This neighborhood is one of the Fifth Ward's solidly Republican strongholds. Schools are Abbot Elementary, Forsythe Middle School, and Pioneer High.

The Suburbs

Ann Arbor is still the demographic giant of Washtenaw County. With 109,592 residents in the 1990 census, it's home to 39 percent of the county's population. But growth is spilling over the freeway loop that marks the city's political boundary, and that dominance will inevitably dwindle as the county enters the twenty-first century. Already, the fastest population growth is occuring in nascent suburbs beyond the city. While the number of Ann Arbor residents increased minimally in the 1980's, the once wide-open townships surrounding the city have skyrocketed in population: according to the new census figures, Pittsfield Township has seen a 36 percent increase in population since 1980; for Ann Arbor Township the figure is 38 percent; and for Scio Township the gain is a whopping 70 percent. Other nearby townships have experienced similar gains.

Ann Arbor Township/ Western Superior Township

These areas north and northeast of the city are thinly settled with expensive homes on large, semi-rural lots. That low density development seems to suit existing residents just fine, but it's by no means clear that they can indefinitely resist pressures for more intense settlement, given their proximity to freeway access and to the burgeoning western Wayne County suburbs of Detroit. Ann Arbor Township is already home to two huge office parks on Plymouth Road west of Dixboro: the Ann Arbor Technology Park and Domino's Farms, the sprawling, Frank Lloyd Wright-influenced headquarters of Domino's Pizza. On land north of its Earhart Road headquarters Domino's Farms hopes to construct a neighborhood of million-dollar homes, named the Settlement; prospective buyers would be able to commission personalized designs by an architect chosen from among an internationally known group. The plan still faces a number of legal and environmental hurdles, and so far construction has begun on only one home, for Domino's founder Tom Monaghan—and even that is on hold pending a planned downsizing.

The hundred-home Tanglewood community is located near the split between Plymouth and Ford roads. Recently built multi-story contemporary dwellings there sell in the $250,000 to $500,000 range. The nearby hamlet of Dixboro has a small core of historic homes; they rarely come on the market, but one that did in 1990 sold for around $150,000. Smaller and newer Cape Cods on Dixboro's side streets sell for about $115,000.

South of Dixboro and the tech park are three major new residential developments. Laurel Gardens is a luxury condo development with units in several different sizes including some two-story spaces. Farther south, near the intersection of Dixboro and Geddes roads, are the Arbors condominium project and the large Village Green apartment complex.

Off Geddes Road, private drives wind away to the carefully isolated riverfront retreats of the wealthy. The new Towsley Farms development abuts Geddes Road itself, with homes in the $450,000 range. Geddes Glen, a new subdivision of luxury homes, offers units starting at $500,000. Farther north, off Gale Road, is the retreat-like Matthaei Farms development, with homes starting at $265,000; building sites are also available.

Schools for this area are Logan and King elementaries, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

Pittsfield and Lodi Townships

South of Ann Arbor, the Briarwood area boom is moving out into Pittsfield Township. Big office parks have sprung up on State Road south of I-94, while Ann Arbor-Saline Road has added two huge discount stores, Meijer and Target, in the last two years. Just south of Meijer is the new Oak Meadows condominium complex. Off Oak Valley Drive, a new road connecting Ann Arbor-Saline and Lohr roads, lie the Weatherstone condominiums and the sizable colonial homes of the Briar Hill subdivision, which run from $190,000 to $295,000. Two small developments are under way off Waters Road west of Ann Arbor-Saline Road, and more major projects are in the works between Ann Arbor and Saline.

Farther west in Pittsfield and neighboring Lodi townships, settlement remains sparse. Dotted with ranch houses and the occasional horse farm, the dirt roads in this part of the county look much the way they did two or three decades ago.

Large areas of Pittsfield and Lodi townships are served by the Saline school district. Students living in western Pittsfield (west of US-23) and Lodi who attend Ann Arbor schools are assigned to Lawton and Bryant elementaries, Slauson and Tappan middle schools, and Pioneer High.

East of US-23, Pittsfield Township is rapidly filling in with mostly modestly priced housing and apartment complexes. This area has come to serve as a sort of bedroom community for an increasingly hard-to-afford Ann Arbor, as well as Ypsilanti and points east.

The subdivision near Golfside and Ellsworth roads is mostly composed of small single-story ranches, with a few large new houses mixed in. Prices range from $120,000 to $180,000. Homes along Golfside Road overlook the Washtenaw Country Club golf course. The new University Palisades subdivision off Ellsworth between Carpenter and Golfside roads offers ranches, colonials, and split-colonials, priced from about $140,000.

The Carpenter School neighborhood between Washtenaw Avenue and Packard Road east of Carpenter Road was one of the first parts of this area to be built up after World War II. Some streets are still unpaved, and the homes are mostly small frame structures and ranches that sell for $90,000 to $150,000. Farther south and east are smaller new developments and many apartment buildings.

Elementary schoolchildren are bused to Carpenter, Angell, Mitchell, Allen, and Pittsfield schools. The middle school is Scarlett; the high school is Huron.

Scio Township

This township directly west of Ann Arbor is bisected by Jackson Road, a fast-growing industrial and retail corridor. North of Jackson Road, major development is centered in the heavily rolling terrain near the Huron River. The River Pines and Timberwood subdivisions off Huron River Drive near Wagner Road offer many homes that have sold for upwards of $300,000. Away from the river, the Pakridge Estates project, under construction off Wagner Road north of Miller, includes plans for homes in the same price range. South of Miller on Wagner, homes in the new Scio Hills development sell for $215,000 to $265,000. Scio Hills homes, freely embellished with details culled from classic design, are great examples of the retro-nuevo tendencies of contemporary home design.

Older exurban subdivisions and individual houses are clustered on or near Dexter and Miller roads. These are mostly ten to fifteen years old and display a variety of building styles. Two homes in the area recently sold in the $160,000 to $170,000 range, but the variety of structures in the area makes generalization difficult.

Scio's southern half is less thickly settled. Individual developments dot the landscape, often situated atop one of the rolling hills that cover the area. The Uplands of Scio Ridge off Wagner Road north of Scio Church Road offers homes from $210,000 to about $375,000; lots are also available. Two more major projects are Saginaw Hills, on Liberty west of Wagner Road, and Saginaw Green, off Park Road near Zeeb. Plans call for over 300 substantial family dwellings in a variety of styles, with prices ranging from $225,000 to $350,000. Farther out, Scio's still-numerous dirt roads are dotted with individual country houses large and small.

The Parkwood condos, under construction on Zeeb Road between Jackson and Park, are projected to sell for roughly $160,000. Smaller housing complexes (some with small older homes under $100,000) line Jackson Road, interspersed with strip centers and light industrial buildings. A major reservoir of affordable housing is Scio Farms Estates, a mobile home park off Jackson Road. Altogether, 853 sites have been filled since it opened in 1986. Homes resell at $25,000 to $65,000, and lot rents start at $245 a month.

Elementary schools for northern Scio Township are Abbot and Wines; students living south of I-94 attend Lakewood and Lawton. Middle schools are Forsythe and Slauson and the high school is Pioneer.

Barton Hills/ Northfield Township

Barton Hills, an enclave of 123 households on the north shore of the Huron River, is the most exclusive and expensive community in the Ann Arbor area. Thanks to its secluded location and semi-private legal structure, it stays out of sight and largely out of mind for most Ann Arborites.

Barton Hills was originally planned as a preserve of executive mansions by Detroit Edison, which in the 1920's laid out the beginnings of the community on land it owned north of Barton Dam. Today, Barton Hills is legally a village, but its streets and shared facilities are owned by a private home owners' association. As a result, Barton Hills is legally off-limits to outsiders; large signs at the village entrance on Whitmore Lake Road announce "no thoroughfare." Those with business in the village may enter, and membership in the magnificent Barton Hills Country Club is open to anyone with money to join and a year to spend on the waiting list.

Most of the village's formidable mansions, often in the English Tudor and cottage styles, were constructed during the 1930's. Architect-designed modernist showpieces from the 1950's and 1960's are also common, and a small amount of construction continues even today. The heavily wooded lots cover several acres each. Home prices range from $300,000 to $800,000.

Despite their close proximity to downtown Ann Arbor, the portions of Northfield and southern Webster townships north and west of Barton Hills remain almost wholly undeveloped. Owing in part to residents' resistance to development, the northern reaches of Ann Arbor have been the last to fill in with housing, and virtually none has spilled over into the adjoining townships. Housing here for the most part is limited to farm houses. Only a small number of these remain in the Ann Arbor school district, and they tend to turn over quickly when they do become available.

Schools for Barton Hills and the northern townships are Wines Elementary, Forsythe Middle School, and Pioneer High.

Rents and amenities at 108 apartment complexes. Complexes are grouped by location: central or outlying (see map, p. 51). The central area is considered to be within walking distance of either downtown or one of the two U-M campuses.

2nd Generation

Twenty-two years ago my parents sent me to Jack and Jill because they knew it would be a nurturing, secure, and educational environment for me.

Now, twenty-two years later, my wife and I have chosen Jack & Jill for our daughter Anna. It is much easier to concentrate on our work when we know Anna is in good hands. Thank you Jack & Jill.

Pound
children's center
House

The University of Michigan Pound House Children's Center is located in a cozy, big house on the corner of Hill Street and East University near the U of M campus.

Because the program is sponsored by the U of M International Center, it has a unique multicultural character—one-third of the children are from other countries.

"The program is great. The classes are small and the teacher/student ratio is low so that each child receives individual attention every day. The teachers and the program director are always there if you need or want to talk to them."

Pound House offers a developmentally appropriate program for children 2½ to 5 years of age. The curriculum reflects an understanding of how young children learn: from the concrete to the abstract, from activities experienced and information received in a meaningful context.

Pound House has been accredited by the National Academy of Early Childhood Programs since 1987.

Please call 764-2547 to arrange a visit to the Center and to discuss your child's education and care with the Director.

Ann Arbor also has several hundred smaller licensed day-care homes. A few of these care for up to a dozen children, but most house six or fewer. For information on day-care homes, waiting lists at day-care centers, and advice on choosing the best child care, contact the nonprofit Child Care Coordinating and Referral Service at 2454 E. Stadium Blvd., AA 48104, 971-5460.

For older children, all of the public elementary schools in Ann Arbor offer before- and after-school care for children in grades K–5. At Burns Park, Lawton, and Pattengill schools, programs are operated by Community Education, 761-7101. For information on programs at other locations contact each school individually. Five private schools, Emerson, Go Like the Wind!, Michelle Norris Montessori, St. Francis, and St. Thomas, also operate extended-hours programs.

For children ages 8–17 with developmental and physical disabilities there is an after-school program at High Point Center, 1819 Wagner Rd. Call Janet Hawkins, 434-6238.

To locate a child-care center on the map on p. 65, use the number and coordinates at the end of each listing. For example, the notation 47, H8 at the end of the listing for All Nations Nursery and Child Care indicates that the center is represented by the number 47 on the map, and is located at the intersection of column H and row 8.

Drop-in indicates that drop-in child care is available.

TT indicates that children must be toilet trained prior to enrollment in the program.

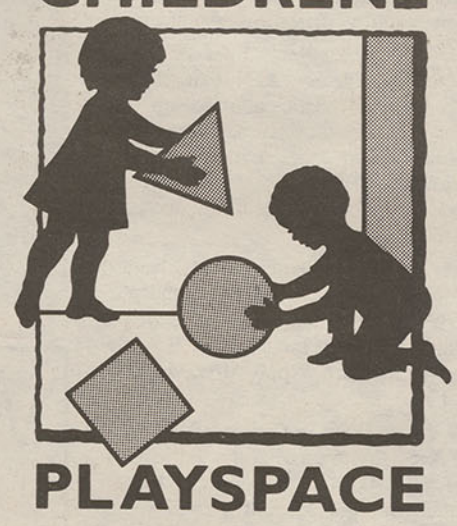
CHILDREN'S PLAYSPACE



EXPANDED PROGRAMS

▶ Three fenced play-yards for children of all developmental levels.

▶ On-site parking has been expanded for greater ease in drop-off and pickup.

ADDITIONAL STAFF

▶ Optimal group sizes are ensured.

▶ The continuity of staff at Children's Playspace, a crucial element in providing a warm, nurturing environment for children, is maintained.

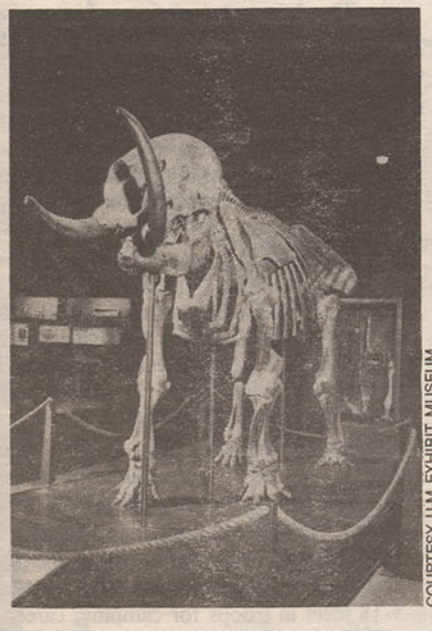
Fun with kids: a parents' guide

Ann Arbor offers a wide range of fun and interesting things to do with children. Below are a few must-sees for parents looking to entertain themselves and their kids at the same time. The emphasis is on family adventures that are attention-provoking, cheap, new and exciting, and easy to do together.



COURTESY U-M EXHIBIT MUSEUM

The U-M Exhibit Museum is a great place for kids of any age—it's free, large, and usually filled with other noisy kids. Dinosaur bones, Indian artifacts, and life-sized stuffed animals fill this spacious, multi-story domain.

Children rarely fail to find the mundane within the many displays. My son was fixated on a miniature John Deere tractor that he wanted to take home for his own collection. Other popular attractions include the fourth-floor planetarium shows (age five and above in certain time slots), all the dinosaur models, and the transparent human body.

Parking is available in the U-M's Fletcher St. structure. See the Libraries and Museums section, p. 141, for hours and fees at all local museums.

When offspring get restless from too much exhibit-gazing, turn to the U-M for some great spectator sport action instead. The majority of sports played around campus are quite competitive, and—except for the big-draw men's football and basketball teams—you can usually find up-close and personal seating for well under $10 a ticket.

Our family favorite is Michigan Hockey. Yost Arena offers plenty of spots for young enthusiasts to press their faces up against the glass to get a true feel for the action. The games are fast and clean—college hockey involves little of the pro game's fighting and assorted dirty tricks.

Other sports offer even greater proximity to the action and plenty of room for your younger fans to roam, including women's basketball and softball, men's baseball, and the swimming teams. All offer the chance to see athletes competing for the pure joy of their sport—a pleasant contrast to the extravaganza of football Saturdays.

No one can stand on the sidelines for too long without an itch to dive into some type of activity themselves. Call Ann Arbor Community Education and Recreation, 994–2300, for their current schedule of parent-child participatory classes. We've found the instructors in its swimming and gym classes enthusiastic, polite, and eager to please.

An educational experience that's fun is the Hands-On Museum. True to the name, everything in this converted fire station is made to touch, and it offers many neat things to check out. Must-tries include: enclosing yourself in a giant bubble, whispering across the room with the help of parabolic cones, and snooping on the floor above through the periscope.

After a round of kids' museums, classes, and sports, parents may feel the need for their own hobby and recreation time. We've found that with creativity, a certain family togetherness can be maintained while we participate in our own adult activities.

Runners know that Ann Arbor's many competitive adult races all include one- or two-mile "fun runs." Our wagon and stroller have logged nearly the mileage of Dad's Nikes in these events. The post-race celebrations—free food, beverages, and entertainment—are a quick jump start on a weekend morning.

I've even managed to include my own young children in my running regimen. Both local high school tracks provide a combination playground-running space. I can manage full-speed sprints without losing sight of my two charges in the infield. A long jump pit converts easily into an individualized sandbox, while the pole vault cushions are better than bouncing on your bed at home.

Shopping at the Farmers' Market on Saturday morning has become a regular outing for our household. The market and the neighboring Kerrytown shops have enough variety to hold young, diverse shopping agendas and brief attention spans to the task at hand. A great capper for a trip to the market is a doughnut and custom-mixed juice at Campus Donuts.

Of course, going out on the town with the clan does not have to revolve around shopping, or a scheduled event, or anything at all. Tree City USA offers wonderful parks, a vibrant downtown, and classic mature neighborhoods to wander through. (See map on p. 117 for park locations.) Three popular walking tours are:

Burns Park neighborhood. These well-shaded, sidewalked streets provide serene surroundings for an evening walk through an area that shows what home construction was like before subdivision fever. Proximity to the Dairy Queen at Packard and Stadium makes for a perfect combination of lick and stroll, April through October.

Gallup Park's walking trail, with its connecting wooden bridges, gives youngsters plenty of space to run around safe from traffic. Strategically located play areas let older children romp while Mom and Dad stop to catch their breath or change a diaper.

Finally, the campus businesses along State Street always have interesting wares for family stares. Young, old, and students mix well at the busy intersection of State and Liberty. Window shopping here reminds you why you never liked malls to begin with. Kids love to hear their voices echo in the enclosed Nickels Arcade.

"Boys will be boys. And moms will always worry. But I worry less with Care Choices."

"You know what boys are like. And my 5-year old is a typical one, doing whatever he does with the all-out enthusiasm of a kid. And now that he's starting school, he'll be out there, catching all those bugs the other kids bring to class. So between the checkups, shots, lab tests and x-rays, I'd be spending a lot more if I didn't have Care Choices Health Plans.

"Care Choices is an HMO, so besides comprehensive coverage for hospitalization and emergencies worldwide, my family and I are covered for many kinds of preventive care, too. All for just a small co-pay. Plus, Care Choices is convenient and easy to use. We get our care from some of the best doctors and hospitals around. There's not much paperwork. And I can call a representative right in my community with questions.

"Care Choices is an HMO benefits plan I can benefit from today . . . and tomorrow. And that helps this mom rest a little easier."

For more information, call Member Services at (313) 971-7667 or 800-852-9780, or see your benefits representative.

Health Care

Health care in Washtenaw County is a billion-dollar industry dominated by two giants. The University of Michigan Medical Center, a teaching hospital that's in the forefront in a lot of nationally significant research, is Michigan's foremost health care institution. The University Hospitals attract high-profile, high-technology cases from all over the state and beyond. And the sprawling Catherine McAuley Heath System complex east of the city is continuing a rapid expansion of its facilities; its outpatient visits are increasing at a rate of 10 percent a year.

But all the expertise comes with a price tag. Health care costs in Washtenaw County are well above the regional norm, and a coalition of large local employers has begun negotiating with health care providers to try to find ways of slowing down the spiral in health insurance costs.

New clinics and services become available all the time. This information is current as of July 1991. Emergency phone numbers and services are listed on p. 172.

For descriptions of the various mental health services and health-related support groups in Ann Arbor, see the Community Services section, p. 103.

Many of the clinics and health centers listed below accept a wide variety of insurance coverage. Others accept only one kind, or none. In some cases, major credit cards are accepted for payment. It is wise to call ahead to find out what insurance and payment options are accepted.

Ann Arbor-Based Health Maintenance Organizations (HMO's)

An HMO is a lot like health insurance, except that the subscriber's choice of physicians and facilities is limited. On behalf of companies and organizations, the HMO contracts with physicians, clinics, hospitals, and other health care providers to provide health care coverage for their employees.

Care Choices Health Plans (formerly McAuley Health Plan). A subsidiary of the Sisters of Mercy Health Corporation and affiliated locally with the Catherine McAuley Health Center. Also offers coverage in Livingston and western Wayne counties. Membership in mid-1991 was 84,000.

Care Choices is not currently offered to individual subscribers. Businesses interested in information on Care Choices coverage for their employees can call 971–7667. People who are already Care Choices members, or who are currently being offered membership through their employers, can call (800) 852–9780 (Mon.–Fri. 8:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m.) for information.

M-Care. Offered locally in conjunction with the U-M Medical Center and its satellite clinics. Also offers coverage in Oakland, Livingston, Macomb, and Wayne counties. Membership in mid-1991 was 39,000.

M-Care is not currently offered to individual subscribers. Businesses interested in information on M-Care coverage for their employees can call 747–8700. People who are already M-Care members, or who are currently being offered membership through their employers, can call 747–8700 (Mon.–Fri. 8 a.m.–5 p.m.) for information.

Welcome to Ann Arbor

from all of us at Schoolkids!

We are proud to be celebrating our fifteenth year in Ann Arbor. Schoolkids' has been rated as one of the top twenty music stores in the country. Here's a sample of what folks are saying about us:

"Schoolkids' has been my favorite store in America for almost 15 years. Schoolkids' is a genuine 'record store' in the classic sense; its atmosphere and its regard for the music it sells is clearly unique in the business. It does not underestimate the taste or intelligence of its customers. It carries the widest spectrum of music—all sorts of music—that I've ever seen anywhere. Its employees are helpful, knowledgeable fans of music rather than mere button pushers. Aside from the obvious hits, the store goes out of its way to carry titles that, however obscure, are genuinely GOOD—a trait which customers respect and appreciate. It also has the best selection of deleted records and CD's I've ever seen."

For its more than 35,000 students, the University of Michigan is a virtual city unto itself. And even for outsiders, the U-M is a pervasive influence on life in Ann Arbor.

Economically, the university is the engine that drives the city. (Without even counting the ripple effect of its institutional and student spending, its payroll is far and away the biggest in town.) Culturally, a wide range of events, from opera and rock concerts to speeches by well-known writers and political figures, take place on campus, all of which are open to the public. (For more information, see "Entertainment," p. 131, and monthly Ann Arbor Observer events listings.) The U-M's many museums and libraries, also accessible to outsiders, further enrich the city's cultural life. (For more information, see Museums and Libraries, p. 141.) ►

SPORTS

The average Ann Arborite's strongest tie to the U-M is probably through its athletic teams. U-M football has drawn huge crowds since the arrival of Fielding Yost as coach early in this century. Yost laid the foundation for the U-M's self-sufficient athletic empire; today, football Saturday, and the crowds, rowdiness, and traffic that it brings with it, is a tradition with seemingly eternal staying power. About 104,000 people attend the average home football game, 3,000 more than can actually be seated in Michigan Stadium.

Those fans who have season football tickets count themselves lucky. Every year the ticket office has to refund the money of several hundred people who apply for season tickets, simply because of a lack of availability. However, it is sometimes possible to purchase individual tickets through the ticket office because of late cancellations. And scalpers in front of the Michigan Union and in the athletic-field parking area off State Street may have offers too good for a die-hard fan to refuse.

Basketball tickets are somewhat easier to come by, with more individual tickets for sale at the ticket office before each game. Also, scalpers on and around the Crisler Arena steps have tickets for sale. Hockey games are also relatively accessible, and the spring baseball season, in the first-class venue of Ray Fisher Stadium, is an underappreciated bargain. Tickets for women's sports, which far too often go underappreciated as well, are also available for individual games.

For ticket information, contact the athletic office, located at 1000 South State Street (764–0247). Season tickets for the 1992 football season, which cost $132, will go on sale April 1, 1992. Tickets for the 1991 basketball season, costing $56–$140, will be available until October 11, 1991. Hockey season tickets costing $95 will be on sale until September 20, 1991. A six-game mini-season pass, costing $36, is also available. For the first time, there will also be season tickets for women's volleyball and basketball on sale. A volleyball season pass costs just $10; prices for women's basketball have not yet been determined. Call the ticket office in late fall for details. Baseball tickets are available only for individual games. Schedules for football and men's and women's basketball are on the facing page.

EMPLOYMENT

The University of Michigan and the U-M Medical Center are the largest employers in Ann Arbor. Last year, they employed a combined total of 20,357 people in full- and part-time positions and several thousand temporary employees, many of whom were students. That works out to fifteen times the number of jobs at Ann Arbor's largest private employer, Warner Lambert, and one job for every five adults in the city.

There is a fair amount of turnover, especially in lower-level positions. During the past year, 6,012 placements into positions were made. Many positions are filled internally, but they are also posted on campus job boards and advertised in the local newspapers. There are openings at all levels: faculty, nursing, research assistants, administrative, clerical, maintenance, and more.

There are three locations where job openings are posted on the U-M campus: Administrative Services, 1009 Green St., 764–7280; Medical Campus, 300 N. Ingalls St., 747–2375; and the LS&A Building, 500 S. State St., 764–6580. Complete job postings appear at all three locations.

Prospective employees may submit a general application at any of the three offices and then may bid for particular jobs. Employment opportunities are also listed in the University Record, which is published weekly and available at many campus locations. See

"Media" section, p. 145, for subscription information.

AUDITING CLASSES

Ann Arbor residents who want to take advantage of the myriad classes offered by the U-M but who don't need a degree can take courses as "special students"; apply through the Office of Undergraduate Admissions, 1220 Student Activities Building, 764-7433. The application process takes about two weeks.

Fees for auditing classes as a special student are steep: $623 per semester for Michigan residents, and $1,379 per semester for nonresidents. This fee does allow you to register for an unlimited number of credits. Questions regarding residency should be addressed to the Residency Status Office at 764-1400.

Course catalogs and time schedules can be obtained by calling Checkpoint at 764-6810.

Some people avoid the bureaucracy, and the fees, simply by attending the class of their choice without identifying themselves as special students. If the class is a large lecture, as many introductory classes are, it is not difficult to attend unnoticed. And even in smaller upper-level classes, some instructors have been known to permit auditors to attend unofficially. ■ contemporary designs and constructions

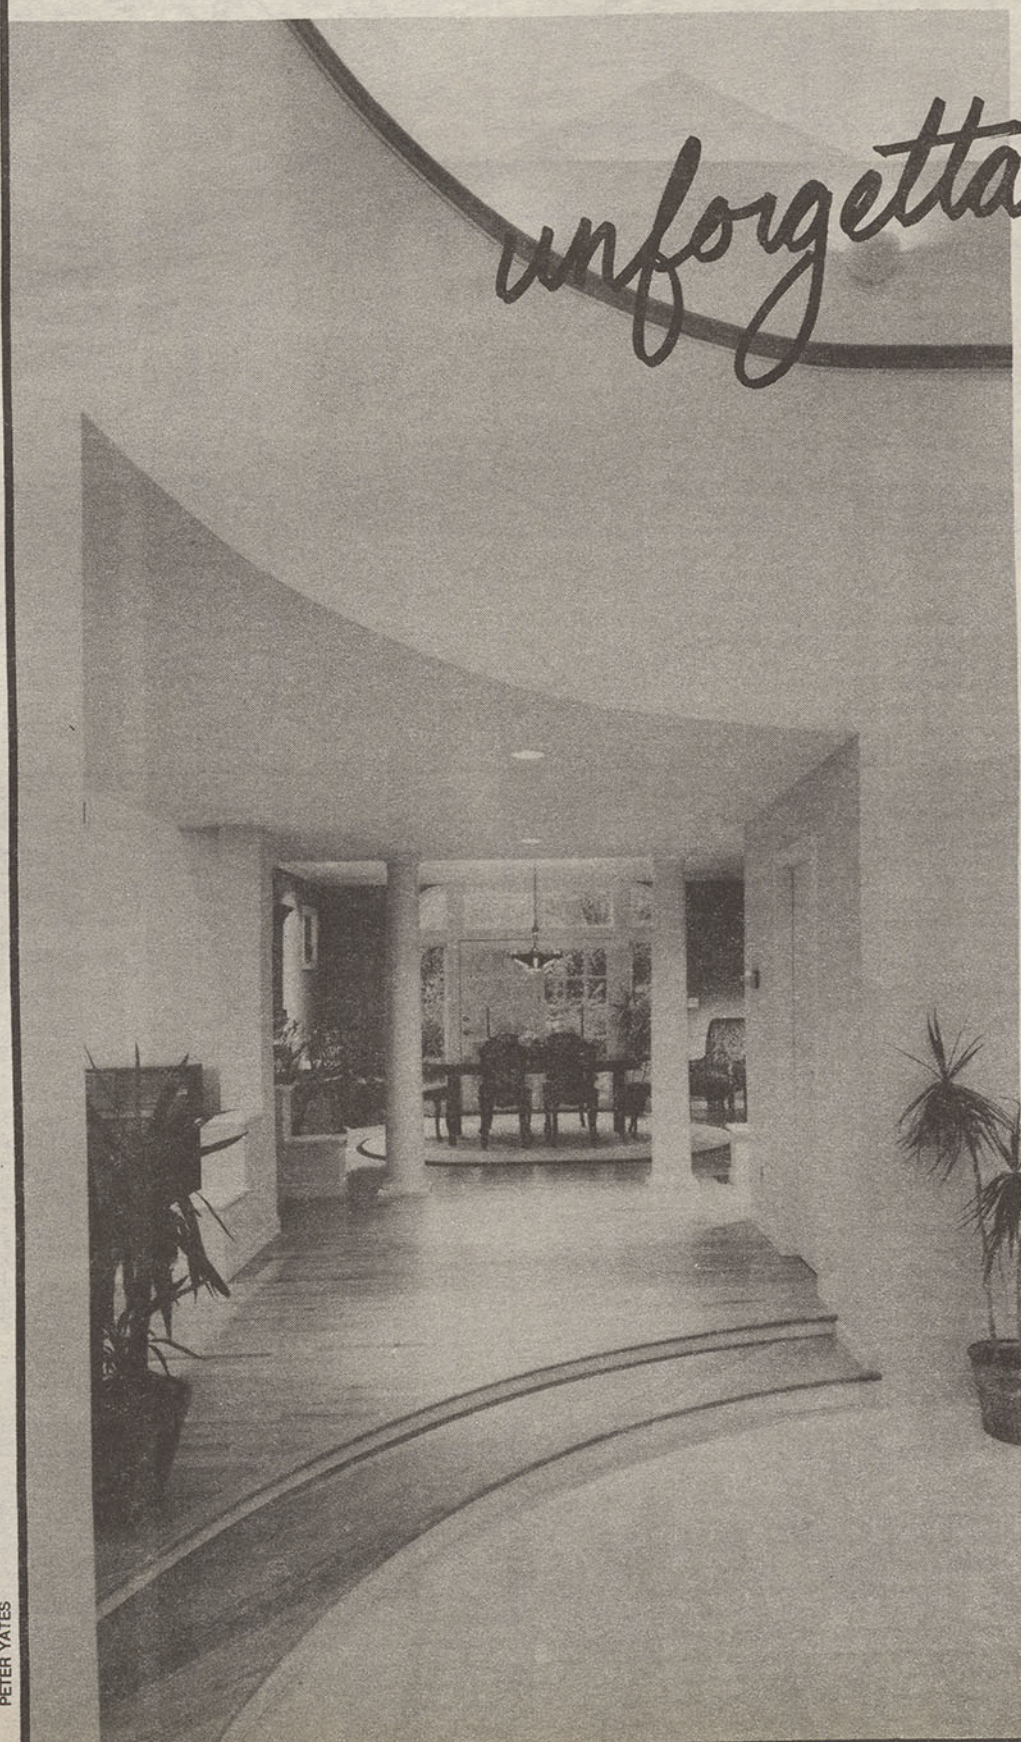
Gallery Four One Four, 414 Detroit St., Ann Arbor, MI 48104 USA, 313•747•7004



In today's world, the idea that houses can be loved and beautiful has been forgotten almost altogether.

The most fundamental issue we address as architects and builders is that a home is a personal, intimate place of character and quality. It should be most unique in the amount of love put into the details: a door in one ... a window in another ... a fireplace in yet another still.

We view homes as places which express one's life ... directly, simply, and beautifully.

"Well, mythology tells us that where you stumble, there your treasure is. There are so many examples. One that comes to mind is in The Arabian Nights. Someone is plowing a field, and his plow gets caught. He digs down to see what it is and discovers a ring of some kind. When he hoists the ring, he finds a cave with all of the jewels in it. And so it is with our own psyche; our psyche is the cave with all the jewels in it, and it's the fact that we're not letting their energies move us that brings us up short. The world is a match for us and we're a match for the world. And where it seems most challenging lies the greatest invitation to find deeper and greater power in ourselves."

J. ADRIAN WYLIE

The many careers of Ben Bagdade

At eleven-thirty on a Thursday morning, Ben Bagdade is leading a discussion of the direction of proposed Middle East peace talks. Bagdade, a small, trim man with thick-lensed reading glasses, tells his audience—a group of older adults seated in the lounge of the Jewish Community Center on Birch Hollow Drive—that President Bush will probably pressure Israel to give up its control of the Golan Heights in the talks. "You mark my words," Bagdade says forcefully.

"George Bush has a reputation as a liar," laughs one white-headed participant. "He's worked night and day to achieve it." A woman questions the probable role of Syria in the talks. The discussion continues for nearly an hour before the JCC's older adult coordinator, Yehudit Newman, taps Bagdade lightly on the shoulder. "This is your five-minute warning," she tells him, with a smile.

"I don't always agree with the views being presented," says Newman later, "but seniors know what they want to talk about."

Bagdade, eighty-seven, has never been one to take things easy. As a wholesale food salesman in Detroit, he once won an award as "Salesman of the Century." He held that job until five years ago; eighty-two, he says, is "a good age to retire."

Bagdade and his wife, Mollie, moved to Ann Arbor two years ago to be closer to their daughter, June Schwartz, and her family. He's been leading current events discussions at the JCC since the winter of 1990.

"He came in one day and offered to do it," recalls Newman. "We had been offering an exercise program on Thursday mornings, but there's already an excellent free program for seniors at Briarwood, so we decided to put our energy into something unique."

Bagdade prepares for the discussions by reading a variety of publications, from the Ann Arbor News to the Jerusalem Post. Although the discussions often focus on Israel, Bagdade tries to vary his topics. "Israel—how much can you talk about Israel? I try to cover a lot of things," he says, citing a recent discussion he led on the topic of intermarriage and his own interest in the growth of the Reform movement in American Judaism.

For Bagdade, the discussion group is just the latest expression of a lifelong commitment to volunteer service. For forty years, he was a fundraiser for the Allied Jewish Campaign. A top-ranked speed skater as a young man—he won the International Intermediate Speed Skating title in 1919—he served for decades as treasurer of the U.S. Olympic team and was team manager for the 1948 Olympics in St. Moritz. His contributions to the sport were recognized this past year, when he was inducted into the Michigan Jewish Sports Hall of Fame.

Bagdade no longer skates, but he continues to lead a very active life. For exercise, he swims four times a week at the Ann Arbor "Y." In fact, his only complaint about Ann Arbor's JCC is that it doesn't have a swimming pool. —Rachel Weiss

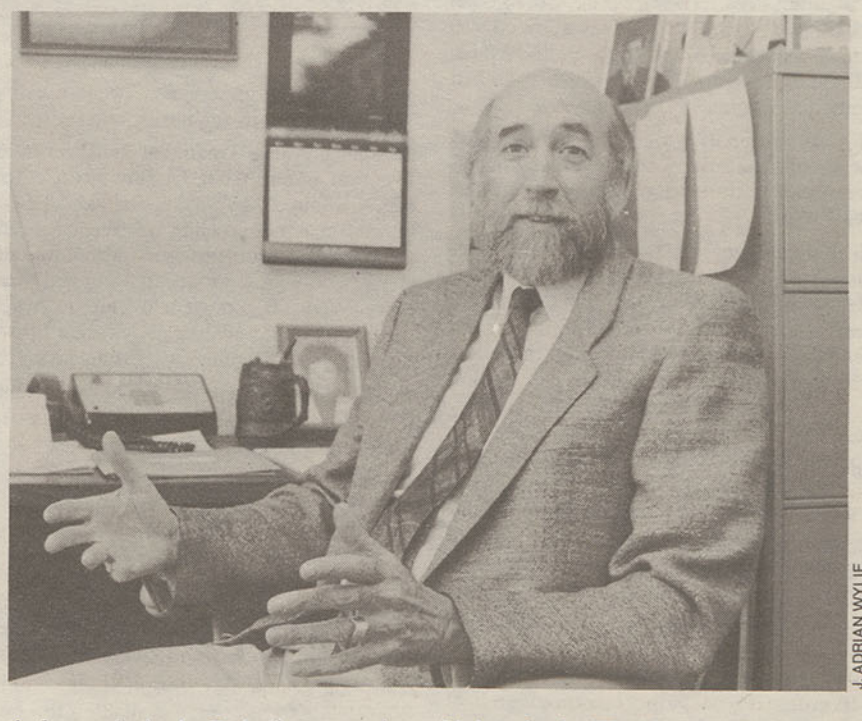
John Martin, CSS's quiet catalyst



J. ADRIAN WYLIE

For John Martin, a camping trip led to the directorship of the second largest private social service agency in Washtenaw County. In the summer of 1974, Martin, a social worker in Iowa, was on vacation in Michigan when a friend told him of a job opening at Catholic Social Services (CSS) in Ann Arbor. Ready to try something different, he applied. He was hired as a supervisor and became director a few years later.

Martin, forty-nine, has a bearded, ascetic visage lightened by the campy ties he favors. He has been a quiet but unmistakable catalyst for change, according to people who know him. CSS "serves a much broader population than it did a dozen years ago," says William Volano, director of Child and Family Service, the county's social service giant. "It's all attributed to John."

Catholic Social Services opened in Ann Arbor in 1959 as a small branch office of the Detroit CSS. Today, the agency receives more funding from United Way than from the diocese, and two-thirds of its clients aren't Catholic. Under Martin's tenure, the agency's budget has grown from $381,700 to $2.5 million; it has opened an Ypsilanti office and added some innovative services like the Alternatives to Domestic Violence Program, the state's first in-depth program to counsel male abusers. The organization was one of the first to initiate open adoption, a program that allows birth parents to choose their baby's adoptive family.

Despite its changes, CSS is not entirely secularized. Catholics comprise the majority of the board, and the agency's extensive pregnancy counseling program will not make abortion referrals—something, Martin says, that most people who come to the agency already know.

The agency's local headquarters is a plant-happy brick house on Division near Huron. Martin's informal office features a large, prominently displayed wall hanging of his family tree. It's a fitting symbol for Martin, who says that the agency's central philosophy is that "families, no matter what their composition and how they're made up, still have to stay together and be connected."

Martin grew up in Carroll, Iowa, the second of four children in a close-knit household. He attended parochial schools and graduated from little Loras College in Dubuque, where he got room and board by working as a counselor in a state home for adolescent youths. He went on to earn a master's in social work from Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

The father of two grown children, Martin was divorced from his first wife. Ten years ago, he met and married Molly Resnik, an effervescent former business executive who now heads Neighborhood Senior Services. The couple met while on the Advisory Board of the Assault Crisis Center. "We both just looked at each other," recalls Resnik of the board meeting that drew sparks. "It was one of those comic book sort of things."

The couple married in a civil ceremony to avoid offense to either faith (Resnik is Jewish). Today, they live in a large house they had built in Scio Township, where they work off what Resnik calls the "good stress" of jobs they love by jogging.

Martin says his experience with their blended family has reinforced his sense of the importance of family ties. "The 2.5 [child] family is very unusual now. But we all have to take care of each other the best we can."

LISTENING LEARNING LOVING — Parents FLAG

P.O. Box 15411 • Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106 • 769–1684

In America today, there are millions of parents with lesbian daughters and gay sons who are victims of social, political, and economic oppression. Gay people in many communities are still obstructed by prejudice in their pursuit of happiness and in striving to live their lives with openness and dignity. But homosexuals are not the only victims of this oppression; it also touches their friends and families. We at Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays feel that the time is right to join together to appeal to the public conscience in order to achieve equal opportunities for our daughters and sons. We challenge society's status quo attitudes. We have a commitment to actively help our gay children by working for the same basic human rights, liberties, and opportunities for them that are enjoyed by others. As proud parents of gay people, new windows of understanding have been opened to us which have enriched our lives. We want to bring this understanding to the community.

Recreation

Ann Arbor offers a superb variety of recreational opportunities. Programs and facilities administered by the city and the public schools enable thousands to participate in organized team sports. Rare is the Ann Arbor workplace that doesn't have a softball or basketball team; hotly contested league games are rehashed in the city's taverns late into the night. Ann Arbor's numerous off-street trails and lightly traveled neighborhood streets pulse with joggers at almost any time of the year, and gently lit summer evenings find legions of cyclists gliding along the winding Huron River or through the flat, sparsely settled farmlands west of the city. The U-M's large, modern recreation buildings, along with various city structures and private health clubs, insure the popularity of indoor sports. And Ann Arbor is blessed with an abundance of parkland, intelligently acquired and evenly distributed all over the city. The Huron offers the sort of natural scenery that most midwesterners do without; a special map of its course through the city is on p. 120. A map of the city's parks can be found on p. 117.

Major Programs and Facilities

Ann Arbor Community Education and Recreation, part of the Ann Arbor Public Schools Community Services Division, offers classes in golf, tennis, and swimming. It also organizes several adult and youth league sports, including softball, basketball, and volleyball. Rec and Ed offices are located at 2765 Boardwalk Dr. For general information, call 994–2300. This number gives access to taped messages on league programs and a wide variety of other offerings.

The city's Department of Parks and Recreation is responsible for maintaining facilities at area parks and also runs some sports programs, such as ice hockey. The department's recreational facilities hotline is 769–9140; the department office is on the fifth floor of City Hall (994–2780). Scholarships, available to low-income Ann Arborites, provide free or reduced-price passes to city pools and rinks.

The Ann Arbor "Y," 350 South Fifth Ave., is a nonprofit, community-based membership organization that serves youths, families, and adults. (The "Y" recently rejoined the national YMCA, from which it split years ago over the national organization's now-repealed gender segregation policy. But the Ann Arbor group hopes to keep the familiar "Y" label as its official name.) There are different membership plans available for different age groups, with a discount for seniors. The "Y" offers classes in aquatics, fitness, martial arts, yoga, dance, Nautilus weight training, and aerobics. Call the "Y" at 663–0536.

U-M students, faculty and staff are able to use U-M facilities at the Central Campus Recreation Building (CCRB), 401 Washtenaw Ave. at Geddes Ave. (763–3084); the North Campus Recreation Building (NCRB), 2375 Hubbard St. (763–4560); and the Intramural (IM) Sports Building, 606 E. Hoover Ave. (763–3562). There is no charge for registered students. Faculty and staff passes are $99 a year; passes for nonstudents sponsored by a currently enrolled student or currently employed staff member are $148 a year; passes for spouses of U-M faculty, staff, and students are also $148 a year; U-M alumni passes are $266 a year; passes for retired U-M employees are $49 a year. Lower-rate passes are available for children and spouses of U-M faculty, staff, alumni, and students. Day passes for sponsored nonstudents are $5. The U-M Adult Lifestyles Program (764–1342) offers classes, open to the public, in aerobics, aquatics, karate, volleyball, weight training, and more. Most of the classes are held at the CCRB, and their cost includes a facilities pass valid for the times your class meets. Class schedules are tied to the university calendar; 1991 fall classes begin September 5.

Set to open as we go to press is the new Washtenaw County Recreation Center at County Farm Park. The Center is located near the intersection of Washtenaw Avenue and Platt Road. Its lobby mimics the shape of the barn that formerly stood on the site; the barn itself has been moved and incorporated into the center's design. The center contains an indoor swimming pool and jogging track, a gymnasium, various exercise rooms, and new offices for the county's parks and recreation staff. Call 971–6337 for information on the center's programs as it becomes available.

Team Sports

Basketball

Rec and Ed organizes youth and adult basketball leagues during the winter in which a hundred teams usually participate. The ten-week season runs from mid-December to March. Players must enter the league on already established teams; teams must pay sponsor fees. Games are played at local middle schools. Call Rec and Ed at 994–2300 for exact fees and starting dates.

Basketball players may use the U-M's courts at the CCRB, NCRB, and the IM Building if they have a user's pass or come as a guest of someone with a pass. Court hours vary each semester, so call the individual buildings at the numbers listed above for schedule information. Basketball courts are also available at the new County Recreation Center, Washtenaw Ave. at Platt Rd. Call 971–6337 for more information. Numerous city parks also have basketball courts available for public use; call 994–2780, or see the chart on p. 118.

Field Hockey

Youth field hockey for girls and boys in grades 3–6 is offered in spring and fall by Rec and Ed; call 994–2300 for schedules and fees. The 120–150 participants are almost all girls.

"Every autumn Sunday afternoon dating back to the 1950's," a recent Ann Arbor Field Hockey Club press release gloomily informs us, "two dozen or so women and men converge on local field hockey fields in an attempt to keep this dying sport alive." Interested players can join in the effort on Sundays from 1 to 3 p.m. from August through Thanksgiving at Greenhills School, 850 Greenhills Dr. Call Marsha Mumm at 663–4068.

Ice Hockey

Organized ice hockey, with a season running from mid-October through mid-March, is coordinated through Veterans Park. About forty teams participate in the various leagues. Leagues include the "Old Bucks" thirty-and-over draft, competitive adult men's programs at three different skill levels, and the "Adult Never-Ever Program," a unique spring league that stresses noncompetitive play and is designed for those who have never played organized adult hockey. Costs average roughly $110–$120 per person, with many variables. Call Vets Ice Arena at 761–7240 for more information.

Individuals who want to play hockey should call Vets Ice Arena and sign a waiver releasing their names to team managers who need extra players. Also, games are offered on a drop-in basis for preregistered players.

The nonprofit Ann Arbor Amateur Hockey Association (AAAHA) is open to boys and girls ages five to seventeen. From September through May, an average of twenty to twenty-five teams play one to two times a week at Yost and Vets ice arenas. There are six age divisions: Mini Mites, Mites, Squirts, Peewees, Bantams, and Midgets. There is a comprehensive fee of approximately $200 per player. For more information, leave a message on the AAAHA answering machine at Vets (996–8606).

In the past, the outdoor ice rink at Buhr Park has offered drop-in hockey for players fifteen and over on Wednesday and Friday evenings from November through February. As we go to press, the rink is undergoing extensive renovations, and new schedules and fees are not yet set. Call Buhr Park Ice Rink at 971–3228 for more information.

On a more informal basis, the Burns Park rink (1620 Wells St.) also offers drop-in play. Call the Department of Parks and Recreation (769–9140) for more information.

Soccer

Soccer is second only to softball as the most popular participatory sport in Ann Arbor. The city has two soccer programs. Rec and Ed (994–2300) organizes youth soccer leagues for grades 1–6 during the fall and spring. Each season lasts for seven weeks and attracts around 1,320 players. Registration is by mail; players are assigned to teams based on school attendance area. Fees in recent years have been in the $25–$30 per player range; call 994–2300 for exact fees and registration materials.

The Ann Arbor Soccer Association (AASA), a nonprofit citizens' group, takes care of everyone else. The AASA averages a combined total of 1,500 participants in its youth and adult programs. The adult recreation program offers open and women's leagues during the fall, spring, and summer. Each season lasts eight weeks; teams play two nights a week at Fuller Park. The number of players remains relatively constant during each season. Twenty teams usually partici-

SOFTBALL

Ann Arborites have been softball crazy for a long time. In the 1950's, before television kept many people at home, as many as 5,000 spectators would jam Sportsman Park to watch twilight and weekend fast-pitch softball. Today softball draws more participants than any other program offered by Rec and Ed. Currently, approximately seventy-five adult divisions, with 450 teams, play in the summer leagues; 150 teams play in the fall.

Teams are divided into men's, women's, and co-rec leagues of varying skill levels: men's fast-pitch, men's slow-pitch, women's slow-pitch, and co-rec slow-pitch. Summer sessions run for ten weeks, and teams have a choice of playing in one- or two-night-a-week leagues or in double-header leagues. Fall teams play twice a week in a season of five to six weeks. The most intensely used facility for both the summer and fall softball seasons is Veterans Park.

All teams must pay sponsorship fees and individual player fees. The sponsor fee for summer teams in the one-night-a-week leagues is $144, and the individual assessment is $25 for school district residents ($32 for nonresidents). Two-night-a-week league sponsorship fees are $373, and the individual assessment for city residents is $44 ($53 for nonresidents). For fall softball leagues, the sponsor fee is $182, and the individual assessment is $30 for residents ($35 for nonresidents). In both summer and fall leagues, fees are slightly higher for fast-pitch.

People who want to play softball and are not associated with a team have two options: they may sign a player waiver form to allow individual names and phone numbers to be released to managers, or they can sign up with one of the Players Without a Team teams.

Organizational meetings for summer and fall leagues take place in February and July, respectively. For exact dates and for information, watch the sports section of the Ann Arbor News, or contact Rec and Ed at 994–2300.

Also, the city provides softball diamonds at Ann Arbor schools and parks for people who organize their own games. The diamonds are available to the public 9 a.m.–9 p.m. from early May through the end of August on a first-come, first-served basis. They include Mack School #2, Leslie Park #1, Swift Run Park #3, Scarlett School #5, and Tappan School #2.

These and other diamonds may be reserved by calling 994–2300, ext. 218. It's best to call two or three days in advance. The first ninety minutes are free, and there is a $6 charge for each subsequent ninety minute period.

Other diamonds are for children's use only. They include those at Creal, Las Vegas, Maryfield, Wellington, and Wurster parks.

VOLLEYBALL

Close to 135 teams participate in both the spring and fall volleyball seasons. Leagues are available for open, men's, women's, and co-rec teams of varying skill levels. The fall season runs ten weeks, and the spring season seven weeks. For the open leagues, the sponsor fee is currently $160 for the fall season and $89 for the spring season; the individual assessment for school district residents is $29/fall and $21/spring. (Rates are higher for nonresidents.) For men's AA leagues, the fall sponsor fee is $120, and the individual assessment is $30 for residents; for all other leagues the fall sponsor fee is $80 and the individual assessment $25 for residents. Spring leagues cost somewhat less. Call Rec and Ed at 994–2300 for scheduling details.

Interested players can use U-M courts at the CCRB and NCRB if they have a user's pass or are with someone who has one. Volleyball space is available at the new County Recreation Center, Washtenaw Ave. at Platt Rd. Call 971–6337 for more information. In addition, the Ann Arbor "Y" often has pickup games on Monday nights and Wednesdays at noon for members.

At the U-M, there are weight training and aerobics facilities at the CCRB, the NCRB, and the IM Building; they are open to U-M facilities passholders and their guests.

Bicycling

Besides being an enjoyable form of recreation and exercise, bicycling in Ann Arbor is a recognized alternative means of transportation. The city has a well-marked network of bike routes and bike paths, and—since 1970—a Bicycle Program within the Transportation Department (phone 994–2786). The office publishes a map of bike paths and recommended street routes in Ann Arbor and Washtenaw County (the city portion is summarized on the parks map, p. 117), and offers cycling courses, safety workshops, and maintenance clinics.

Bicycle registration is required of all city cyclists over twelve years of age. It can be done through most local bike shops or at the city clerk's office on the second floor of City Hall. There's a one-time fee of $2.50.

The mostly flat lands surrounding Ann Arbor are ideal for amateur cycling. Especially popular is scenic, winding Huron River Drive, running northwest out of the city, which maintains a 35-miles-per-hour speed limit all the way to Dexter.

There are six bike shops in Ann Arbor and two active cycling clubs. The Ann Arbor Bicycle Touring Society (AABTS) organizes group day trips around the city and the surrounding area for its 700-plus members. Its Saturday Breakfast Rides along the Huron River to Dexter are especially popular. The AABTS also plans occasional out-of-state tours and publishes a bimonthly ride calendar and a monthly newsletter, both free to members. Annual dues are $10 (individual) and $13 (family). For more information, write to the AABTS, P.O. Box 2854, AA 48106, or call the AABTS hotline at 994–0044.

The small Ann Arbor Velo Club, sponsored by the Cycle Cellar bike shop, focuses on racing and arranges numerous workouts and meets for its members. For information, call or write Cycle Cellar, 220 Felch St., AA 48103, 769–1115; or Paul Alman, 642 Greenhills Dr., AA 48105, 761–1603.

Each July the city hosts the annual Ann Arbor Festival of Cycling, a series of races run on a one-kilometer course along downtown streets. Top U.S. and international teams are represented in the premier events, while local cyclists compete in "citizens' races." Call local bike shops for entry forms and more information.

FISHING

Several times on its journey through the city, the dammed Huron River widens out into serene ponds. Here are the refuges of Ann Arbor's urban anglers. The river contains a variety of fish: large- and smallmouth bass, rock bass, crappie, bluegill, carp, pike, catfish, and even some walleye and tiger muskellunge.

Three fishing spots seem to be most popular: Barton Dam (off Huron River Dr. at Barton Pond), Gallup Park, and Argo Dam, with its adjacent spillway complex. On sunny days, people often set up their lawn chairs by Argo Dam and fish from their seats. Those who want to get away from civilization may rent canoes from either the Argo Park or Gallup Park liveries and fish upstream. Live bait is available at both facilities.

Gallup Park offers a youth fishing pond that was once stocked with bass, bluegill, and panfish. Fishing is free, and there is no limit to the number of panfish or bluegill you can catch.

All anglers are advised to consult the State Department of Natural Resources fishing regulations; a copy is available at the Gallup canoe livery. Anyone sixteen or over must have a fishing license. Licenses cost $10.85 per year, and are sold at K Mart and Dunham's Sports Outfitters.

Many people who fish the Huron don't eat the fish they catch. However, the Michigan Department of Public Health in 1983, 1988, and 1989 tested fish taken from locations downstream from Ann Arbor, where the river enters more heavily industrialized areas, and no health advisories were issued.

Numerous small lakes a short drive from Ann Arbor offer good fishing. Call the Huron-Clinton Metroparks Authority at (800) 47-PARKS, or the Michigan Department of Natural Resources at (517) 373-1220.

GOLF

Golf enthusiasts have several challenging and well-maintained courses to choose from in Ann Arbor. The city and the U-M own two courses each, and there are historic private courses in the area as well. City courses include:

Huron Hills Golf Course, 3465 E. Huron River Dr. 971-6840. 18 holes, par 68. Overlooking the Huron River and Gallup Park, Huron Hills provides some of the city's best scenery. The course is suited for both beginning and experienced golfers. The "back nine" feature new landscaping.

Reservations are taken for weekends and holidays. Walk-on play is available weekdays and, depending on the reservation schedule, on weekends. Green fees: weekday $10 (18 holes), $7.50 (9 holes); weekend/holiday $11.50 (18 holes), $8.50 (9 holes, after 1 p.m. only). Special twilight rates ($5.50 flat fee after 7 p.m.) and junior/senior rates ($5.50 flat fee on weekdays). Season passes available. Club rental ($5 a set), and pull cart rental ($2). Snack bar. Hours: generally sunrise to sunset. Call for exact hours.

Leslie Park Golf Course, 2120 Traver Rd. 994-1163. 18 holes, par 72, women's par 73. Leslie is a challenging, well-maintained course that features two ponds, a fruit orchard where you can pick your own fruit in season, and Traver Creek.

Reservations are taken every day. Walk-on play may be available. Green fees: weekday $13 (18 holes), $9.50 (9 holes); weekend/holiday $16 (18 holes), $10.50 (9 holes, after 1 p.m. only). Golf cart rental $19 (18 holes), $11 (9 holes). Golf club rental ($5 a set), and pull cart rental ($2). Hours: generally sunrise to sunset. Call for exact hours.

It is open to U-M students, faculty, staff, alumni, and their guests. Reservations are required before 4 p.m. daily, after which there is walk-on play. Clubhouse hours: weekdays 8 a.m.-8 p.m.; weekends 7 a.m.-8 p.m.

Radrick Farms, 4875 Geddes Rd. 998-7040. 18 holes, par 72. Designed by Pete Dye, a highly regarded contemporary golf course architect, Radrick covers 260 acres and is reserved for U-M faculty and staff and their guests. Ann Arbor also has one semi-private and several private golf courses:

Georgetown Golf Course (semi-private), 1365 King George Blvd. 971-5500. The golf course is the only part of the club open to the public. 9-holes executive course, par 28. Green fees: $6 weekdays ($5 for seniors) and $7.50 weekends. 18-hole play (a double circuit) costs a flat rate of $9 ($7 for seniors). No golf cart rentals. Ann Arbor Golf and Outing Club (private), 400 E. Stadium Blvd. 663-4044. Originally located at the site of the present University Golf Course and founded around 1890, the club claims to have the oldest course in Michigan. Call for information.

Ann Arbor Country Club (private), 4699 E. Loch Alpine Dr. 426-4693. Call for information.

From Belly Dancing to Ultimate Frisbee

A sampler of some of Ann Arbor's more unusual recreational opportunities:

Belly dancing. The Ann Arbor "Y," 350 S. Fifth Ave. (663-0536) offers classes in this traditional Middle Eastern dance form. A workshop in Middle Eastern percussion is also available.

Fencing. The Ann Arbor Sword Club is for anyone interested in fencing, regardless of experience. The group meets at the "Y" and offers classes, recreational fencing, and trips to tournaments. Call Terry Gruber at 761-5118 or Joe O'Donnell at 996-8217.

Juggling. The Jugglers of Ann Arbor are a familiar fixture of the U-M Diag. They offer occasional workshops for beginners, but first-timers should call Paul Kyprie at 994-0368.

Mah-jongg. The Jewish Community Center invites everyone to play this popular board game each Monday at 12:30 p.m. The center is located at 2935 Birch Hollow Dr., off Stone School Rd. south of Packard St. Call 971-0990.

Miniature golf. An ideal outing for visiting young people or in-laws. There's a course just outside Ann Arbor at 2675 Washtenaw Ave. in Ypsilanti. Call 434-2838.

Paddleboats. Travel no farther than Fuller Road and Huron Parkway for a romantic cruise. Gallup Park Canoe Livery (662-9319) rents paddleboats for $3 a half hour weekdays, $3.50 weekends.

Pool. The popular poolroom on the second floor of the U-M Michigan Union, 530 S. State St., attracts pool sharks and less fearsome creatures. Table rental for the public is $3.00 until 6 p.m., $3.50 thereafter. Anyone under 18 must be accompanied by someone with a U-M ID. Open until at least midnight.

Skateboarding. Ann Arbor's municipal skateboard ramp is probably the only one in the Midwest. It's located at Veterans Park, 2150 Jackson Rd., and costs $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for youths, with memberships available. Call 761-7240.

Sledding. The two city-owned golf courses, Huron Hills and Leslie Park, offer popular sledding. West Park, a snowball's throw from downtown, is also highly recommended. Sledding is prohibited in the ecologically fragile Nichols Arboretum, and U-M personnel promise citations for violators this winter.

Ultimate Frisbee. Men's and women's teams practice together and travel all over the eastern U.S., competing in 10-12 tournaments a year. For practice locations and more information call Dave Moran (men's team captain) or Kris Olson (women's team captain) at 475-4624.

Ice skating at Buhr Park

Barton Hills Country Club (private), 733 Country Club Rd. 663–8511. Designed by Donald Ross. Call for information.

Travis Pointe Country Club (private), 2829 Travis Pointe Rd. 662–2582. Rated in Golf Digest as one of Michigan's top ten courses. Call for information.

The Huron Valley Women's Golf Club sponsors two leagues with a total of 60 participants, and acts as a general network for women golfers in the Huron Valley area. For more information call Janice Caldwell at 485–5683.

Ann Arbor also has a driving range, Liberty Golf Range (2815 W. Liberty Rd., 769–4536), open daily 9 a.m.–9 p.m. Golf balls are $4 for a large bucket, $3.25 for a small one.

The Parks Department offers golf lessons beginning in April. Register in person at the department desk on the fifth floor of City Hall, or call 994–2780 for mail-in registration arrangements.

Ice Skating

One of Ann Arbor's most popular recreational facilities is Veterans Park Ice Arena, the city's indoor publicly owned skating rink. With Vets, an outdoor artificial rink at Buhr Park, the U-M's Yost Ice Arena, and several natural rinks at city parks, ice skaters have a wide choice of places to skate.

Natural ice rinks are maintained beginning in mid-January as long as weather permits. Most of the rinks have warming houses and supervisors, and skaters may skate free of charge. Call the Department of Parks and Recreation (769–9140) for details. The parks that have rinks are Allmendinger, 645 Pauline Blvd.; Burns, 1620 Wells St. (ice rink and hockey rink); Ellsworth, Ellsworth Rd. near Jonathan Ct.; Glacier Highlands, Larchmont Dr. at Barrister Dr.; Northside, 809 Taylor St.; Scheffler, 3051 Edgewood Dr.; Virginia, Virginia Ave. at Fair St.; West, 215 Chapin St.; and Wheeler, N. Fourth Ave. at Depot St. You can also skate on the river at Gallup Park or on First Sister Lake at Dolph Park.

In December the Parks Department offers a demonstration of how to build and maintain a backyard ice rink; assistance is also available for neighborhood groups that wish to construct a community rink. Call 994–2780 for more information.

Veterans Park Ice Arena, 2150 Jackson Rd. 761–7240. Open from late October through May. It has a regulation-size rink (85′ × 200′), seating for 3,000 spectators, skate rental ($1.50), skate sharpening, coin-operated lockers, and a snack bar. Fees for adults are $3; for youths (17 and under) and seniors, $2.50. General skating on weekend afternoons and evenings. (Hours vary with hockey league play. Call for drop-in times.) Adult skating Mon.–Fri. 11 a.m.–1 p.m. The rink may be rented for private gatherings.

Buhr Park, 2751 Packard Rd. 971–3228. Covered artificial regulation-sized ice rink, open November through March. As we go to

Running/Jogging

Running is undoubtedly the most popular individual sport in Ann Arbor. The city's plentiful parkland, including long stretches of scenic riverfront pathway, yields miles of off-road running. Many Ann Arborites don't even have to leave their own neighborhoods to find prime jogging space—the city abounds in residential nooks and crannies secluded from traffic, including a surprising number of jealously preserved dirt roads. Offer these attractions to a populace both younger and more heavily professional than average, and the result is many miles of pounded pavement and trail.

Ann Arbor offers a variety of running clubs, stores, and events for both advanced and beginning runners. The Ann Arbor Track Club (AATC), founded in the early 1970's by graduating U-M track athletes, has become the major cohesive force for Ann Arbor's running population. The AATC has over 600 members of all skill levels. AATC events include a weekly Speed Workout on Tuesday evenings throughout the year, held at the U-M outdoor track in good weather and at the U-M Track and Tennis Building during the winter. These workouts are open to anyone interested. During the summer the AATC holds All-Comers meets for runners of all ages and skills. For meet schedule and locations, call 663–9740 or pick up flyers at downtown running shops. The AATC also has a very active youth program and offers training sessions during the fall, spring, and summer.

In addition to numerous events and programs, AATC membership entitles runners to a yearly picnic, seasonal meetings, a newsletter, and discounts at area running events and sports stores. Membership costs $10 a year ($15 for a family). For more information, write to the Ann Arbor Track Club, Box 7551, AA 48107 (include SASE), or call 663–9740.

The Ann Arbor Hash House Harriers is a 50-member group that emphasizes creatively planned running events that runners of all abilities can enjoy. Founded by British officials in Malaysia during the late 1940's, Harriers model their runs after the British fox-and-rabbit hunts, with a "hare" marking the trail (usually in white or colored flour) that the other members ("hounds") follow. "Turtle checks" denote waiting points, often supplied with beer and refreshments, which allow slower runners to catch up. For information, call the Hash Hotline, 485–3298.

The Ann Arbor area hosts a large number of annual running events that attract hundreds of runners of all skill levels. The Dexter-Ann Arbor Run in late May (2 mi., 10 km., and 13.1 mi.) and Elmo's Turkey Trot in November (2 mi. jog/walk, 4 mi.) have taken place every year since 1974. Other yearly runs include the Humane Society Run in mid-September, and the Big Ten Run in late September (5 mi. and 10 mi.), the Briarwood Run (5 km., 10 km., and 20 km.) and the Burns Park Run in early April (1 mi., 5 km., and 10 km.), the Miracle in the Apple Orchard Run in late April (1 mi. and 8 km.), and the For Women Only Run in late June (5 km.). A holiday fun run, the Jingle Bell Run, begins at the Michigan Theater; runners wear bells on their shoes. And U-M students and others run a "Nude Mile" on the last day of spring classes; it begins near the corner of South University Ave. and Washtenaw Ave.

For more information on area running events and organizations, contact the Ann Arbor Track Club or one of Ann Arbor's two complete running centers: Tortoise and Hare, 213 E. Liberty St., 769–9510; or Running Fit, 200 E. Washington St., 769–5016. The monthly magazine Michigan Runner, which contains comprehensive information on all running events and organizations in the state, is available at these centers.

For indoor running in the winter or during inclement weather, the U-M has indoor tracks at the CCRB, 401 Washtenaw Ave., 763–3084; and the NCRB, 2376 Hubbard St., 763–4560. Access is free for U-M students. Sponsored nonstudents pay a daily rate of $5. Long-term rates are also available. (See above.) The County Recreation Center, Washtenaw Ave. at Platt Rd. (971–6337), has a short two-lane indoor track. Private clubs with indoor running facilities include the Liberty Sports Complex, 2975 W. Liberty Rd., 665–3738; and Vic Tanny, 615 Briarwood Cir., 769–6600.

Swimming

Ann Arbor's public swimming pools are crowded during the summer. The three outdoor pools, all built in 1969, are open from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Mack Pool, the only city-run indoor pool, is open year-round. For Buhr, Veterans, and Mack Pools, adults pay $2 to enter; youths 17 and under and seniors 60 and over pay $1.25. During designated hours, families pay $4. There is no charge for children under three. For Fuller Pool, adults pay $2.50; youths and

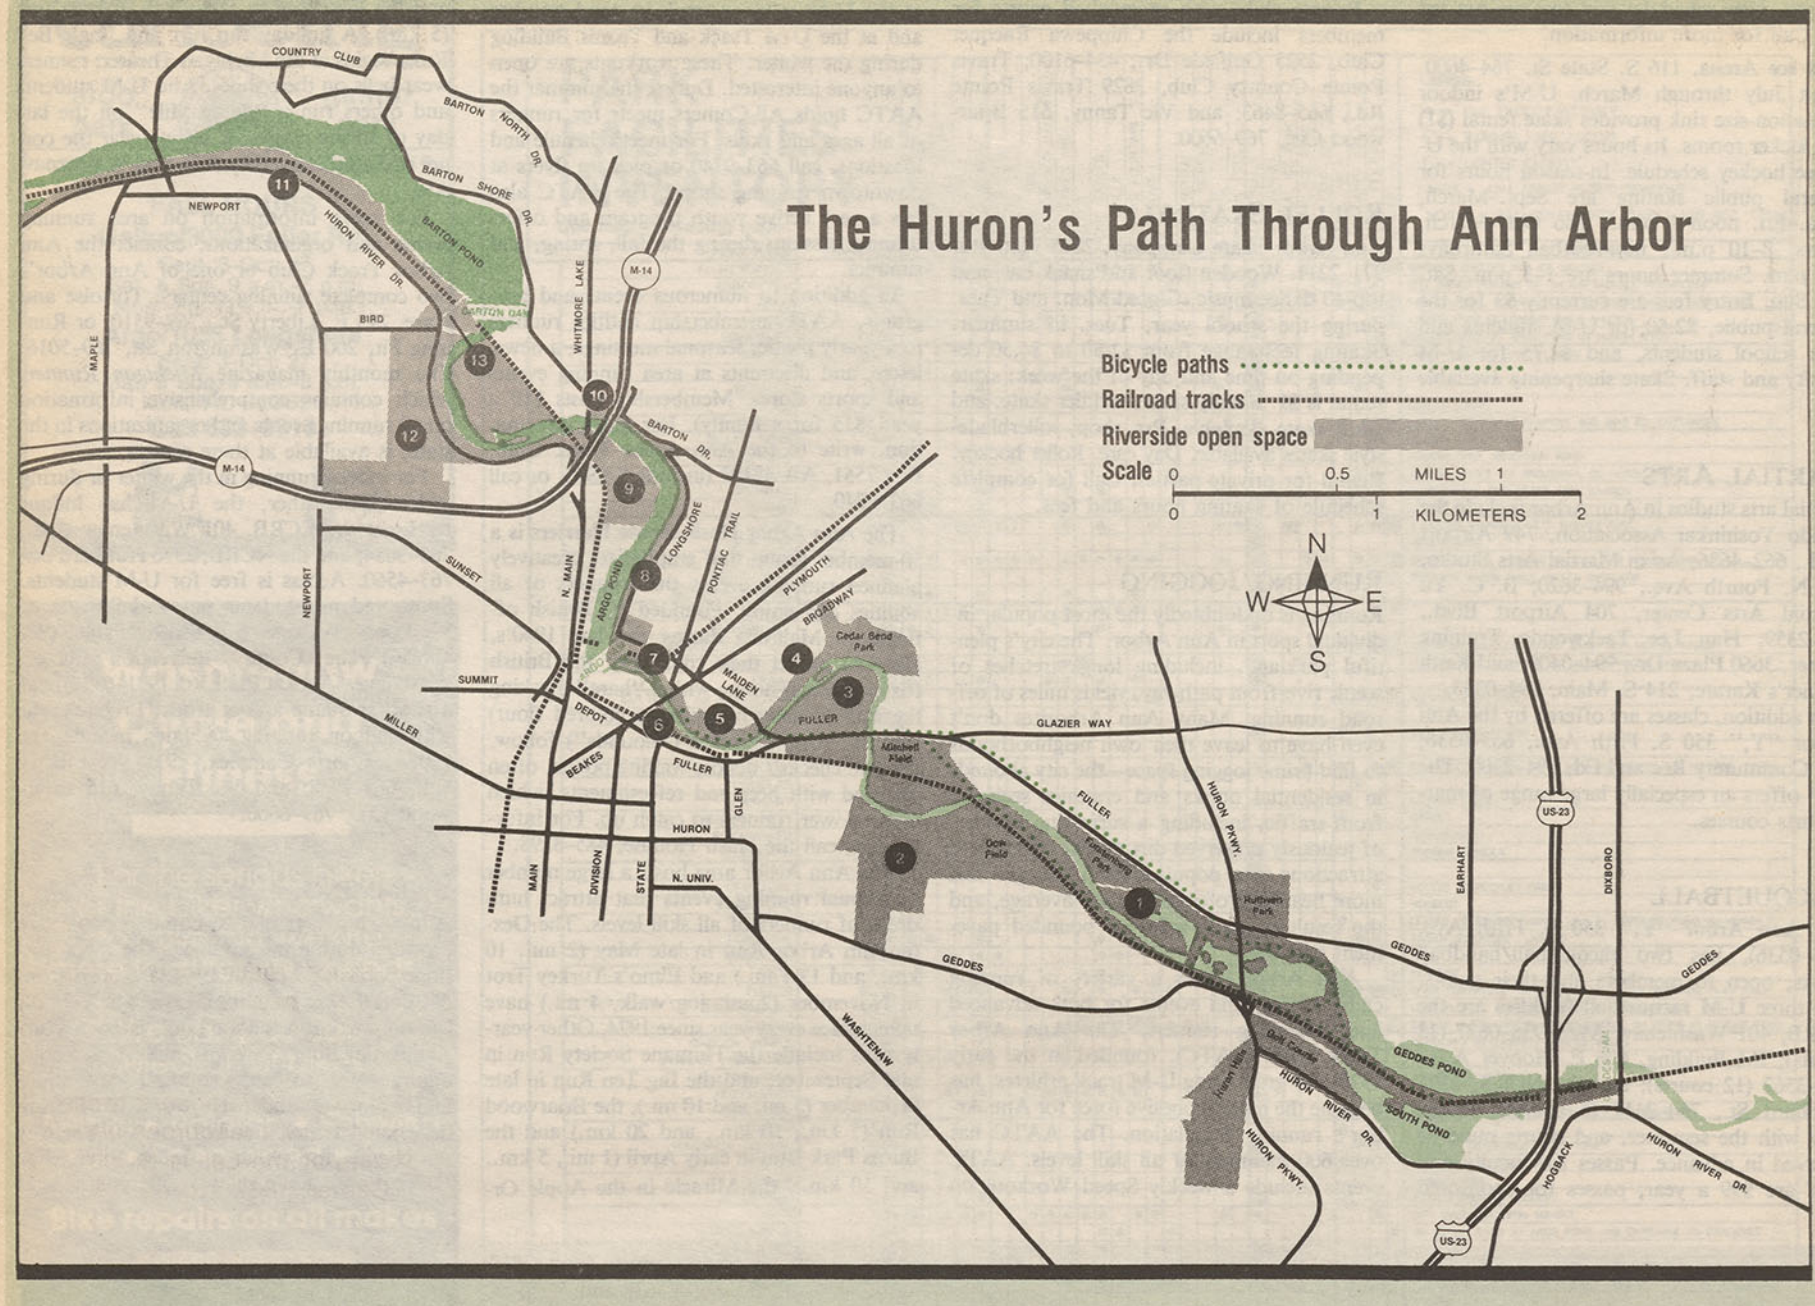
The county creatively reused this future building site as a temporary downtown park.



Geography and conservation have kept the Huron River mostly fringed with greenery as it passes through Ann Arbor. The central-city floodplain (now Fuller, Island, and Riverside parks) was used as parkland even before formal park maintenance began in 1905. Steep moraine riverbanks and extensive marshes north and west of the city proved to be unsuitable for development, and a magnificent chunk of rolling riverfront land was saved in 1906 with the donation to the U-M of what is now Nichols Arboretum. The park system was all knit together in 1963, when Detroit Edison sold 946 acres of Huron Valley property, including Barton, Argo, and Gallup dams, to the city. Today, the riverscape is marred only by the contaminated area along the North Main Street corridor, for which recent redevelopment plans have fizzled. Looking across Argo Pond toward North Main, the river user can't help but rejoice in the combination of accident and foresight that has left Ann Arbor's riverfront open for all to enjoy.

1. Gallup Park, probably the city's most popular park, draws crowds almost any time the weather is fair. It offers a picturesque scene that appears to be natural but is in fact almost completely landscaped. The river here is widened by Geddes Dam downstream into a large pond. Attractive curved footbridges connect a series of small colorful islands strewn (by Parks Department dump trucks) like stepping-stones across the river. For a walk in the late-evening summer sun, Gallup is unmatched. A bike trail runs along the south shore of the river all the way to Dixboro Road, and the park is a favorite jogging spot as well. Kids will be intrigued by the numerous water birds that congregate here, but visitors are asked to refrain from feeding them. Gallup rents bikes, canoes, and paddleboats.

2. The U-M's Nichols Arboretum offers a disused road along the river, with plenty of places to fish or just sit and think. Numerous nature trails wind sharply into the woods away from the riverbank, some leading to the big secluded meadows that help make the "Arb" so popular. Dow Field is a peaceful prairie rectangle kept treeless by occasional controlled burns.

3. Fuller Park features busy playing fields and perhaps the most glamorous of the city's swimming pools. Fuller Pool, thanks to its central location, attracts large numbers of tanned, elegant U-M undergraduates who while away the summer on the pool's crowded sun deck. Workers from the nearby medical complex crowd the pool at lunchtime.

4. Island Park, connected by a footbridge with Fuller Park, is a favorite gathering spot for waterfowl. This pleasantly shaded park draws lots of picnickers, and offers several shelters, including an unexpected Greek Revival pavilion. Footbridges, constructed in the 1930's by the Civilian Conservation Corps, lead to a flat, grassy island. The dirt road ascending from the back of the park climbs through the wooded Cedar Bend Park to a nice vista on the downtown basin and the U-M Medical Center (you can do this only on foot or bicycle).

5. Riverside Park is a wide-open floodplain with a line of willow trees along the riverbank. There is a softball field and a paved bike path that gives way, at the western end, to a novel boardwalk built directly over the waters of a small channel. The walkway crosses under the Broadway Bridge and skirts an old Detroit Edison power station as it enters Argo Park.

6. Broadway Park, reached by foot off Broadway, is a grassy field on the south riverbank. A rock embankment offers a central fishing spot. The open space, dotted with occasional shade trees, gives downtowners a pleasant area in which to lounge or throw a Frisbee.

7. Argo Park from the Broadway Bridge to Argo Dam consists mainly of an elevated woodchip path running between the river and an old millrace. This was once a towpath, and it's pleasant at any time of year, although on hot summer nights police and drinkers jockey for control of the little plaza by the power station on Broadway. In winter the leafless trees reveal the elaborate settlements of the homeless on the millrace bank opposite the trail. At the dam end of the millrace, fishermen set up lawn chairs and fish in comfort.

8. Argo Park above Argo Dam offers a canoe livery, a public boat ramp, and limited picnic space. The impounded river widens out at this point and looks almost like a small lake. Competitive rowers from the U-M practice here. At the north end of the picnic lot is the entrance to a foot trail that follows the river through dense woods for about a mile, almost to M-14. (Narrow though it is, this trail is favored by mountain bikers, who tear along in packs, each shouting an announcement of a walker's presence to the biker behind.) The trail parallels Longshore Drive, a dirt road that you'd never expect to find a few hundred yards from the center of a major city. Side trails connect the Argo Park trail with Longshore Drive at various points.

9. Bandemer Park is an undeveloped future park site. An overgrown dirt trail leads through the vegetation, but actually getting to the Huron here may require a machete. Pedestrian access is off Whitmore Lake Road; go through Huron Bridge Park and then under the M-14 bridge.

10. Huron Bridge Park offers an interesting vista of three bridges (M-14, Conrail, and the old Main Street bridge) spanning the river as it winds through the narrows that open onto Argo Pond. A good fishing spot.

11. It's hard to be an Ann Arborite for long without biking, jogging, or driving Huron River Drive at least once. Traffic can be annoyingly heavy, but low speed limits and the sheer density of bicyclists here enforce an unusual biker-auto equilibrium. This scenic road parallels the river all the way to the town of Dexter, about eleven miles upstream.

12. Bird Hills Park stretches from M-14 to Barton Park along Huron River Drive. The sole large parcel of wilderness in Ann Arbor's city park system, Bird Hills is laced with a system of forest nature trails. Pedestrian access is off Newport Road just north of M-14, or off Bird Road west of Huron River Drive.

13. Barton Park includes a gravel path that leads from Huron River Drive to Barton Dam (you can walk across), the old dam house, and the southern bank of Barton Pond. A good, quiet place to fish, walk, or sunbathe.

Dancer Whitley Setrakian

BOB CHASE

"Lobster Dinner at Gramsey's," the latest work by choreographer-dancer Whitley Setrakian, was born of disappointment. When the lights come up on her solitary figure, Setrakian begins to talk—about the time she and her company, People Dancing, traveled to Boston, ready to take the city by storm. They arrived to find that not a single advance ticket had been sold for their performance. A mere handful of people showed up.

Setrakian's story of the Boston tour—salvaged by a moment of unexpected grace when someone's grandmother had the whole troupe over for dinner—unfolds in a piece that blends stand-up comedy, dance, poetry, and theater. From Setrakian's wry, self-deprecating monologue to a lyrical group dance set to the chanting of Lewis Carroll's "Lobster Quadrille," the piece is at once whimsical and touching. It's pure Setrakian, and the latest proof of her capacity to snatch success from failure.

People Dancing itself was inspired by a setback. "I actually started it because I was just really pissed off that they didn't hire me as artistic director for Dance Gallery Studio," the thirty-four-year-old Setrakian says with typical sharp-tongued candor. Thanks to her quirky, theatrical, innovative choreography, her new company quickly established itself.

Setrakian has "used very idiosyncratic moves and created her own private language," observes U-M dance department head Peter Sparling. "That's how she's developed her following here—[people] have learned her secret language."

Born in New York city to actor parents, Setrakian as a child performed with the avant-garde theater troupe La Mama, the New York Shakespeare Festival, and the New York City Opera. She attended the famous High School for the Performing Arts, then shifted her focus to dance while an undergraduate at SUNY Brockport. She transferred after two years to the U-M, where her roommate was Madonna Louise Ciccone. Setrakian is not pleased when reporters bring up her former roommate—the two have long since lost touch, and she says she doesn't want to be perceived as trading on Madonna's fame.

Many of Setrakian's pieces are narrative, inspired by historical or literary figures. "Crazy Emilia Tells Her Side of It," focuses on a minor character in Shakespeare's "Othello"—Desdemona's maid, Emilia. "Mother and Child Were Saved" is a dramatic work about childbirth, drawn from the diaries of a seventeenth-century midwife. The work was fueled by Setrakian's keen interest in midwifery—she gave birth to her own two children at home and has assisted at numerous other home births.

Setrakian's talents also include acting, singing (she frequently performs with local songwriters Dick Siegel and Tracy Lee Komarmy), and writing (she's a free-lance arts reviewer for the Ann Arbor News). Her varied accomplishments inspire admiration and awe in those who've worked with her. "I may actually personally know a genuius," declares former News reporter Jeff Mortimer.

Even geniuses get the blues about the current state of arts funding in Michigan, though. "I need a job," Setrakian said in July 1991, at home during a brief stop between singing at a folk festival in Vancouver and heading back east for a vacation. "I think it's true that by your mid-thirties the novelty of the bohemian life-style has begun to wear off." Since Governor Engler's budget cuts killed a major grant for People Dancing, the troupe will be "laying low" this year, according to company administrator Jocelyn Wolfe. Only one local performance is scheduled.

More than by the loss of funding, however, Setrakian is bothered by the relatively modest following that modern dance has in her hometown. "Ann Arborites will go to the ends of the earth to tell you how sophisticated they are, but then they won't come out to see live performances," she says heatedly. "I don't know what else I can do, except take my clothes off."

Then she's off on a humorous tack again. "I've thought of taking out a display ad, putting up some huge poster," she says. "You know, 'Garbo Talks!' 'Whitley Nude!' Then I'd come out, give 'em a front view, then a back view, the lights would come down, and they'd be stuck there for the rest of the concert."

Commercial Theaters

Ann Arbor Theater, 210 S. Fifth Ave. (between Liberty and Washington streets). 761-9700. The Ann Arbor Theater is the sole surviving commercial theater in the downtown and campus areas. It offers a mixture of first-run Hollywood releases and more esoteric fare. Its conversion from one screen to two left the Ann Arbor with one theater that is incredibly long and narrow with a very small screen. Plan on sitting near the front of this one. The second theater is unexceptional. Projection, sound, and upkeep are good at both theaters. Two extra pluses here: the popcorn is very fine, and, in true Ann Arbor fashion, muffins are on sale as well. There is a small parking lot next to the south side of the theater and two public parking structures within a few minutes' walk on Fourth Avenue. Admission: adults, $5.25; students with valid ID, $3.50 at all times; children and Fox Village (United Artists), Maple Village shopping center, 375 S. Maple Rd. 769–1300. This west side theater offers four screens—two in a subdivided theater and two in a more recent addition. Programming is very similar to the commercial fare at United Artists' Briarwood location, but UA has recently tended to shunt second-string offerings off to Fox Village. Projection and upkeep are generally good at this theater. There is plenty of parking. Admission: adults, $5.50 (weekdays before 5:30 p.m., $3.50); students, $4.50; children and seniors, $3.50.

The Movies (United Artists), Briarwood Mall. 769–8780. The local flagship of the mighty United Artists conglomerate, the Movies sports screens in seven theaters, with sizes ranging from 300 to 400 seats. The operation is typical of the modern shopping mall cinema complex: an efficient, low-overhead operation that reduces film going to the bare essentials. Programming is strictly mainstream fare, with the playbill often a near clone of their chief competitor, Showcase Cinemas. Projection is fine, upkeep is adequate, and the popcorn is slightly better than average. Ample parking is available. Admission: adults, $5.50 (weekdays before 6 p.m. and weekends before 1:30 p.m., $3.50) students, $4.50; children and seniors, $3.50.

The Showcase Cinemas, 4100 Carpenter Rd. (Pittsfield Township). 973–8380. This fourteen-screen megaplex, which opened in 1988, is big in every dimension, beginning with its awe-inspiring parking lot. Efficient crowd control seems to have been the main concern of the interior designers, but large, sometimes unruly crowds and the herding mentality of the ushers may still make weekend moviegoing unpleasant. Buying tickets and refreshments, despite the long lines, is relatively simple. The theaters themselves are the nicest in town, with large, comfortable seats, good viewing angles, and wide aisles. Programming stays squarely in the middle of the road. The sound system and projection are generally excellent. Technically these are the best theaters in town, but the Achilles' heel is popcorn, which is well below average here. Admission: adults, $5.75 (weekdays before 6 p.m. and first show weekends, $3.75); children and seniors, $3.75.

Nonprofit Film Groups

Ann Arbor Film Cooperative, Michigan League (911 North University Ave.). 769–7787. This group was formed in the late 1960's, originally to support the work of local filmmakers with income from film screenings. Gradually, production efforts dwindled, and the organization evolved into an exhibition-only group. The Co-op stimulated the screening of more contemporary films on campus. Current offerings span the spectrum of quality art and commercial films. The Co-op also founded the 8mm Film Festival, an annual review of international work in the medium's smallest format. Admission: $3; double feature, $4.

Ann Arbor Silent Film Society, Sheraton University Inn, 3200 Boardwalk Dr. 761–8286. Monthly showings of classic films include a feature and usually a couple of shorts. Admission: $2.

Cinema Guild, Michigan League, (911 North University Ave.). 994–0027. The oldest of all student film groups at the U-M, Cinema Guild has been showing films since 1950, and until 1967 was the only campus film group. In 1963, the Guild participated in the founding of the Ann Arbor Film Festival. Cinema Guild made its name showing Chaplin, Eisenstein, Welles, and other film pioneers. Films are chosen every term by members of the group. Under financial pressure from rival groups and the VCR revolution, Cinema Guild has lately begun showing more contemporary films, but the orientation toward high-quality films remains. Admission: $3; double feature, $4.

Hill Street Cinema, Hillel Foundation, 1429 Hill St. 769–0500. An off-campus film group housed at the local center for Jewish students, the Hill Street Cinema screens a wide variety of films in the Irwin Green Auditorium, which seats 300 and is air-conditioned. Programming ranges from classics to contemporary films, with a particular specialty in Israeli films and films of interest to the Jewish community. The group also sponsors guest speakers. Usual showing nights are Thursday and Saturday. Admission: $3–$4.

Mediatrics, University Activities Center, Michigan Union, 763–1107. The only film group with university funding, Mediatrics was founded within the University Activities Center in the mid-1970's. In the past, selections have tended toward commercial fare, but recently programming has become more interesting and original. Admission: $3; double feature: $4.

Michigan Theater Foundation, 630 E. Liberty St. (at Maynard). 668–8480. The Michigan Theater, an ornate relic of a much grander era of film exhibition, is indisputably the city's most handsome theater. Programming is eclectic, with a varied schedule of foreign and domestic films forming the core of screen offerings. The theater will often show first-run films for a week or so with a second revival film changing daily. Occasional silent films are accompanied by the thundering harmonies of the theater's restored organ. The recent installation of 70mm projectors allows big-screen masterpieces like "West Side Story" and "Spartacus" to be shown in their full glory. Every March, the theater is the location of the Ann Arbor Film Festival, a week-long binge of avant-garde and student films. Parking is available in two nearby public parking structures, on Thompson and E. Washington streets. Admission: adults, $5; students and seniors, $4; members, $3.

U-M Center for Japanese Studies, 108 Lane Hall, 204 S. State St. 764–6307. For the past several years, Japanese Studies has sponsored a series of classic Japanese films by noted directors such as Akira Kurosawa and Kon Ichikawa. This year's films, to be shown in the U-M's Lorch Hall Auditorium Fridays at 7 p.m., include a fall series of films depicting Japan's pre-World War II history, and a winter series to be announced. Admission is free.

U-M Program in Film & Video Studies, 2512 Frieze Building (105 S. State St.). 764–0147. Last year, Film/Video began its Film Classics Series, featuring great movies from the silent era to modern times. This is partly an effort to sustain campus film showings following the demise of such long-standing groups as Cinema II and Alternative Action. This fall, Film/Video also co-sponsors a series of black films from the 1930's & 40's, a gala screening of D.W. Griffith's "Intolerance" at the Michigan Theater to live orchestral accompaniment (Nov. 2), and a lecture series, "Filmmakers on Filmmaking."

Campus Auditoriums

Auditorium A, concourse between Angell, Haven, and Mason halls. Enter the glassed-in "fishbowl" directly west of the U-M grad library front steps, and proceed straight ahead into the concourse. Approximately 385 theater-type seats. Decent size screen, fair to good sound, slightly shallow seating angle. Equipped to show 35mm films, Cinemascope. Parking: The U-M's structure on Thayer St. is 200 yards north of Haven Hall.

Lorch Hall (old Architecture and Design Building), Tappan St. at Monroe St. Facing Lorch Hall from Tappan, you will find the auditorium at the left rear corner of the building. The longest operating film auditorium on campus and the original home of Cinema Guild, Lorch Hall has about 400 seats, good acoustics, and a long, narrow rectangular shape that's good for viewing films. A recent renovation, which included air-conditioning and cushioned seats, makes this the best place on campus for film viewing. Unfortunately, the Economics Department, headquartered in Lorch Hall, discourages public film showings, so most films shown here are co-sponsored by another U-M department. Parking: U-M structures at Hill St. near Tappan St. or at Church St. and South University Ave.

MLB 3 & 4, Modern Languages Building, corner of Thayer and Washington streets. MLB 3 seats 450 people in theater-type seats and is air-conditioned. Smallish screen; side seats in front are at sharp angle to screen. Sound is fair to good.

MLB 4 seats 350 people in theater-type seats and is also air-conditioned. This smaller auditorium, which seems to be a mirror image of its larger companion, has better sightlines in the side seats. Sound and relative screen size are about the same. Parking: Thayer structure is across the street.

Natural Science Building Auditorium, Natural Science Building, North University Ave. at Thayer St. The auditorium is at the back of the building, on the Diag. This lecture hall with its steep slope has a good view from all seats. Unfortunately, the seats provide no padding and minimal foot room. Screen size is rather small, and the sound is adequate at best. This auditorium is most comfortable for films of under two hours. Parking: Thayer structure.

Directed by Simon Ha
The Lydia Mendelssohn Theatre, February 26-29, 1992

LEND ME A TENOR*
by Ken Ludwig

Museums and Libraries

Many of the museums listed below often have special temporary exhibits. For information on these, and showings of local galleries, see the "Galleries and Museums" section of the monthly Observer. Locations of major museums and libraries are shown on the map on p. 137.

Museums

Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum, 219 E. Huron St. 995–5439. A science and technology museum with something for everyone, housed in Ann Arbor's 1882 fire station. Visitors learn about science, art, and culture through 170 participatory exhibits such as flying a hot air balloon or working a hand-powered electric generator. The museum also sponsors numerous workshops, classes, and weekend demonstrations. Tues.–Fri. 10 a.m.–5:30 p.m.; Sat. 10 a.m.–5 p.m.; Sun. 1–5 p.m. Admission: $3/adult, $2/child, student, senior, $7.50/family.

Cobblestone Farm, 2781 Packard Rd. 994–2928. This 1844 stone farmhouse is being restored to re-create the life of a farm family in the mid-nineteenth century. Often has special events and living history demonstrations. Thurs.–Sun. 1–4 p.m. (May–Oct.) Admission: $1.50/adult, $.75/youth & senior, $5/family.

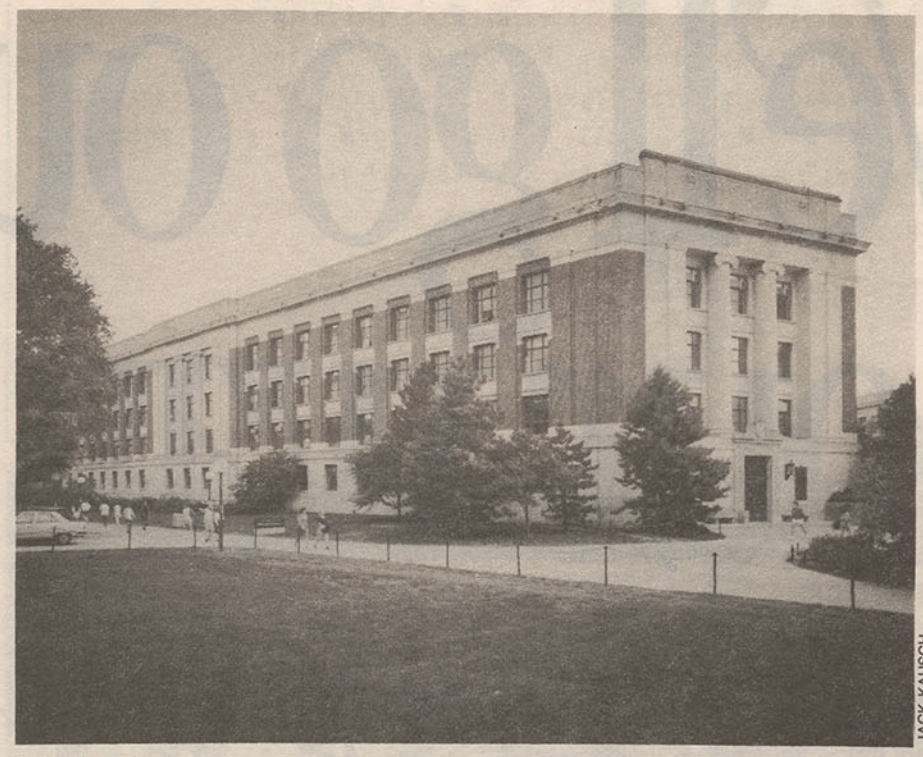
Domino's Farms, Earhart Rd., off Plymouth Rd. 995–4258. An exhibition hall complex at the north end of the sprawling Frank Lloyd Wright-inspired Domino's corporate headquarters contains a group of museums that reflect the eclectic interests of Tom Monaghan, the company's controversial CEO. A visit to the complex also immerses you in the boosterish corporate culture of one of Ann Arbor's largest employers, with displays extolling the company's business prowess interspersed throughout the building. Hours for the museums are Mon.–Fri. 10 a.m.–5 p.m.; Sat. & Sun. noon–5 p.m. Admission includes all three museums and the petting farm: $6/adult, $4/child, $15/family.

Domino's Classic Cars Museum (668–7319), the largest and most interesting of the museums, contains some of the seventy-five vehicles that make up Monaghan's collection. The museum's holdings are diverse, ranging from a 1901 Coffin Steam Carriage, built by U-M student Howard Coffin (who went on to found the Hudson Motor Company), to a 1952 Crosley Super Sport owned and modified by Frank Lloyd Wright and painted his signature color, Taliesin Rd. The showpiece is a 1931 Bugatti Royale, valued at $20 million, which has never been driven on the open road by its current owner. Interspersed with the classics are more modest vehicles, such as a slick 1950's fiberglass bike, the Bowden Spacelander, and the VW Beetle that served as Domino's first delivery vehicle, surrounded by a crew of somewhat demonic looking mannequins dressed in Domino's uniforms.

Domino's Center for Architecture & Design (995–4504) is the culmination of Monaghan's obsessive interest in the American architect, Frank Lloyd Wright. The Center has the world's largest collection of Wright's designs, including furniture, decorative windows, photographs, and drawings that trace the evolution of Wright's style. Highlights include major projects such as Falling Water, a Pennsylvania house built directly over a waterfall, as well as designs for the Usonian house, which Wright believed would provide the American middle class with a home that was a model of efficiency and style.

The Detroit Tigers Museum (930–3814) features a small collection of team memorabilia from the early 1900's to the present, including artifacts, photos, and video highlights of past World Series teams. An extensive trivia game allows fans to test their knowledge. Tickets to Tigers games are sold at a ticket window located in the museum.

Domino's Petting Farm (930–7387), located in a pristine red barn across the road from the main complex, may be something of a disappointment to all but the most die-hard animal lovers. Although the farm does have the unique feature of allowing one to order a Domino's pizza while waiting for a turn to view the animals, it may not be worth the wait. There is a small collection of somewhat forlorn farm animals, most of whom don't appear to be very enthusiastic about being petted by visitors, as well as hayrides and the vaudeville Farmer John show, which may prove most entertaining for the under-ten set. Admission to the petting farm alone: $2/adult, $1/child.



JACK KAUSCH

U-M Exhibit Museum

U-M Exhibit Museum, North University at Geddes Ave. 764–0478. This big, popular natural science museum, a favorite destination of local school groups and families, features an astounding variety of exhibits. The Hall of Evolution shows the development of prehistoric life, including a large collection of fossils and those perennial favorites, dinosaur skeletons, found at local excavation sites. The Michigan Wildlife Gallery has extensive collections of the plant and animal life of the state, and exhibits that highlight current environmental issues. The museum also has displays of Native American life, and galleries focusing on such diverse fields as anthropology, geology, and genetics, featuring many interactive exhibits.

Ruthven Planetarium within the Exhibit Museum has showings on the weekends. Museum hours are Tues.–Sat. 9 a.m.–5 p.m.; and Sun. 1–5 p.m. Admission to the museum is free, fees for the planetarium range from $2–$2.50 per person depending upon the show. Groups of more than six people who wish to visit the museum or planetarium must reserve in advance.

Kelsey Museum of Ancient and Medieval Archaeology, 434 S. State St. 764–9304. This elegant Romanesque building houses an enormous collection of artifacts from ancient Greece, Rome, Egypt, and the Near East. The collection features both artistic and household items, many of which were retrieved during U-M excavations earlier this century. Younger visitors, for whom there is a special activity guidebook, may be more intrigued by an X-ray of a mummified pharaoh. The museum also sponsors many special exhibits, tours, and programs that focus on archaeological finds. Mon.–Fri. 9 a.m.–4 p.m.; Sat. & Sun. 1–4 p.m. (Sept.–April). Tues.–Fri. 11 a.m.–4 p.m.; Sat. & Sun. 1–4 p.m. (May–Aug.). Free.

Kempf House Center for Local History, 312 S. Division St. 994–4898. This 1850's Greek Revival house has been lovingly refurbished with Victorian antiques and the mementos of the musical Kempf family, who lived here from 1890 until 1953. The Kempfs were music teachers who played an important role in the local arts community. The house still contains their grand piano, Ann Arbor's first, which was frequently loaned to the university to be played in Hill Auditorium. The museum also has exhibits of domestic life in Ann Arbor during the period and serves as a center for local history, sponsoring many special events during the year. Sat. & Sun. 1–4 p.m. (Feb.–July, Sept.–Dec.); Wed. 10 a.m.–2 p.m. (Oct.–Nov., March–May). Admission: $1.

Matthaei Botanical Gardens, 1800 N. Dixboro Rd. 998–7060. This spacious indoor conservatory, a favorite midwinter oasis, harbors a variety of tropical and desert plants. Visitors can wander from the lily-pad filled goldfish ponds at the entrance through the three rooms of the conservatory, which are divided by climatic regions. The first room consists of tropical plants and trees, which serve as homes for a number of birds that live in the conservatory. The central greenhouse holds plants of warm temperate climates along with an orchid display and a case of insectivorous plants. A more austere collection of cacti and other desert plants fills the desert house at the rear of the building and opens on a formal outdoor garden. The conservatory is surrounded by 250 acres of nature trails. Tours of the conservatory and trail maps are available. Open daily 10 a.m.–4:30 p.m. (conservatory); 8:00 a.m.–sunset (gardens and trails). Conservatory admission: $1.

U-M Museum of Art, 525 S. State St. 764–0395. The permanent collections of this museum, considered to be one of the top university museums in the country, encompass both Western and Asian art from early times until the present. The Asian art and collections of German Expressionist paintings are exceptionally fine. The Works on Paper Gallery in the basement features changing exhibitions of photographs and drawings. Another draw is the wide range of special exhibitions, of which there are usually several on display. Exhibitions are supplemented by family activities, tours, lectures, and a lunchtime video series. Tues.–Sat. 10 a.m.–5 p.m.; Sun. 1–5 p.m. Free.

Stearns Collection of Musical Instruments, U-M School of Music, Baits Dr., North Campus. 764–6527. A major collection of musical instruments from throughout the world. The collection was begun in 1899 by Frederick Stearns, a pharmaceutical manufacturer and passionate musical collector, who donated 1,400 instruments that he had acquired in his travels. It includes both exotic and antique instruments, a few of which can be tried by visitors, or heard in a special audio-visual display. Lecture demonstrations on winter weekends. Thurs. & Fri. 10 a.m.–5 p.m.; Sat. & Sun. 1–8 p.m. Free.

"I would guess that no place else in the world has five classical music stations, all of which are twenty-four hour ones. People often say that the U-M has three big draws in recruiting: Borders Book Shop, Zingerman's, and these music stations," comments U-M physicist and classical music aficionado Gordy Kane.

By virtue of a geographical accident, Ann Arborites can tune in classical stations from four nearby cities. Hometown station WUOM, rival MSU's station, WKAR, and Toledo station WGTE are all NPR affiliates. Local listeners can also choose from Detroit station WQRS, one of the country's few remaining commercial classical stations, and CBE, a Windsor station that also broadcasts BBC programming.

Amadeus Cafe

Over the last two and a half years, I've seen Amadeus Cafe grow from a relatively unfrequented haven for rootless writers to a busy, congenial destination. Of course, there was never a doubt that the cheerfully intimate cafe would win a following, but I'd hoped to have it to myself a little longer.

Pawel and Krystyna Strozynski spent two years restoring the building at 122 East Washington after they rented it in 1986. They painstakingly repaired the detailed cornices and broken ceiling trim with plaster molds handmade to match the old and installed a mural-collage of Mozart memorabilia on the western wall. Finally, with the addition of a few ceiling-high schefflera, Amadeus was ready for business in July 1988.

It was going to be a bakery, but during the restoration, the Strozynskis decided to make it a Viennese cafeteria. Early patrons didn't understand the intention and waited hesitantly at the door instead of walking up to place their orders. "We were confused and they were confused," says Krystyna. Now it's a sit-down restaurant, though many customers still walk up to the display cases to choose their desserts.

The menu is a mixture of Polish and other European dishes. The chicken paprikash is shredded chicken, sour cream, and lots of paprika spooned over wide noodles. It's especially good on cold winter evenings. Chlodnik, a chilled dill soup, is a perfect starter for the paprikash. For Spartan suppers (or a plentiful lunch) there's a selection of soups and interesting salads; for a more luxurious dinner, try the light and tangy chilled salmon mousse. Desserts are elegant, sugary tortes and traditional strudels, poppyseed rolls, and fruit twists.

All of the entrees and soups (and many of the pastries) are prepared by Pawel and Krystyna during their fourteen-hour days at the restaurant. When asked why they're willing to work so hard, the two respond almost simultaneously, "Because we can meet and have very nice people here," and immediately set to talking about their most interesting customers.

Tables are always set with fresh field flowers and a creative rosette or, in fall, colorful leaves arranged on the cloth beneath the glass overlay. Live classical music on weeknights (guitar on Wednesdays and Thursdays, piano or violin on Fridays) adds to an air of casual elegance. Saturday night's entertainment veers more in the direction of earnest charm: a band of Hungarian folk musicians plays "a little out of tune" but very enthusiastically each week, according to one waiter. With a shrug, Pawel admits he sometimes asks them to play more softly, but says he's told, "If it's softer, it isn't gypsy music."

Amadeus can provide a wonderfully indulgent evening or a relaxing Sunday brunch—if you've got the time and patience to enjoy it. It's not for the restive theater-goer: on busy nights, the staff is overworked and service can be slow. Amadeus is best for the dallier with a taste for dim lighting and long conversations. Bring your own wine (the liquor license is pending) and stay awhile.

The Old German

GREGORY FOX

I first visited the Old German more than twenty years ago, when I was growing up in Toledo. At seven or eight years old, with a sweet tooth and white bread tastes molded by TV commercials, I rebelled against the restaurant's unfamiliar fare. My parents' efforts to get me to eat were unexpectedly joined—to my childish outrage—by our matronly waitress. Thereafter, whenever the restaurant's name was mentioned, I kicked up such a fuss that we never returned. But after I moved to Ann Arbor three years ago, everything I'd hated about the Old German—the medieval interior, the strong flavors of the food, the familiarity of the staff—I quickly learned to love.

There's a lot of flashy mock-ethnicity in Ann Arbor's restaurant scene, but none here. The Old German has roots deep in the past. It may be the only restaurant in town with the self-assurance to confront diners with untranslated menu selections, like Blutwurst (blood sausage) and Ochsenmaulsalat (a salad made with ox tongue). I like the rich, silky Blutwurst, but on a recent trip I chose Konigsberger Klops, spicy meatballs served on a bed of the best homemade noodles in town. They contained nothing more exotic than pork.

There is a different menu for each night of the week at the Old German, but it always includes a good selection of classic German dishes: sauerbraten, Wiener schnitzel, smoked pork. Fresh fish from reasonably nearby waters is a specialty—as it often is in the tavern-restaurant combinations found in any German town.

The Old German dates back to 1928, when a number of Ann Arborites still referred to Liberty Street as Freiheitstrasse. William Schwarz, who had arrived from Germany just six years before, started a lunch counter on Ashley to serve factory workers in the area. (There's still a counter at the back of the restaurant.) In 1933 he acquired the current Washington Street storefront, giving the restaurant its L shape.

Fritz Metzger, father of current owner Bud Metzger (and cousin of the founders of Metzger's, two blocks to the west), bought the Old German in 1946. The seller was Gottlob Schumacher, another first-generation immigrant who had gone into partnership with Schwarz ten years earlier, and who insisted on selling out to another German.

There's an air of permanence about the place, despite the fact that it was fully rebuilt after a fire gutted it in 1975. Bill Dettling, one of the cooks, has been on the job for forty-six years. And many of the beer steins, wine casks, painted platters, and tools that line its brick walls and wooden girders are antiques. But the Old German is never gloomy. There's always a good crowd, and the longtime staff shows the appealing solicitude that so put me off as an eight-year-old.

I asked Mark Metzger, Bud's son, whether the menu has changed over the years. He laughed and answered, "Just the prices." (Gottlob Schumacher, now eighty-seven, agrees.) Actually, most people still find the food here a terrific value. The Old German seems destined to ride out many more restaurant fashions before it's through. —James Manheim great INGREDIENTS make a GREAT SANDWICH!

To make a great sandwich you have to start with great ingredients. And at Zingerman's our sandwiches showcase the best food we can find. That means a commitment to the highest standards of quality and to a continual search for improvement. Corned beef is cooked in our own kitchen and sliced hot throughout the day. Chicken is raised by Amish farmers in Indiana. Swiss cheese is from Switzerland. Bacon is dry-cured and applewood smoked. Rye bread is double-baked and sliced fresh all day long to keep it warm and crusty.

There's no tricking the tastebuds! You can taste good food in every bite.

We'd put the ingredients in our sandwiches up—item by item—against those used in the finest white tablecloth restaurants in the country. In fact, in most cases we think ours are better. Much more importantly, when we put them all together, they make Zingerman's sandwiches taste so good!

The Blue Nile

GREGORY FOX

Behind the neat facades of the renovated workers' cottages on Braun Court are a cluster of ethnic eateries that span the globe—from Japanese to Thai to Mexican. But surely the most unusual is the relative new kid on the block, the Blue Nile.

Seifu and Fellekach Lessanework, who also own a Blue Nile restaurant in Trappers Alley in Detroit, opened in Ann Arbor in December 1989. Although they retained the gauzy white curtains hung across the front windows by the previous tenant, the Cedar Tree, they transformed the rest of the place. The walls are hung with parchment paintings of traditional Ethiopian scenes and with musical instruments made from hollowed-out gourds. A colorful batik screen separates the dining area from the kitchen. And diners sit around large, colorfully woven, mushroom-like baskets instead of conventional tables. When their tops are removed, the baskets' deep interiors serve as a resting place for large, shared platters of food.

The food mirrors the exotic simplicity of the decor. This is a restaurant menu designed for the indecisive; rather than ordering a la carte, diners choose one of two options: the vegetarian feast for $10.90 a person or the Ethiopian feast, which includes meat dishes, for $13.90 per person. Both are unlimited portions.

Before serving the food, the waitress brings hot towels for hand-washing. Food on the large communal platters is eaten by hand, using injera, a flat, spongy bread, in place of silverware. You rip off small pieces of the bread and use them to pick up bites of food.

The vegetarian feast includes seven different dishes. Although most are made from legumes, the flavors are surprisingly diverse. Two of my favorites are yemisir kik wat, made from red lentils, and metin shuro wat, made from yellow peas. Both are cooked with berbere sauce, a savory traditional seasoning based on hot peppers. The vegetarian platter also holds servings of gomen, made from greens cooked with onions and peppers; tekil gomen, a lemon-yellow saute of seasoned cabbage; kik alecha, a somewhat mealy mixture of yellow peas, green peppers, and herbs; and yemesir azefah, a slightly bland mix of green lentils and herbs. The feast comes with timatim salata, a salad made with romaine lettuce, tomatoes, onions, and hot peppers and seasoned with a lemon vinaigrette.

Except for the most committed of carnivores, the vegetarian feast is the best option. The food here is extremely filling, and the variety of flavors is enough that meat won't be missed. Moreover, the meat dishes that we sampled were somewhat disappointing. They are cooked by a traditional method that renders them low in fat but also, unfortunately, somewhat depleted in taste and texture. One exception is doro wat, chicken cooked in that flavorful berbere sauce.

After the food is cleared away, towels are again brought to the table for hand-washing. We finished the meal with a dark, rich, almost smoky-tasting coffee and tea laced with cinnamon, orange, and lemon.

On a recent visit, the entire restaurant was being serviced by a single waitress, who was doing triple duty as hostess and kitchen staffer. Extremely efficient and adept, she retained her graceful charm under pressure and left no one neglected for long in spite of the fact that the restaurant was almost full.

Her lyrical accent inspired the couple at the next table to make a wager over her place of origin. When they asked her, she replied that she was an American who had been raised in Denmark. When she learned she had been the subject of a bet, she volunteered her own version of the winner's prize: a Porsche painted Copenhagen blue. —Rachel Weiss

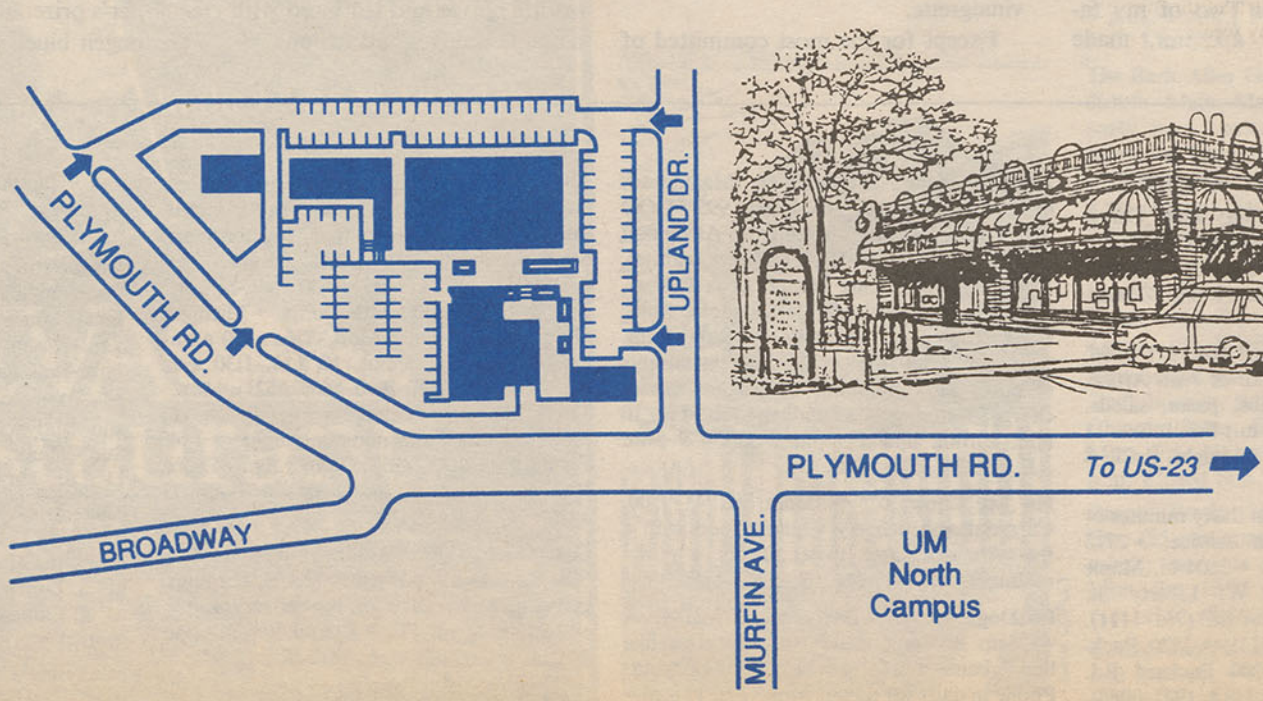
THE COURTYARD SHOPS

AT NORTH CAMPUS PLAZA

An eclectic array of specialty retail shops and casual restaurants nestled in a park-like atmosphere. Over twenty-five businesses (mostly owner-operated) provide an interesting outing of shopping, dining and relaxation.



Shopping

Downtown

Main Street and its east-west sidekick, Liberty Street, feature a mix of the old and the new. Long-established family-owned shops, many bearing German names, dovetail with contemporary boutiques and a dense concentration of destination restaurants. The retail anchor is Kline's, the last surviving department store on Main Street, and one with something of a small-town-America atmosphere. Older stores, such as Seyfried Jewelers, and newer ones, such as the quirky Peaceable Kingdom, share an emphasis on personal service. A few blocks south of downtown, the South Main Market offers six high-quality neighborhood food shops in a rehabbed brick warehouse.

Kerrytown, between North Fourth and North Fifth avenues in the 400 block (information: 662–4221), first sprang up in the late 1960's to take advantage of crowds drawn to the Ann Arbor Farmers' Market next door. The Farmers' Market is open Saturdays until 3 p. m. year-round, and on Wednesdays from May through December. Kerrytown was in the vanguard of the trend toward conversion of old urban warehouse and factory buildings into prime retail developments. The center's largest stores are Kitchen Port and Workbench furniture. The food shops on the ground level, including meat, produce, and seafood markets, attract downtown residents daily, and out-of-town customer traffic is also steady. There are over thirty shops and restaurants in all, each an original, selling everything from candles to yarn to creative toys. Hours vary according to type of shop, but closing hours are generally 7 p.m. Monday through Friday, 6 p.m. Saturday, and 5 p.m. Sunday.

The streets in the vicinity of Kerrytown are dotted with small stores and restaurants, including a drive-in beer emporium. Unlike many of their 1960's counterparts, Ann Arbor's food co-ops are flourishing; one is on North Fourth Avenue, the other on Packard St. southeast of downtown. Two Ann Arbor institutions lie northeast of Kerrytown on Detroit Street: Zingerman's deli and the Treasure Mart, the consignment resale shop that launched the area's gentrification back in 1960. It stocks everything from velvet paintings to first-rate antique furnishings.

Campus Area—State Street. The area just northwest of the main U-M campus (centering on South State Street between William and Washington streets), attracts throngs of shoppers, especially on sunny weekend afternoons. The retail anchor is Jacobson's, a branch of the Jackson-based chain of upscale department stores. Borders Book Shop, one of the nation's premier bookstores, attracts visitors from all over the Upper Midwest, as do the four well-stocked recorded music outlets within a two-block stretch of Liberty, led by Schoolkids' Records and its genteel sister, SKR Classical. The area is thick with purveyors of formal and informal clothing, and there are a number of stores that serve a primarily student clientele. The mock broken windows and warehouse-like interior of Urban Outfitters announce an upscale-downscale shopping experience. The seventy-five-year-old Nickels Arcade (State Street at North University Avenue), a block-long, glass-roofed assortment of shops, is a stylish precursor of the modern shopping mall.

Campus Area—South University Avenue. The South U strip abuts an area inhabited almost entirely by students, and the retail mix reflects that customer base. Ulrich's, a long-established textbook and school supplies outlet, anchors the block east of East University, and the rest of the street is loaded with book and music stores, clothing boutiques, and fast-food outlets. Two standouts are Tower Records, a new Ann Arbor branch of a recorded-music chain well known on both coasts for its depth of selection, and the Village Corner, a curious hybrid that's part student-patronized convenience store, part first-rate wine collection.

Major Malls

Arborland Mall, Washtenaw Avenue just west of US-23 (information: [illegible] 1825). Ann Arbor's first shopping mall is announced by a giant red "A" towering over the entrance to the parking lot. This relic of 1960's roadside style is an effective, if ironic, marker of the city's busiest border—Ann Arbor subsequently banned such brash commercial monuments. The mall now houses mostly outlets of discount chains such as Marshall's, Service Merchandise, Burlington Coat Factory, and F&M Distributors; smaller shops offer everything from kitchen equipment to bulk foods. There are more than forty stores, plus a food court. The mall is open Monday through Saturday 10 a.m.–9 p.m., and Sunday noon–6 p.m.

Briarwood Mall, off State Road between Eisenhower Boulevard and I-94 (information: 761–9550), almost single-handedly triggered the ongoing suburbanization of Ann Arbor's south side. A 128-store giant, Briarwood draws shoppers from a large region and from various demographic niches, although it tends toward more upscale offerings. (The piped-in music runs more to Mozart than Mantovani.) The four anchors are middle-of-the-road Sears and J. C. Penney, newly flashy Hudson's, and Lord & Taylor, with its storewide directive mandating "good taste and good manners." Mall hours are Monday through Saturday 10 a.m.–9 p.m., and Sunday noon–6 p.m. ▶

Westgate and Maple Village shopping centers are at opposite sides of the intersection of Jackson and Maple roads, once the western edge of urban Ann Arbor. K Mart, Dunham's Sporting Goods, Church's Lumber, and Frank's Nursery do most of Maple Village's business, while clothing discounter T. J. Maxx and one of the city's Kroger supermarkets anchor the Westgate strip, which offers more small stores and restaurants. Westgate's Little Professor Book Center is expanding into larger quarters and plans to offer a Borders-sized selection of 100,000 titles. Many of the stores in both strips are neighborhood outlets stocked with the basic necessities of home and garden.

Ann Arbor-Saline Road and Eisenhower Parkway, which a decade ago passed through old farm fields on the city's south side, are now densely lined with new offices, apartments, and shopping centers. Most of the new stores clustered around I-94's exits are big discount chains: Mervyn's, Kids R Us, F&M Distributors, a Meijer superstore with a vast produce section, and Target, which anchors the sprawling Oak Valley shopping center across the road. Woodland Plaza, at Main Street and Ann Arbor-Saline Road, offers Busch's supermarket, a huge chain video outlet, and more. upscale set of establishments.

Carpenter Road from Washtenaw Avenue to Ellsworth Road is a diverse strip anchored by the older of the two local Meijer stores—Michigan's entry in the growing national trend toward giant "hypermarkets" combining a discount department store and a supermarket under a single five-acre roof. Scattered along Carpenter Road north of Meijer, along with the motels and chain restaurants, are a tire store, a fabric outlet, a supermarket, a high-end car stereo shop, and Best Products' catalog showroom. New strips are proliferating in the Carpenter Road area, feeding off the swarms of new home owners in south Ann Arbor and western Ypsilanti Township.

Jackson Road, bisecting fast-growing Scio Township from east to west, has sprouted a series of small strips in recent years. They cater mostly to the needs of residents of the new subdivisions leapfrogging their way across the township. There are stores selling home furnishings, hardware, and many other domestic items. Even before the strips' arrival, Jackson Road was home to many auto dealerships and garages, and to Farmer Grant's Market, a country store complete with gifts, produce grown on site, fresh meat and baked goods, and right-wing publications at the cash register.

Plymouth Road is the main artery of Ann Arbor's north side. Two neighborhood shopping centers, Plymouth Mall (at Nixon Road) and the new Traverwood center across the street, are anchored by grocery stores and mostly serve the day-to-day shopping needs of area residents. North Campus Plaza (off Plymouth at the eastern end of Broadway) offers a growing variety of small specialty shops along with utilitarian services such as framing and mailing.

Washtenaw Avenue from Platt Road to US-23 is home to all three of the regional appliance chains—ABC Warehouse, Fretter's, and Highland—that blanket local media with inky advertising. The strip also contains automotive dealers and service outlets, various chain and locally owned restaurants, and stores selling hardware, floor coverings, and other domestic merchandise.

West Stadium Boulevard between Maple Road and Pauline Boulevard is the west side counterpart of Washtenaw, displaying the mix typical of classic American arterial retailing. Businesses concerned with cars and food dominate the scene: besides Farmer Jack and the Westgate Kroger, Arbor Farms, just north of Liberty, provides the downtown food co-ops with competition for the natural-foods dollar. "The Boulevard," as a recent promotional campaign dubbed this area, is home to various other freestanding shops, including two helpful locally owned hardware stores, sporting goods and appliance stores, and bakeries.

Finally, Ann Arbor's neighborhood shopping strips run the gamut from funky to fashionable. The assortment of stores at the foot of Broadway boasts two thrift shops and a Hallmark store that has comically bedecked the towers of an old church with a party hat and a giant gift box. The intersection of Packard and Platt roads, once the center of the swallowed-up town of East Ann Arbor, features unpretentious shops in older buildings. Other strip centers include Lamp Post Plaza at East Stadium and Washtenaw, Georgetown Mall on Packard, and the Maple/Miller shopping center. ■

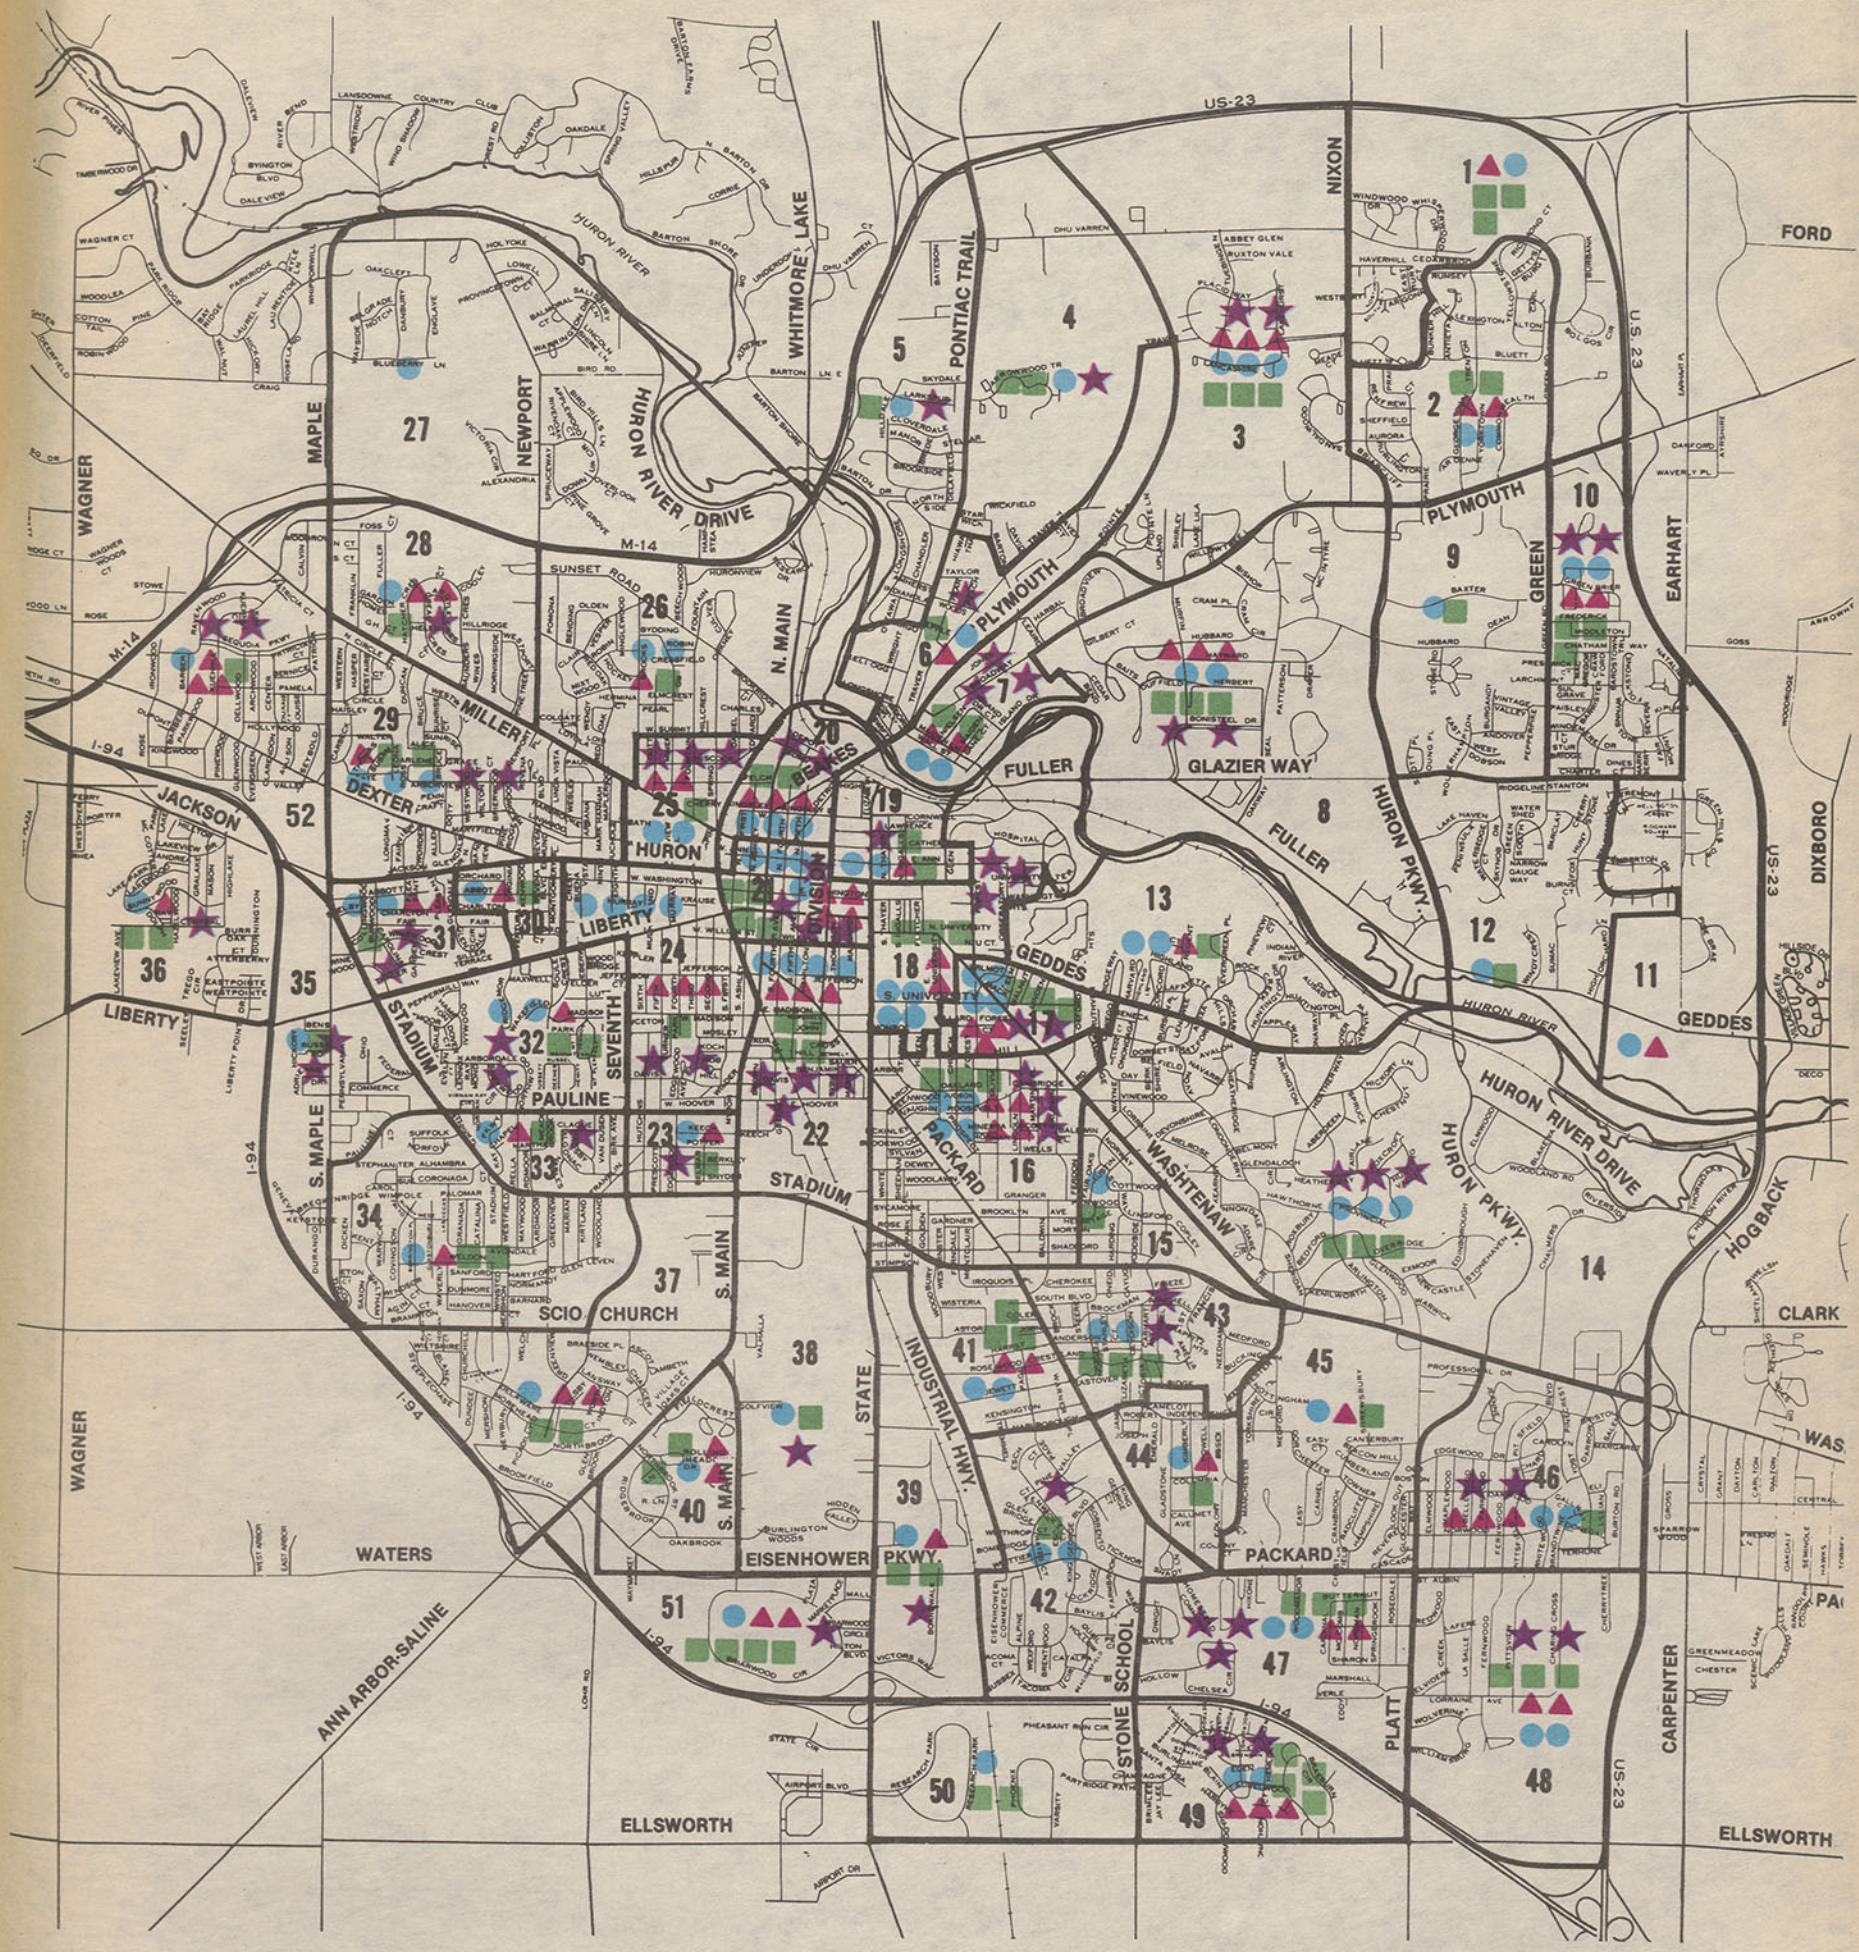
ANN ARBOR CRIME: JULY 1990–JUNE 1991



1990–91 Burglaries	1990–91 Sexual Assaults	1990–91 Vehicle Thefts	1990–91 Robberies
1–14	1	1–4	1
15–29	2–3	5–9	2–3
30–44	4–5	10–15	4–5
45+	6+	16+	6+

This map compiles data from monthly Ann Arbor Observer crime maps between July 1990 and June 1991. Unlike the monthly map, symbols denote ranges, (see key at left) rather than individual crimes. Also, symbol locations denote the total number of crimes committed within each of the city's 52 neighborhoods during the year, rather than the exact location of specific crimes.

Because all data are provided by the Ann Arbor Police Department, no information is included for areas beyond the city limits. In most cases, the boundary is the M-14/I-94/US-23 freeway ring.

As usual, the map shows a high concentration of burglaries in the campus neighborhoods, where carefree students live behind unlocked doors. But some of the maps' revelations are more surprising. Sexual assaults are distributed all over town, as are car thefts.

Compared to similar small cities around the country, Ann Arbor has slightly more property crime per capita, and slightly fewer crimes against persons.
